DRIVE TO DEFEAT CHARTER BEGUN BY COMMITTEE, $7000 RAISED

Politicians, Aldermen, Labor Leaders Attend Meeting Which Warns of 'Blue Ribbon' Control.

A drive to defeat the proposed new city charter in the Aug. 6 special election was launched last night by the newly-formed Citizens Committee Against the Charter, which raised about $7000 to finance its campaign at its first public meeting at the Kingsway Hotel.

About 150 persons attended the anti-charter gathering, including many Democratic and Republican politicians, city officials, aldermen, state legislators and labor leaders, most of whom previously have voiced opposition to the proposal.

'Blue Ribbon' Charge.

The new group, whose membership also includes representatives of small business, property owners and taxpayers organizations, is fighting the proposed charter on the ground that it will establish "blue ribbon" control of city government.

It contends the document would give the mayor too much power and weaken the authority of the Board of Aldermen. Speakers also complained that there are "hidden costs" under the new proposal, which could mean higher taxes.

The anti-charter committee had invited more than 300 persons to the meeting, including all members of the Democratic and Republican City Committees and a number of public officials.

Many of these attending told a Post-Dispatch reporter that they had showed up "just to hear what the opponents had to say." A number of them backed up their interest with cash, however, contributing generously to the anti-charter campaign fund.

Closed Session Held.

After a 45-minute program of speeches in opposition to the proposed charter, the group held a closed "executive" session at the suggestion of Alderman A. J. Cervantes of the Fifteenth Ward, for the purpose of soliciting contributions. Newspaper reporters were barred from this part of the meeting.

Cervantes, a guiding hand of the anti-charter group, although he is not listed as one of its officers, later explained that the session had been closed because it was felt that those at the meeting would contribute more readily if reporters were not on hand to record the donations.

It was learned, however, that about $7000, in cash and personal checks, was tossed into the anti-charter coffers during the closed meeting. There were several donations of $500 each, and many of $100 or more. The money came from individuals, political ward organizations and from several labor groups.

Cervantes said the money would be used to purchase radio and television time and for the printing of campaign literature.

Not for Precinct Workers.

The Democratic alderman said the funds will not be used to hire precinct workers for the election. The group hopes to have volunteer workers in each city precinct on election day, he reported. The committee will maintain a campaign office at the Kingsway Hotel.

American Injured in Moscow Air Crash Stops Here on Way Home

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

Mrs. Margaret Tremper Of Grand Rapids on Way to Reunion With Daughter.

Mrs. Margaret Tremper, one of four survivors of the crash of a Polish airliner at Moscow airport last month, was on the final leg of her journey home to Grand Rapids, Mich., today for a long-awaited reunion with her young daughter, Michele, also a survivor of the crash.

Mrs. Tremper and her husband, Dr. Lawrence Tremper, an osteopath, spent last night at Scott Air Force Base en route from McGuire base in New Jersey.

Mrs. Tremper and 12-year-old Michele were on a vacation trip in Europe when the plane on which they had booked passage to Moscow on June 15 overshot the airport in a driving rainstorm and crashed into a plowed field two miles away.

Mrs. Tremper was seriously hurt in the crash, but Michele, who returned home over a week ago, escaped with lesser injuries.

Russian Medical Care.

Dr. Tremper, who flew to Moscow after learning of the crash, praised the quality of Russian medical care.

"They may not have as much chrome and polish as we have here in America, but their techniques and equipment are just as effective. And that is the only thing that counts."

"Neither my wife nor Michele remember very much about the crash," he said. "About all they can recall is flying into a rainstorm just before they got to Moscow, and then . . . nothing."

The only survivors of the crash, in which nine persons were killed, were Mrs. Tremper; Michele; another American, Richard Cheverton, and the Polish stewardess.

Pulled From Wreckage.

Mrs. Tremper suffered a severe concussion, a fractured pelvis, a fractured knee and ankle, and multiple lacerations. She was pulled from the wreckage by three American reporters who had witnessed the crash.

Dr. Tremper said that his wife was in Moscow Hospital until last Thursday, when the Air Force flew her to Wiesbaden, Germany.

"She is only now beginning to regain her memory and doesn't recall anything of her stay in Moscow Hospital," he said.

"Now that she is coming out of it, she's beginning to suffer from the heat here a little bit. But the biggest thing on her mind ever since we left Wiesbaden is seeing her Michele again. Neither one of us will really feel as though we're home until we do."

CAFE CUSTOMER KILLED IN ATTACK ON HOLDUP MAN

Strikes Armed Robber With Iron Pipe — Thief Fires Twice, Flees Without Loot.

Harry Woods, an odd-jobs man, was shot and fatally wounded early today by a holdup man Woods attacked with a length of iron pipe in a restaurant at 1927 North Grand boulevard. The robber fled without loot.

Woods, 62 years old, was a customer in the restaurant when the robber came in and demanded the money from the cook, William Meadows, 2318A McNair avenue, about 2:20 a.m.

When Woods saw the man had a snub-nosed revolver, he picked up the pipe, which was on a shelf counter, and advanced toward the robber. The man said to Woods:

"Put the pipe down. I don't want to shoot you."

Woods continued to move toward the robber, police were told, and struck him on the left arm with the pipe.

Fires Two Shots.

The robber fired two shots at Woods. One entered his chest and the other went wild, striking the wall, police said.

Witnesses, who heard the shots, said the man ran from the restaurant and got into an automobile with a white top and blue body and drove west on North Market street to Fall avenue, where he turned north and disappeared.

Woods, who had no home, was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital. He died an hour later without regaining consciousness. Police said he frequently slept in the basement of St. Teresa Catholic Church, Grand and North Market, which is across Grand from the restaurant.

Detective Capt. John Doherty, Detective Cpl. Oliver Geile and Detective Carl Rockling, driving north on Grand at Barrett street 15 minutes after the shooting, saw an automobile similar to the one used in the holdup.

Driver Arrested.

They arrested the driver, who was identified by Meadows as the holdup man. The driver denied, however, that he knew anything about the shooting or the attempted robbery, saying that he had worked until midnight at his job in St. Louis

TEAMSTER HOFFA IS ACQUITTED BY JURY IN BRIBERY, CONSPIRACY CASE

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—James R. Hoffa, a Teamster vice president, was acquitted today of charges of conspiring and bribing to plant a spy within the Senate Rackets Committee.

A federal court jury of seven men and five women returned its verdict about four hours and 45 minutes after it had received the case.

The jury foreman replied "not guilty" as the clerk asked him the jury's verdict on each of three charges against the Midwest boss of the Teamsters Union.

Hoffa's acquittal may bolster his chances as a possible successor to Dave Beck as president of the Teamsters, 1,400,000-member union, largest in the nation.

Verdict Applauded.

The courtroom was packed when the jury returned its verdict and there was applause which marshals quickly quieted. One spectator shouted "God bless this judge and jury."

Hoffa, 44 years old, stood erect and looked straight ahead as the jury filed in.

By its verdict, the jury believed Hoffa's denial that he plotted with Hyman I. Fischbach, a Miami attorney, to induce John Cye Cheasty to get a job with the rackets committee in order to supply its secrets to Hoffa.

In submitting the case to the jury this morning, United States District Judge Burnita S. Matthews admonished the jurors to reach a verdict "without sympathy or prejudice." She instructed the jury on points of law for an hour and 25 minutes. She told the jury to perform its duty "thoroughly and impartially."

Had the jury convicted Hoffa, the maximum penalty possible would have been 13 years in prison and fines of $69,000.

Allegations Detailed.

This alleges that Hoffa and Fischbach conspired to induce Cheasty to get a job with the committee, then bribed him to supply them with its secrets.

Fischbach went on trial with Hoffa a month ago, but last week was granted a mistrial when his lawyer became ill. Fischbach will be tried later.

Judge Matthews told the jury there is a presumption of Hoffa's innocence under the law which the government has the burden of overcoming "beyond a reasonable doubt" before he can be convicted.

The judge further reminded the jury that Hoffa, from the witness stand, denied any wrongdoing and insisted he employed Cheasty as a lawyer—not as a spy—and did not ask him to get a job on the rackets committee staff and did not know that he had such a job.

Varied Descriptions.

Assistant United States Attorney Edward P. Troxell described Cheasty as "a good citizen . . . a patriotic citizen" and said he acted "to protect the legislative processes of this country."

Hoffa's attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, called Cheasty "a self-confessed falsifier" and "a man careless with the truth."

Williams said Cheasty's story that Hoffa and Fischbach induced him to get a job with the committee, then bribed him to give them its secrets, was "so fantastically incredible that it scandalizes your intelligence."

Troxell, insisting that Cheasty "showed strength and character and courage to do what he did," said Hoffa "wanted a spy and he got one."

DEFENSE NEEDS NOW LESS THAN SENATE VOTED, WILSON ASSERTS

He Proposes $142,249,000 Cut — Annoys Senators Who Fought for Restorations on President's Plea.

©New York Times News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 19—The Defense Department told Congress yesterday that it could get along satisfactorily on $142,249,000 less than the Senate had voted to give it for operations this fiscal year.

Secretary Charles E. Wilson sent a scaled-down request for appropriations of $34,391,980,000 to reflect savings contemplated under his new order for a 100,000 cut in the planned strength of the armed forces.

The revised figures were submitted to a joint conference committee meeting for the second day to adjust differences between defense appropriations voted by the Senate and House of Representatives.

As a consequence, the conferees broke off deliberations until Monday to allow the members of the Senate deputation, as one of them put it, to "revise our thinking."

Several Senators evidenced annoyance over the turn of events. They had fought hard for restoration of funds cut by the House and were seeking to justify the Senate's position before the joint conference.

They recalled that President Eisenhower had called the House reductions a "needless gamble" with the nation's security.

Senate Added $971,504,000.

It was with that statement in mind that the Senate added $971,504,000 to the House version of the defense appropriation bill before sending it to conference.

Wilson's new estimate of requirements was $1,736,020,000 below the original request made by President Eisenhower in his budget last January. However, it was still $729,255,000 above the amount approved by the House.

House conferees headed by Representative George H. Mahon (Dem.), Texas, expected the reduced request to strengthen their case considerably for agreement on a final figure close to House-approved allowance. Senators were inclined to agree.

Wilson told the conferees in a letter that funds approved by the House for military personnel would be sufficient in view of the cutback that he ordered two days ago with President Eisenhower's approval. The Senate had added $57,000,000 under that category.

In addition, Wilson said, $85,149,000 of the funds restored by the Senate for operation and maintenance will not be needed.

Navy, Air Force Restorations.

He listed Senate restorations for Navy and Air Force procurement and for research and development as particularly desirable.

A table accompanying the letter showed that Wilson was now seeking $7,357,800,000 for the Army, $10,021,385,000 for the Navy and $16,314,100,000 for the Air Force.

The revised requests, compared with Senate-approved appropriations, represented reductions of $39,356,000 for the Army, $32,900,000 for the Navy and $69,993,000 for the Air Force.

In announcing the projected reduction in military personnel, Wilson said Tuesday that savings of $200,000,000 would result. There was no immediate official explanation of the apparent discrepancy between that figure and the fact that his new appropriations requests represented a reduction of only $142,249,000 below the funds voted by the Senate.

The Wilson order called for reduction of the planned strength of the armed forces to 2,700,000. The original budget request contemplated a build-up from the present strength of 2,790,954 to 2,800,000.

Symington Accuses Eisenhower of 'Irresponsibility.'

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, said today President Eisenhower has shown "incredible irresponsibility" by agreeing to cut defense funds again after demanding an increase from Congress.

Symington, former secretary of the Air Force, told the Senate that "within the space of a few weeks, he (Eisenhower) again reverses his position."

Recalling a nation-wide television and radio speech in which Mr. Eisenhower protested against House reductions in defense funds, Symington said:

"In May President Eisenhower said this reduction would be a 'fearful gamble,' that he has seen before the 'terrible consequences of such action' and that he did not want again to follow 'a foolhardy road.'

'MISS U.S.' ADMITS SHE IS MARRIED, LOSES HER TITLE

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 19 (AP)—The new Miss United States in the Miss Universe contest lost her title today and the right to compete further, because she is married. She also loses the thousands of dollars in prizes.

Leona Gage admitted this morning that she is the wife of an airman and mother of two children.

Leona came here as Miss Maryland, giving her home town as Glen Burnie, a Baltimore suburb. Actually she was married at 14 to Gene Norris Ennis, 28 years old, Air Force staff sergeant stationed at Friendship International Airport. The children are David Nathan, 2, and Gene Jr., 3.

Leona told contest officials she was single and 21. Other sources give her age as 18 and her marriage date as Feb. 3, 1953.

Miss Utah, Charlotte Sheffield, Salt Lake City blonde, will take over as Miss United States. Miss Utah was runner-up in the Miss U.S.A. finals last Wednesday night.

Miss Utah, however, will not compete in tonight's Miss Universe finals. Instead, the girl who was sixteenth in the semifinal judging last night will fill the spot. She is Miss Argentina, Monica Lama of Buenos Aires. Judges also named Miss Ohio, Kathryn Gabriel, 20, Cleveland, as the fifth girl in the Miss U.S.A. contest, filling the vacancy that had been left.

FIRST AIR-TO-AIR ATOMIC ROCKET FIRED IN NEVADA

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev., July 19 (AP)—The first air-to-air atomic rocket fired from a plane burst over the desert today with a flash that paled the morning sun.

The Air Defense Command's newest and most powerful weapon was launched at 7 a.m. from a Northrop F-89 Scorpion jet fighter. The vivid fireball flared in the target area at an altitude of more than 15,000 feet and sent up a pink doughnut-shaped cloud.

As the rocket's cloud rose into clear blue sky, the vapor trail of an airplane, probably the launcher, cut sharply away to the north.

Cloud Breaks Up.

The cloud assumed somewhat the shape of the usual atomic mushroom, but the crown quickly separated from the filmy stem and floated with a creamy white foam expanding from the pink center.

The burst was more than 13 miles from News Nob where observers were stationed. Within 10 minutes after the detonation the cloud was only a faint misty smudge in the sky over the hazy blue mountains rimming Yucca Flat.

When the rocket exploded, five defense command officers were on the ground directly beneath it to study blast and flash effects. They had no protection, none being considered necessary.

They Describe Experience.

They said later that their experience proved to be nothing unusual.

They were standing up looking off horizontally when the rocket went off. They came out of the blast area without even dust on their uniforms.

They said the explosion didn't even rock them but one of them commented that the heat wave "felt like when you open a furnace door for a moment."

Col. Bruce said: "My only regret is that we didn't have a thousand people out there to see just what the effect was. It's one of the best places to

SENATOR OFFERS 3 AMENDMENTS IN LINE WITH RUSSELL WISHES

Proposal to Bar Action by Attorney General Unless Local Authorities Request It Gains Support.

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Senator William F. Knowland of California, Senate Republican minority leader, offered three amendments today to shift the civil rights bill in the direction demanded by Southeern critics, but withheld action for the time on the hottest issue.

In addition to the three amendments formally introduced—rated as relatively minor—Knowland was reported to have a draft proposal which would allow the Attorney General to intervene in general civil rights cases only at the request of local authorities.

Knowland, leader of the forces trying to put the civil rights measure through, said he would have "clarifying amendments" to offer for the section of the bill covering action in fields other than voting rights, such as school integration.

Humphrey Holding Out.

Whether the final proposal would go as far as the draft was uncertain. Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, a leader of the Democratic forces backing Knowland on the legislation, indicated he would hold out for authority for the Attorney General to move in on civil rights enforcement at the request of private individuals as well as local authorities.

Meanwhile Senator Arthur V. Watkins (Rep.), Utah, a leading sponsor of the Administration civil rights measure, offered a substitute for section 3—the general civil rights portion of the bill—cutting the Department of Justice down to action on the request of authorities.

Watkins said that plan was discussed at a conference of Republican Senators today but no action was taken. He said he acted on his own and he was "just recognizing the practical situation."

Amendments Offered.

The amendments Knowland offered were in line with suggestions by Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem.), Georgia, leader of the opposition forces.

One would make the appointment of the executive director of a civil rights commission, which the bill would establish, subject to Senate confirmation.

Another would strike out a provision under which the commission could employ the services of "volunteer" workers.

The third would require the commission to report to Congress, as well as to the President.

Knowland said "No specific language has been worked out as yet" on the more controversial proposal, but he expected that to be done during the day in consultation with northern Democrats.

G.O.P. Senators Meet.

The announcement was made after a two-hour meeting of Republican Senators, which he said was given over to "general discussion" of the bill.

There were indications, however, that there had been some warm words in the closed session. Senator George D. Aiken of Vermont left in an obviously irritated mood, and told reporters:

"Some of these people don't want a civil rights bill. They want a campaign issue for 1958 and 1960."

Aiken has joined with Russell in an effort to amend the House-passed bill so it would be limited to assuring voting rights for Negroes and other minority groups.

"If they really want a civil rights bill they could get one in three days—by the middle of next week," Aiken said. "But some of them don't want a reasonable bill."

Aiken said some civil rights sponsors were "asking powers for the Attorney General that even Franklin D. Roosevelt never even thought of asking."

Democratic Dissatisfaction.

There is dissatisfaction among Democratic backers of the bill, too, over what they contend is the lack of clear position by the Administration.

Humphrey expressed this by saying President Eisenhower ought to make a clear-cut statement on the bill.

"One of the first places we need to get some agreement is on where the White House stands," Humphrey told reporters. He and some other backers of the bill have contended that Mr. Eisenhower's various comments on the bill have left the President's position cloudy.

"I want the Administration

Rhode Island Will Make Sure Fisherman Eisenhower Gets Bite

PROVIDENCE, R.I., July 19 (AP)—The Rhode Island fish and game division intends to make sure President Eisenhower gets a few fish on his Newport vacation next month.

Thomas Wright, division chief, said last night that a few big trout will be transplanted from the hatchery at Lafayette into streams in the Wood River reservation.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower are expected in Newport some time in mid-August for a three or four-week vacation.

The President sent along word through press secretary James C. Hagerty yesterday that he is "receptive" to a formal greeting. That probably would be conducted at the Old Colony court house now strictly a historic shrine but the building where the legislature once met and from whose steps such personages as George Washington and the Marquis de Lafayette have spoken.

Hagerty and his aids and advisers conferred at length with Mayor John J. Sullivan and other officials yesterday.

DEFENSE RESTS CLINTON CASE; PRESENTS ONLY SIX WITNESSES

Says it Wants to Avoid Consuming Any More Time — Final Arguments to Be Heard Monday Morning.

By SAM B. ARMSTRONG
National Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 19 —The defense in the trial of 11 segregationists rested today after putting only six witnesses on the stand.

Frederick John Kasper, a rabble-rouser from Washington, and 10 defendants from Clinton, Tenn., are charged with criminal contempt of court by failure to obey an injunction against interference with the Clinton High School program of desegregation. Maximum punishment would be six months in jail and a $1000 fine.

After two witnesses testified briefly this morning, defense counsel told United States District Judge Robert L. Taylor that "in order to avoid consuming any more time" the defense would rest. Court had been delayed for an hour while the defense lawyers conferred with their clients behind closed doors.

Serving of Kasper Order.

Ted White, former Clinton policeman, testified that he accompanied United States Marshal Frank Quarles last Aug. 29 when a temporary restraining order was served on Kasper at the courthouse in Clinton. By his testimony the defense sought to show that the court order was not fully read by the marshal.

Guy M. Jones, Clinton justice of the peace, asserted that everything was quiet around the high school prior to Dec. 4. Government witnesses, however, had told of mounting tension.

Court was adjourned until Monday morning, when final arguments will be heard. Each side will have four hours. The defense is to devote three hours to "the Clinton 10" defendants, and one hour to Kasper. District Attorney John C. Crawford Jr. said the government would need only one hour.

It is possible that the jury will be given its instructions late Monday, but more probably that will come Tuesday morning.

Presentation of defense testimony began yesterday after Judge Taylor denied a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal for the 10 Clinton defendants. Charges against four other defendants previously had been dismissed for want of evidence.

For [illegible] minutes she read names from the membership list—650 of them—to a somnolent courtroom. One uninhibited woman juror, in stocking feet, leaned back in her chair and leisurely picked her teeth—a picture of utter detachment.

'Religious Organization.'

It was the purpose of the defense to show that the White Citizens' Council, which others have called a stepchild of the Ku Klux Klan, included in its membership roles some of the creme de la creme of Anderson county citizenry. She said, in answer to questions, that it was a "religious organization," that it opened meetings always with a prayer and that religious songs were sung, some members bringing their song books to meetings. Although unalterably opposed to integration of schools, she testified, it was "against violence."

Frank Irwin, superintendent of Anderson county schools, testified that he had had a conversation with the Rev. Paul W. Turner, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Clinton, last Dec. 4, the day the minister escorted six Negro pupils into the school and was waylaid and beaten a few minutes later.

"I told Mr. Turner," Irwin testified, "that I felt the board had complied with the court order (for integration) when we opened the doors to the colored children and didn't believe we had any responsibility under the law to go up on the hill and bring the Negro children to school."

Request to School Board.

He testified that William H. Till, one of the defendants, and other segregationists appeared before the School Board to request that the board act to prevent integration but said they expected to find legal means of doing it.

Arguing in support of the motion for a directed verdict, J. Benjamin Simmons of Washington, counsel for Kasper, whose fee is being paid by the White Citizens' Council, did a bit of courtroom rabble-rousing.

"I think left-wingers and Communists have far firmer roots in the government than we have the nerve to admit," he told the court. "I think Joe McCarthy (the late Wisconsin Senator) was right. I think Joe McCarthy was a martyr in his cause."

Referring to civil rights legislation now before Congress, he went on:

"The federal courts are on trial today. Do we have two types of law—one for segregationists and one for integrationsists?

"The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Anti-Defamation League, the B'nai B'rith all have meetings. But when a White Citizens' Council holds a meeting, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents are there and the FBI is in on it."

Opponents of Charter

Charter Fight

active opponent of the charter proposal; Sheriff Martin L. Tozer and Coroner Patrick Taylor. Among the aldermen reported present, in addition to Cervantes, were Joseph P. Roddy, Clinton T. Watson, DeWitte Lawson, William C. Brady, T. H. Mayberry and Joseph F. Kavanaugh, Democrats, and Fred W. Haag, Republican.

Democratic ward committeemen at the meeting included Jordan W. Chambers, Matt O'Neill and Magistrate Anton Sestric. Republican city committee members included Ancel A. Skaggs and Mrs. Catherine Nelson.

Sendlein Presides.

Bruno Sendlein, former Republican State Representative and chairman of the anti-charter citizens group, presided.

He told the audience that "we are not against charter reform and we do not want to interfere with the city's progress, but we are against this charter because it is not for the welfare of most of the people."

Principal speaker was George W. Curran, attorney and district director of the National Federation of Independent Businesses. He contended the proposed charter, if adopted, would remove city government further from the people.

"All this cry of the proponents and the press to take government out of politics is really an effort to take control of government from the people," he declared.

Curran argued that the proposed 7-7-1 plan for the Board of Aldermen under the new charter would give the voters less representation in their government. He said each of the city's 28 aldermen now represents 30,000 persons, but that under the new plan the aldermen elected by districts of four wards each, would represent 120,000 persons.

Seven other aldermen and the board president would be elected at large.

'People to Lose Contact.'

"This means the people are going to lose direct contact with their aldermen," he said.

"It is going to take a lot of money for the eight aldermen who are elected at large to run for office. They will either have to be immensely wealthy, or they will be forced to line up with some faction, clique or group that is going to put up the money for them to run."

Curran also critiized provisions of the charter proposal under which traffic control problems would be assigned to a traffic engineer.

"We don't need a little Hitler or a magic wand to solve our traffic problems," he declared. "Our streets were laid out in horse and buggy days and are too narrow to meet today's needs. All we have to do is provide a few more wide thoroughfares to handle the heavy automobile traffic."

ALDERMAN A. J. CERVANTES

Noting that supporters of the charter proposal had charged that a "tricky" ballot was being used in the Aug. 6 election, Curran said "both proponents and opponents are going to have to use the same ballot."

He said the proponents were saying, in effect, that "people who vote against the charter are a lot smarter than those who will vote for it."

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, in a television talk last night, declared that the proposed new charter will place responsibility for traffic control in expert hands and "take it out of the field of special favor for those able to exert political pressure."

Speaking in support of the proposal on Station KWK-TV, Tucker pointed out that under the present charter, virtually all traffic regulations are the result of aldermanic action.

'Often Impeded.'

"Some of the aldermen's actions have improved the situation," he said, "but in many cases ordinances impede rather than help solve our traffic problems.

"I have always felt that our citizens, who pay to operate their city, want decisions based on the analysis and study of experts, regardless of the whims of a few who are able to exert political pressure."

In a statement yesterday, 22 St Louis Negro leaders announced their "unqualified" support of the proposed charter. They declared there was adequate assurance of Negro representation on the Board of Aldermen, and that the proposal would increase chances for passage of legislation prohibiting racial or religious discrimination in parks or public accommodations.

They pointed out that Negroes would be in a majority in two of the aldermanic ward areas set up under the new charter, and said: "Negroes will at least maintain their percentage of representation on the Board of Aldermen and probably increase it, through electing an alderman at large."

EXPRESS DRIVERS WILL RETURN TO WORK MONDAY

Railway Express Agency truck drivers here who have been on strike since April 21 will return to work Monday, following a settlement reached in New York yesterday affecting the drivers in St. Louis and six other cities.

A new contract which is to run until Oct. 31, 1959, calls for wage increases totaling 29 cents—15 cents immediately, retroactive to Jan. 16, 1956, and 7-cent increases Nov. 1 this year and next year. The union, the Teamsters, had demanded 30 cents.

Pete Saffo, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 610 here, was notified of the settlement late last night. Saffo said there would be a meeting tomorrow or Sunday, and that drivers would be on the job at 12:01 a.m. Monday.

St. Louis and Philadelphia drivers had voted to reject the company's offer, but it was accepted in Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, San Francisco and Newark, N. J. Both sides agreed before the voting that if the offer was accepted in a majority of the cities, it would apply to all the units.

The strike resulted in an embargo of express shipments to the cities involved. That is to be lifted as the men go back to work.

In addition to the wage increases in the contract, there is to be an additional 3 cents an hour immediately under a cost-of-living escalator clause. Prestrike wages were from $1.56 to $2.21 an hour.

BIG STORE SALES LAST WEEK 13 PCT. ABOVE 1956 LEVEL

Department store sales in the St. Louis area were up 13 per cent in dollar volume last week compared with the corresponding week last year, the Eighth District Federal Reserve Bank reported today.

A spokesman for the bank attributed the increase to major sales promotions last week. He said there were only minor sales promotions here in the comparable period last year.

Sales in St. Louis in the four-week period ending July 13 increased 5 per cent over those of the corresponding period last year. Sales in St. Louis for the year to date are the same as those in the corresponding period last year.

In the Eighth Federal Reserve District as a whole, sales increased 8 per cent last week compared with those in the comparable period last year.

Department store sales throughout the nation last week were 5 per cent higher than in the corresponding week of 1956.

2 MALLINCKRODT PLANTS RESUME OUTPUT MONDAY

Strike Still on at Weldon Spring—Meeting Set for Tuesday in Effort to Settle Dispute.

Operations at Mallinckrodt Chemical Works, which were shut down today following a strike of workers at the company's Weldon Spring plant, will be resumed Monday at the main plant at Second and Mallinckrodt streets and at the facility where uranium is refined for the Atomic Energy Commission at 65 Destrehan street, a union spokesman said today.

A union official pointed out that federal mediators will meet with the union and management Tuesday in an effort to settle the dispute. He reported:

"Picket lines were removed from Mallinckrodt plants in the city because of the meeting with the federal conciliators. We have all the hope of reaching an agreement at that meeting."

Some key workers were sent back to their jobs this afternoon.

Pickets at Weldon Spring.

Picket lines, however, will be maintained at the Weldon Spring plant, Pickard said. About 150 workers at this facility walked off the job in a contract dispute yesterday, delaying start of production of refined uranium.

John G. Moore, vice president of the company, said only a few of the concern's 1200 workers crossed picket lines today. The work stoppage halted the refining of uranium at the Destrehan street plant and the manufacture of chemicals for medicinal, pharmaceutical, laboratory, photographic and industrial uses at the main plant at Second and Mallinckrodt.

For several years the Destrehan street plant has processed raw uranium oxide, part of the product eventually going for military purposes and part for civilian use.

Construction Job Halts.

Construction of two other sections of the Weldon Spring plant, which will make its operation more diversified than the Destrehan street facility, was also halted when about 300 craft workers refused to cross the picket line.

Moore said office and technical workers were continuing to report for duty at all three plants.

William F. White, regional director of the service, said the disagreement over the initial contract at Weldon Spring involved wages, hours and working conditions.

Because of the involvement of the AEC, the federal mediators had sought unsuccessfully to avert the walkout at a meeting of company and union negotiators in St. Charles Wednesday, but the union members decided to carry out the strike which they had voted six weeks ago, a union spokesman said.

What Union Seeks.

Union members told a reporter negotiations for an initial contract began last January, with the union demanding a one-year contract with an increase of 15 cents an hour the first year, or a two-year agreement with 20-cent increases each year. The company is reported to have offered 15 cents an hour, provided the union eliminated a 15-minute daily overtime demand for clean-up and dressing.

Working without a contract, in preparing the plant for operation, union members were paid $2.24½ and $2.46½ an hour. Some of the production employes were transferred to Weldon Spring from the Mallinckrodt city plant, others being hired at the new plant, White said he was informed.

Makes 'Feed' Material.

An Atomic Energy Commission spokesman at Washington said the Destrehan street plant processes uranium tetrafluoride into "feed" material for shipment to Oak Ridge, Tenn., where it is converted by gaseous diffusion into uranium for weapons and other uses.

The plant also reduces uranium concentrates to uranium metal for shipment to other AEC installations, including the Hanford (Wash.) plant for use in reactors. Operations at the Weldon Spring plant will include the same functions when in operation.

The spokesman said AEC would make no comment on the St. Louis work stoppage so long as negotiations were in the hand of the Federal Mediation Service.

Should the mediation service report failure in its efforts to end the strike, the spokesman said, the matter would be turned over to the six-man Atomic Energy Labor-Management Panel, headed by Cyrus S. Ching.

A possible third step would be for the AEC to ask President Eisenhower to declare an emergency and invoke the Taft-Hartley Act. Then an inquiry board of three members would be appointed to investigate and report to the President, who could ask the Attorney General to seek a court restraining order.

FNMA CANCELS STOP-ORDER ON EAST SIDE MORTGAGES

The Federal National Mortgage Association will purchase mortgages on St. Clair and Madison County property that FNMA field agents approve after inspection, the federal agency's Chicago office announced today.

A temporary stop-order had been issued Wednesday for the purpose of enabling FNMA to study the marketability of mortgages in its portfolio, with respect to damage caused by the recent rainstorms. FNMA buys the mortgages from banks, savings and loan associations and other mortgage lenders, and in turn seeks to sell them to the "primary markets," such as large insurance companies.

A spokesman for the agency said the decision to accept mortgages on an individual inspection basis was not a modification of the original stop-order. He said the re-appraisal of the portfolio, for which the temporary halt was called, has been completed. The property involved escaped any extensive water damage, he said.

PAROLE BOARD SAID TO APPROVE LEOPOLD PLEA

Freedom for Roger Touhy Also Reported Recommended by Illinois Panel.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 19 (UP)—Illinois pardon and parole board members will recommend freedom for Nathan Leopold, it was reported today.

Reports also circulated that Stateville penitentiary's gates will swing open for another inmate, prohibition era gangster Roger (the Terrible) Touhy.

The five-man board met in a closed session yesterday, after which a spokesman said the Leopold case and an appeal for freedom by Touhy had been "disposed of."

Although the board's recommendations cannot be made public according to state law, speculation quickly spread through Springfield that Leopold and Touhy soon would be freed.

The Chicago Sun-Times, in a copyrighted story by John Dreiske, said Gov. William G. Stratton already had decided to reduce Leopold's term to 64 years, which means the 52-year-old killer of little Bobby Franks would be eligible for immediate parole.

The story said Stratton also would vacate a 199-year term imposed on Touhy for jail break, paving the way for his release.

The Chicago Tribune quoted board members as saying they would recommend "some leniency" for Leopold and Touhy.

Stratton, who returned here by plane last night from Washington, said he had not yet made up his mind in the cases of the two prisoners. However, he added he expected to announce his decision in about 10 days to two weeks.

Leopold, whose crime was one of the most notorious in American annals, pleaded last week for executive clemency, the only avenue to freedom he has left. Previous boards have rejected his appeals for parole.

Leopold and Richard Loeb, his wealthy and intelligent partner in crime, decided in 1924 to kidnap and kill the 14-year-old Franks boy just for thrills. Loeb died in a prison fight in 1936.

Leopold was sentenced to life plus 99 years, but former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson reduced his sentence to 85 years, making him eligible for parole.

Touhy, 50, a product of Chicago's slums, fought his way through the ranks of the underworld and became powerful enough to challenge the bootleg reign of Al Capone.

He was sentenced to 99 years in 1933 for the kidnaping of swindler John (Jake the Barber) Factor.

His sentence was increased to 199 years after he and six other inmates broke out of Stateville in 1942. United States District Judge John P. Barnes later ruled that Touhy's original conviction was based on a maze of lies and faked evidence.

AUDITOR SAYS UNIONISTS GAVE 'UNTRUE' SWORN REPORT ON FUNDS

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—An auditor testified today the president and secretary-treasurer of the United Textile Workers union gave him an "untrue" sworn statement as to their handling of $57,000 of union money actually used toward purchase of homes.

Eric G. Jansson, a Washington certified public accountant, told the Senate rackets investigating committee he was given the statement when he became "suspicious" because the union's financial accounts showed a sudden rash of checks totaling $74,500 made out to "cash" in the spring of 1952.

Lloyd Klenert, the secretary-treasurer, had testified earlier that $57,000 of the money was used to help pay for houses in suburban Washington which he and president Anthony Valente bought in May 1952.

Jansoon said he had investigated privately, and learned that $57,000 had gone to a Washington Title Co. to help pay for the two houses.

He said Valente claimed to have spent $57,000 of his own funds for organizational expenses, and told him he was reimbursing himself in this manner. He said the union chief claimed to have had the $57,000 in a safety box.

Amount Not Queried.

Jansson said he raised on question as to how a man earning $7500 or $8000 a year could have that much on hand.

"Around Washington I wouldn't dare ask that question," he said, because often a low-salaried husband has a high-salaried wife.

But later, he said, Valente and Klenert gave him a sworn statement that the $57,000 all had been used for "special organizational" efforts and he mentioned this in an audit report prepared for the union.

Jansson said that a month later, on Aug. 27, 1952, he met with the two union officers at their request. He said Valente showed him a $57,000 check from the title company through which the houses were bought, with a letter from this firm stating that the $57,000 had been deposited for purchase of a building, and was being returned because the deal fell through.

Jansson said he chose to believe the title company, and at their request handed back the signed copy of the affidavit but retained unsigned copies which the committee has subpenaed.

Chairman oJhn L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas), asked whether the check was not "clear evidence of the fact that the affidavit was not true."

"That is correct," Jansson replied.

Klenert had testified the money was entered on the union books as "organizational expense" but insisted there was nothing wrong with this.

It was, he said, just a "politically astute" means of concealing from a rival faction in the union "what would be termed a slush fund."

Klenert told the committee the union is not "out" any money from the deal.

He said the union's executive council had authorized him and Valente to employ some "lay-aside" device to conceal the fact from possibly dissident unionists that UTW had borrowed $95,000 from a bank in anticipation of a costly and "tremendous" organizational campaign.

"The board (council)," he said, "considered it politically astute to conceal the fact that we were creating what could be termed a slush fund."

Other Transactions.

Before the hearing began, committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Klenert would be asked also about the "alleged use of union funds in other transactions." Chairman McClellan used the figure $40,000 in referring to these other alleged transactions.

After Klenert told his story of the creation of the "slush fund," McClellan asked: "How in the world did you deduce they wanted you to buy private homes with it?"

Klenert said they did not make any such deductions, but "we (he and Valente) thought it would be a good way of holding it."

Klenert said the money came from $95,000 he had borrowed to establish the fund. He said the UTW posted $100,000 worth of Government bonds as security for the loan, expecting to need cash to buya new headquarters building and to meet heavy expenses in connection with its efforts to recruit dissidents he said were dropping out of the rival Textile Workers Union of America.

Still Rivals.

At this time—1952—the UTW was an AFL union and the rival Textile Workers Union of America was a CIO affiliate. The two unions have continued as rivals since the AFL and CIO merged.

Klenert said the UTW officers mistrusted some of the dissidents coming into their union, and did not want them to know about a "slush" fund for organizational purposes, but still wanted a lot of cash easily available.

Documents signed at the bank when the union borrowed the $95,000 said the loan was for purchase of a headquarters building. Klenert said he had no part in this and did not know the details, but his own understanding was that "we were going to need that much more for organizing."

Klenert said he and Valente then deposited the $95,000 with a Washington real estate man, who used $57,000 of it at their instructions for payments on their homes, got another $57,000 from the union and gave it to the real estate man. The real estate man, Martin Quigley, then returned $95,000 to the Union, he said.

Klenert said it was intended at first to use the $95,000 to buy a union headquarters, but that Quigley advised them the title to the property was "muddy" and not to "touch it with a 10-foot pole."

Klenert said the fact his home and Valente's together cost $95,000 "had nothing to do" with all this.

The witness insisted that in every step he had Valente had wanted to "make it crystal clear that $95,000 went out, $95,000 went in, and $57,000 went out and $57,000 went in."

He said "it may appear five years hence to have been rather inept" but that they considered it "astute" at the time.

Alphonse Calabrese, a committee investigator, testified that after a series of transactions, the $57,000 was listed in a union audit report as going for "organizational expenses."

France Meeting Algerian Rebels In Effort to Negotiate Peace

© New York Times News Service

PARIS, July 19.—France has begun secret contacts with Algerian Nationalists, arousing hopes here for possible negotiations to end the 32-month-old Algerian rebellion.

This was confirmed officially yesterday following publication by the French press of detailed accounts of recent talks with rebel leaders in Tunis by an emissary of Premier Bourges-Maunoury and Foreign Minister Christian Pineau.

Three Paris newspapers also said that "bitter-enders" in the government, reflecting the views of reactionary leaders of the Algerian European community, had attempted to sabotage the new conciliation attempt.

There were strong indications the rebel leaders were becoming less enthusiastic about "internationalizing" the dispute in the United Nations, recognizing that, for many years to come, Algeria would be dependent on France for much technical and material assistance.

Modified Basis for Talks.

Accordingly, they were reported to be disposed to modify somewhat their insistence on recognition of Algerian independence — a condition politically inacceptable for the French government—as a prerequisite to any discussions of a cease-fire. There was apparently well-founded speculation that a more flexible formula providing for ultimate nationhood might be acceptable to both sides as a basis for peace talks.

An official announcement confiremd the bare outlines of the facts reported by the press, stating that the Tunis contacts "have permitted the government to be better informed on the current attitude of the chiefs of the F.L.N. (National Liberation Front.")

According to accounts that agreed on all essential points, these were the circumstances of the Tunis soundings:

On July 5, Jean-Yves Goeau-Brissoniere, a member of the Foreign Minister's staff, arrived in Tunis ostensibly as an "observer" at the convention of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions taking place there.

Talks Authorized.

Prior to his departure, however, both Bourges-Maunoury and Pineau had authorized him to study the possibility of peace talks if he should "happen" to encounter leaders of the F.L.N. there.

Preliminary contacts with Rachid Abdel Kader, secretary general of the General Union of Algerian Workers and member of the F.L.N., led to two later meetings with three of the upper eschelon leaders of the rebel organization.

From these soundings the willingness of the F.L.N. leaders to talk without posing unacceptable preconditions emerged. Unauthorized to proceed further, Goeau-Brissioniere prepared to return to Paris to report and the rebel chieftains discussed the situation with Tunisian Premier Habib Bourguiba.

Bourguiba encouraged them to persevere and to do or say nothing to make French acceptance of peace talks more difficult. They agreed to dispatch Abdul Majid Chaker, a leader of Bourguiba's own Neo Destour party and a lawyer for Ahmed Ben Bella, one of five rebel leaders in French custody, to Paris to sound out Ben Bella and his companions on the idea of peace talks.

Pertinent Incident.

By coincidence, and unknown to each other, Goeau-Brissoniere and Chaker traveled to Paris on the same airplane, arriving July 11. Then occurred the incident that was interpreted here as a sign of a continuing struggle within the French government between the advocates of "hard" and conciliatory policies.

As he stepped off the plane, Chaker was arrested by agents of the French counter-espionage service.

Despite protests from Tunisian Ambassador Mohammed Masmoudi, and a promise by Pineau that the affair would be set right, Chaker was held overnight and his papers were seized and opened. Chaker was charged with "endangering the external security of the state" and released on his "own recognizance," but he was not permitted to see Ben Bella.

"One may ask," said a front page article in Le Monde, reviewing these events, "if there are not inside or outside the government forces that intend to block any search for conciliation, even unofficial."

KREMLIN CHIEFS AND BALKAN REDS MEET AT MOSCOW

LONDON, July 19 (AP)—A Moscow broadcast said last night a group of Communist leaders from Balkan countries held a "comradely meeting" in a villa outside Moscow.

It listed among those present: the first secretary of the Albanian Communist party, Enver Hoxha; the first secretary of the Bulgarian party, Zhivkov; and Edward Kardelj and Alexander Rankovic, deptuy chairmen of the Yugoslav executive council.

The broadcast said that Nikita Khrushchev, first secretary of the Soviet Communist party, attended, along with other Soviet leaders. Speeches were made by Khrushchev, Totto Kuusinen, a former head of the dissolved Comintern (Communist international) Kardelj, Rankovic, Hoxha and Zhivkov.

The broadcast said the get-together of important Balkan Communists—with their Soviet hosts — was also attended by "members of the leader's families." The party bosses' families do not usually attend such Communist meetings. The broadcast made the gathering sound like a Communist picnic.

WHITE HOUSE CONFIRMS PRESIDENT WROTE TO SAUD

WASHINGTON, July 19 (UP)—The White House today confirmed that President Eisenhower recently wrote a letter to King Saud of Saudi Arabia. It had been reported the letter was an effort to calm Saud's concern about United States support of Israel's right of navigation in the Gulf of Aqaba.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty would confirm only that the President sent a letter, but he had "no further comment" as to the purpose of the letter or its contents.

There were reports Mr. Eisenhower also has written other Middle Eastern leaders in an effort to calm the atmosphere of recently increased uneasiness in the region.

HOUSE VOTES ONE-THIRD CUT IN ECONOMIC AID

Backers Count on President's Appeal, Heavy Turnout to Reverse Deep Cut.

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The House today turned down President Eisenhower's request for a three-year loan fund for overseas aid projects.

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The House voted 155 to 74 today to slash one-third off the economic aid fund President Eisenhower asked to support defense programs of America's allies.

The standing vote, subject to a later rollcall, amounted to a reversal in a see-saw battle as the House began a day of showdown voting on Mr. Eisenhower's multibillion-dollar aid bill.

The House action would put a ceiling of $600,000,000 on the defense support fund for the coming year. Mr. Eisenhower originally sought $900,000,000 for this fund which he says is needed to shore up economies of poor, anti-Communist countries like Korea and Formosa which border the iron curtain.

At one point, the House had cut the figure to $500,000,000.

Then on an earlier vote today it voted to add $300,000,000, bringing the fund up to $800,000,000. (This action was taken on a 172-154 teller vote.

In a series of moves and countermoves today, Eisenhower supporters, then lost 101 to 149 a vote to hold the figure at $690,000,000. Then the final cutting move, by Representative Wayne Hays (Dem.), Ohio, trimmed the amount to $600,000,000.

The original decision to cut the fund to $500,000,000 was taken Wednesday on a 106 to 100 vote.

Mr. Eisenhower said that figure was so low as to be "a threat to our nation's security and that of the free world."

The House took up the bill where it left off Wednesday, having recessed yesterday without transacting any busines because of the death of Representative James B. Bowler (Dem.), Illinois.

After action on the defense support item the House turned down, 98 to 66, an amendment that would have denied aid to Yugoslavia. The amendment was offered by Representative Alvin M. Bentley (Rep.), Michigan.

Supporters of the amendment pointed out that Marshal Josip (Tito) Broz is a Communist and contended he would side with Russia in the event of a showdown between Communism and the free world.

Opponents said the matter of aid to Yugosalvia is not a question of whether we like Tito but whether strengthening Yugoslavia would weaken Russia. Refusal to aid Tito, they said, would leave him no choice but to turn to Russia for assistance.

At the start of the day, the bill carried $3,042,333,000 to aid other countries in the fiscal year which started July 1. This is $802,300,000 less than Mr. Eisenhower asked for.

In deep trouble was Mr. Eisenhower's request for a three-year loan fund for economic development projects abroad. The House Foreign Affairs Committee approved $500,000,000 for the fund for each of the next three years.

Representative Armistead I. Selden (Dem.), Alabama, led a widely-supported move to knock out the billion dollars for the second and third years. Others had in mind reducing the amount for the first year and leaving no authorization beyond that.

Russia Cold-Shoulders British Plan for Partial Arms Treaty

Zorin Not Enthusiastic About Speeding Action on Main Issues on Which Agreement Appears Possible.

LONDON, July 19 (AP)—Russia today cold-shouldered a British plan designed to speed East-West negotiations for a partial disarmament treaty, a British official source said.

(The United Press said Russia rejected the United States's offer to join the Soviet Union in cutting their armed forces to 1,700,000 men apiece unless the United States dropped its condition that certain improvements be made on ast-West political differences.)

The British plan had envisaged that experts of the five negotiating powers seek detailed agreements on the main elements of a disarmament pact—elements that already have, in the British view, been agreed to in principle.

These included reduction of force levels, cutbacks in armaments, air inspection and ground observation measures and a moratorium on nuclear weapons tests.

The British informant said Valerian Zorin of Russia without actually rejecting the proposal, gave what the British delegate described as a "disappointing reaction" to it.

Zorin's statement on the British plan was given at a 90-minute session of the subcommittee of the United Nations disarmament commission, which has been meeting here since March.

The British informant said Cmdr. Alan Noble, the British delegate, described Zorin's statement as "a negative reaction to eminently practical suggestions" which this country had put forward to speed the work of the U.N. group.

Bar on Space Weapons.

By the United Press.

The United States is ready to renounce the intercontinental ballistic missile provided Russia subscribes to a foolproof system of control, authoritative sources said.

The sources said United States delegate Harold E. Stassen hoped to present a long-range plan for shelving potential space weapons at the London disarmament conference next week.

The sources said a draft of the American missile control plan has been circulated for study by the Western delegates at the conference.

While the details have not been disclosed, the sources said the plan followed the broad lines of the statement by Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge when he first broached the idea of missile control to the United Nations General Assembly last Jan. 14.

Lodge called then for a "first step" of "international inspection and participation" in all testing of intercontinental missiles, artificial earth satellites, long-range unmanned weapons and "space platforms."

He said this should lead to a system that would insure all future development of "objects to be propelled through outer space" would be "devoted exclusively to peaceful and scientific purposes."

The sources said specific proposals have been worked out since and were approved by President Eisenhower in conferences with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Stassen and top defense officials in Washington last May 25.

Summary of Proposal.

According to the sources, key points of the new plan included:

1. Renunciation of military missile development would be contingent on continuing improvement of East-West relations and success of an overall step-by-step disarmament program.

2. The United States would reserve the right to resume military missile development if it found itself endangered by worsening international conditions. This condition already applies to other steps in existing Western conventional disarmament plans.

3. Defensive short-range missiles for tactical and anti-aircraft use would not be affected.

4. Detailed control and inspection systems would have to be agreed and installed by the major powers before a renunciation of missiles for military use takes full effect.

The sources said it might take several years to work out an effective control plan. They said control of such outer-space missiles would be far more complicated than for any other types of armaments.

They noted missile-type nuclear warheads already are in existence and said it would prove extremely difficult to prevent any nation which desired from secreting them for a future war.

CONGRESSMEN ASSAIL ZHUKOV, OPPOSE VISIT

They Say Invitation to 'Butcher of Budapest' Would Hamper U.N. Action on Hungary.

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Several members of the House today denounced Soviet Defense Minister Georgi M. Zhukov as "the butcher of Budapest" and said it would be a calamity if he were invited to the United States.

A Republican, Representative Alvin M. Bentley of Michigan, brought up the matter of a possible visit by Zhukov to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson.

President Eisenhower indicated Wednesday he thinks some good might be accomplished if Zhukov, his World War II military colleague, visited the United States.

In House debate on the foreign aid bill, Bentley offered an amendment to bar aid to Yugoslavia, saying there was talk that an invitation to Marshal Josip (Tito) Broz might be renewed after Congress adjourns. Plans to have Tito come here for a state visit collapsed because of congressional opposition last year.

"Apparently we may be honored also by a visit from Marshal Zhukov," Bentley went on, saying he wanted the word "honored" to be put in quotation marks.

"It would be very unfortunate for the individual who rightly bears the title Butcher of Budapest to be invited to this country for any reason, no matter how distinguished his military record in the Soviet army."

Representative Walter H. Judd (Rep.) of Minnesota said he agrees, and that "when a United Nations commission declared the action in Hungary to be butchery, it seems to be unthinkable to consider inviting the butcher."

Bentley said he thinks such an invitation would make it "almost impossible" for United States delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. to press in the U.N. General Assembly for action on the commission report.

Representative Wayne Hays (Dem.) of Ohio said he agreed with what had been said, but "you don't have to argue with anybody in the House about inviting Zhukov. He's not the friend of anybody here. It would be the President that would invite him."

In the Senate, Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas, said, "If we are to invite the Russian leaders here for a visit, I do hope some one will brief the President on some answers to Zhukov's arguments and inform him about the values of our free system of society other than the freedom to buy whatever gadget appeals to us at the moment.

Air Target Causes Death.

FULTON, N.Y., July 19 (AP)—An Air Force gunnery target broke loose from a jet plane yesterday and fell across high tension power lines, and caused the death of Cecil Barton, of nearby Palermo. He was killed when he apparently stumbled on a wire.

ARTHUR MILLER FINED $500, PUT ON PROBATION

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Playwright Arthur Miller was fined $500 and given a one-month suspended jail term today for contempt of Congress.

United States District Judge Charles McLaughlin imposed the sentence on Miller, who is the husband of actress Marilyn Monroe. He turned down a new motion asking a reversal of the playwright's conviction.

Miller stood erect before the judge and said "I do not, sir," when asked whether he had anything to say in advance of sentencing.

In lieu of serving 30 days in jail, Judge McLaughlin ordered that Miller be placed on probation for three months. His attorneys promptly started proceedings to appeal the case.

Miller was allowed to remain in the custody of his attorney, Joseph L. Rauh, while an appeal bond of $1000 was being arranged.

Judge McLaughlin rejected Rauh's contention that Miller should be acquitted in the light of a recent order of the United States court of appeals here throwing out the conviction of Marcus Singer, Cornell University zoology professor, in a similar case.

In overturning Singer's conviction, the appellate court cited the Supreme Court's June 17 decision striking down the contempt of Congress conviction of John T. Watkins, a labor organizer of Rock Island, Ill. That opinion put limits on the questions that can be asked by congressional committees.

Judge McLaughlin convicted Miller May 31 of unlawfully refusing to answer two questions before a House subcommittee on Un-American Activities in June 1956. The questions dealt with the identity of persons with whom Miller said he attended meetings of Communist writers in New York in 1947.

June 28 Judge McLaughlin, acting on the basis of the Watkins decision, threw out one of the two counts on which he had convicted Miller. He rejected Miller's plea for acquittal on the other count on the grounl Miller failed to object to the question involved.

25 PCT. OF BRITAIN'S DRUG ADDICTS DOCTORS, NURSES

LONDON, July 19 (AP)—An official British medical report says more than 25 per cent of the few known narcotics addicts in Britain are doctors or nurses.

It adds that apart from a small number of dance-band musicians there is no significant number of addictions in other occupational groups. The report submitted to the United Nations under the international narcotics convention lists 333 known drug addicts in all Britain.

AURORA MAYOR'S WALLOP CARRIES TERRIFIC REBOUND

AURORA, Ill., July 19 (UP)—Mayor Paul Egan punched a fellow council member, got a ticket for speeding, accidentally locked himself in a washroom, and had a flat tire.

A short time later, a police-

That was yesterday. Today he went to jail rather than post $200 bond on the assault and battery charge. He was housed in the women's section of the city jail, but the other cells were empty.

Slugged was Commissioner William B. Robertson, who nursed a bruised left eye. The altercation occurred when the mayor and four council members weer discussing a suit Egan instituted to oppose the sale of city land to the Y.M.C.A. man stopped Egan after a five-block chase and said he was doing 51 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone.

"I clouted one of my aldermen and I'm in a hurry to get a lawyer," Egan explained.

The understanding policeman allowed Egan to proceed to Chicago, but kept the mayor's driving license in place of bond.

In his "hurry" to get to Chicago, Egan stopped at a gasoline station and accidentally locked himself in a washroom. A half-hour later he emerged and was back on the road once more.

Then he had a flat tire. Hours after he set out, he arrived in Chicago and obtained a lawyer.

Killed By Thief

The man had his paycheck of $67.50 and about $2 in cash at the time of his arrest. Police planned today to question the friend he took home from work.

The Rev. Daniel P. Stretch, assistant pastor at St. Teresa's Church, said Woods had been in World War I and had a disability pension. When he did not sleep in the basement of the church, Father Stretch said, he slept under the side steps of the church.

"I have seen him bundled up in army overcoats sleeping under the steps in the coldest weather," Father Stretch said. "When you asked him about it, he would always reply: 'How about the boys in the trenches?' "

Woods was "sort of an institution" around St. Teresa's Church, the priest said. All the children liked him, and although his clothes were ragged and dirty, he would not associate with bums in the neighborhood, he added.

"He was the unofficial watchman around the church," Father Stretch said. "We've had a lot of thefts and old Harry stayed up many nights to watch for burglars. You couldn't bluff him. He wasn't afraid of anything."

Woods had two half-brothers, George Bewen, 3129 Lemp avenue, and Edward Bewen, 3027 Texas avenue, neither of whom had seen him for several years. Edward Bewen said Woods had been in St. Louis State Hospital and in a veterans' hospital in Illinois for mental illness.

U.S. Gets Bookie's $127,000.

NEWARK, N.J., July 19 (UP)—A federal judge here awarded $127,000, confiscated from a convicted bookmaker, to the Internal Revenue Service yesterday. Judge William F. Smith, reversed a superior court decision which awarded the money to Bergen county following a raid on the home of Leo Link, now serving a prison term for bookmaking and tax evasion.

WILSON ACCEPTS SERVICE RIVALRY AS 'FACT OF LIFE'

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson today accepted rivalry among the armed forces as "a fact of life." He told the services they could air their disputes as long as they protect security and behave like members of a team.

"I do not think it possible, through issuance of a directive, to legislate good judgment," the Pentagon boss said.

Wilson's comments on the futility of trying to suppress interservice rivalry were contained in a publication which he said completed Pentagon action on recommendations made by a committee charged with studying the whole range of defense information and military security.

The major part of the final action consisted of cancellation of several dozen eariler directives and instructions having to do with security and in lumping them together in one master directive.

Wilson adopted a recommendation by the security committee, which was headed by former Assistant Secretary of Defense Charles Coolidge, to take "vigorous measures" against leakage of secrets through private industry doing military business.

Wilson said in a memo attached to his master directive that contractors must be "made acutely aware" of the gravity of industry disclosures of secret information. He instructed the military services to investigate vigorously any such leaks and, if the facts justify, to withdraw security clearances from the offending contractors.

"In extreme cases," he authorized the services to "deny a company an opportunity to participate in future government contracts."

Wilson also agreed with a committee recommendation which urged the Pentagon to "cease to do the impossible and stop classifying information which cannot be held secret."

In that area he gave his assistant secretary for public affairs authority to modify or reclassify outright information about weapons that already have been exposed to public view.

An older directive, now modified by Wilson, has been used in the past to suppress information about new airplanes after they were moved out of the hangars and test-flown within the view of thousands of civilians.

The master directive also took note of committee criticism that far too much information is classified and that sometimes security restrictions are placed on information solely for the purpose of covering up mistakes and preventing embarrassment to officials.

Barred by New Rules.

The new rules specifically forbid such practices, noting that one of the reasons why it has proved so difficult to protect matters which should be protected is that far too much information has been classified.

The new directive also appears to limit the number of civilian and military officers authorized to impose top secret and secret classifications. It says the authority to use the two highest security classifications cannot be delegated. There was no immediate estimate, however, of the number of people authorized to order top security classifications under either the old or the new systems.

Wilson acted on portions of the Coolidge committee's recommedations in March. At that time he specifically rejected a committee proposal under which reporters could have been hauled before grand juries and forced to reveal sources of information.

Atomic Test

observe such an atomic explosion that I can think of."

The defense command officers underwent the experience to illustrate what effect an atomic rocket blast of this type would have no civilian populations which might be beneath it during war.

The Air Defense Command declared the firing was "fully successful, including accuracy and effects experiments."

The pilot of the launching plane, Capt. Eric Hutchison of Webster City, Iowa, said he and his radar observer, Capt. Alfred Barbee of Wild Rice, N. D., felt "very little physical effect from the shock of the rocket's detonation."

He said that although the plane was banking to the left in a swift escape maneuver, the flash was "quite noticeable." He said the plane encountered "little more than normal turbulence" as the shock wave hit it.

He expressed the opinion that the escape maneuver followed in today's test could be emulated successfully under combat conditions.

The crewmen of the launching plane said they were about a mile distant when the rocket exploded.

The launching plane was the leader in a formation of three jets. The rocket was the Genie, manufactured by Douglas Aircraft Co.

Power of the weapon was announced only as "well below nominal." A nominal bomb is rated as the energy equivalent of 20,000 tons of TNT.

Lt. Gen. J. H. Atkinson, commander of the Air Defense Command, disclosed before the test that air-to-air rockets with atomic warheads already were in the inventory of his force. The weapons are designed to knock down invading bombers.

Gen. Atkinson said defense command planes did not carry these weapons but they could be put into use in a matter of minutes.

The program to develop the nuclear air-to-air rocket has been in progress since 1949 and many tests have been run on the atomic device and the rocket. Today, however, was the first time one has been launched from a plane at a stated target.

The target in this test was a predesignated point in space, the exact altitude and distance from the launching plane of which were not disclosed.

Gen. Atkinson said, "This test firing was designed to collect certain important weapon-effects data on a known warhead at a stated distance."

ESTATE PUT AT $3,312,036

AKRON, O., July 19 (AP)—An appraisal filed yesterday in Summit county probate court sets the value of United States assets in the estate of Clara B. Ritchie at $3,312,036.

Miss Ritchie, daughter of Samuel J. Ritchie, once known as the "nickel king" of Canada, has willed the bulk of her estate to the Western Reserve Historical Society of Cleveland and to Akron City Hospital. She died last Dec. 14 at the age of 87.

VANDALS CAUSE SERIOUS DAMAGE IN CITY'S PARKS

Serious damage has been caused by vandals to each of 12 comfort stations built recently in city parks and playgrounds, Mrs. Edward G. Brungard, director of public welware, said today at a meeting called to formulate plans for curbing misuse of parks and playgrounds in the St. Louis area.

Damage to each building has amounted to "at least 25 per cent" of the $14,000 construction cost, she said.

As examples of vandalism, she cited instances in which a wash stand was pried loose from a wall and heavy wooden beams were used to break structural glass bricks. At Cherokee park, she said, a plastic material used instead of glass was broken by vandals who forced their way into a building.

Most serious damage is caused by young persons between 17 and 20 years old, "a few of whom seem to go on a real destruction binge," Mrs. Brungard said. Reprisal damage often occurs at night after youths in this group have been reprimanded during the day, she said. Other damage is caused by pranksters and neighborhood thieves, she said.

Pointing out that the city has summer recreational programs at 47 of the city's 75 parks, Mrs. Brungard said: "We are not worried about the children we reach with our daytime programs, but are about those we don't reach in the daytime and who come to visit us in the dark of night." She said vandalism was not confined to any geographical section of the city and occurred throughout the year.

Plans for a long-range public problem was failure of the Board of Education to co-operate with the city in planning recreation services. She said there were no parks in the area between Page boulevard, Delmar boulevard, Pnion boulevard and Hodiamont avenue. The schools would not permit the recreation department to put school playgrounds and fields at Harris Teachers' College and Soldan High School to neighborhood use, she charged.

"We have finally gotten our foot in the door to use school buildings for recreational purposes at a minimum rental," she said, citing a program to serve the Clinton-Peabody housing project.

Mrs. Brungard also criticized the St. Louis Housing Authority for building projects without consultation about recreational facilities. "In three cases they did not think about us until projects were finished. Then they told us there are 3000 children who need recreational facilities," she said.

Edward H. Beumer, an assistant superintendent of the city schools, reported vandals have created "a serious problem" by damaging school buildings. He could not supply an estimate of the value of property harmed.

The Rev. James T. Curtin, director of Catholic high schools, said about 110 parochial schools in the city had little difficulty with vandals. One reason for this is that priests and nuns are near the buildings at all hours, providing a measure of supervision, he said.

Ozie S. Flagg, director of Carver House, asked Beumer why the schools did not have night watchmen, since private firms have watchmen to protect similarly valuable property. Beumer indicated the cost of hiring more men had prevented this.

Police Inspector James F. Thompson declared the introduction of one-man squad cars had greatly improved police protection in city parks. James Heath, city director of recreation, questioned the wisdom of providing watchmen at all city parks. He said it would cost at least $187,500 a year to precent property damage of about $20,000 a year.

Ian Crowder, superintendent of parks, declared the present three-shift squad of 25 park patrolmen was insufficient to meet park needs. He suggested the hiring of about six more men to increase protection.

Mrs. Brungard said a major educational program intended to reduce misuse of parks and playgrounds were discussed at the meeting, which was called by the Metropolitan Youth Commission and attended by officials of St. Louis and St. Louis county and representatives of schools, churches and youth agencies.

Mrs. Arthur Stockstrom, commission chairman, said it was hoped that the program would contribute to "better and wider use" of parks and recreational facilities.

She said the commission had been asked by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews to take the lead in developing a community-wide park preservation program.

Other factors cited as emphasizing the need for preservation of park facilities were damage resulting from storms this year, increased costs of maintenance and limited operating budgets.

The meeting was held at the Central Public Library.

Rights Debate

to come down out of the stratosphere and tell us where it stands," Humphrey said.

He maintained that Democrats fighting for passage of the bill "have a right to expect a statement" either from President Eisenhower or Attorney General Brownell.

Humphrey said he and other Northern Democrats conferred last night with Knowland but see "no definitve agreement" on any language to modify the most controversial part of the House-passed bill. This was a reference to section 3.

Southern opponents of the bill contend this section could be used to force school integration and other "comingling" of the races in the South.

Co-Sponsors Amendment.

Humphrey already has joined with Knowland in offering an amendment to this part of the bill to repeal and old Reconstruction era law authorizing the President to employ troops to carry out court orders in civil rights cases.

He said that "in no case would I retreat" beyond amending this section to bar the Attorney General from instituting court action except upon the request either of local authorities or private individuals.

Southerners have protested that under the bill as it now stands the Attorney General could seek injunctions on behalf of individuals regardless of whether they wanted him to do so, or even against their will.

Senator Clinton Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, and Aiken have offered an amendment to strike section 3 from the bill altogether.

Modifications of Section 3 are designed to dampen sentiment for eliminating it. Its removal would limit the bill largely to a measure for the protection of voting rights.

Authority for the Attorney General to obtain injunctions against violations of voting rights is provided in a separate section of the bill.

Under both sections, persons accused of disobeying injunctions obtained by the Government could be jailed for contempt of court without a jury trial.

Limited Jury Trials.

Senator Joseph Clark (Dem.), Pennsylvania, a supporter of the bill, said it would be "inadvisable" to provide for jury trials in all contempt proceedings arising under the legislation.

He suggested in a prepared Senate speech, however, that juries might be impaneled to make findings of fact in criminal contempt cases, provided the jury were selected without discrimination because of race or color.

Speaking in support of Section 3 of the bill, Clark said that "either the Fourteenth Amendment, as presently construed by the Supreme Court, is a part of the supreme law of the land and therefore required to be enforced, or else it is not."

Clark said opponents of the bill "are defending a caste system" but that new forces in the world "seeking freedom and democracy" are against them.

Senator Jacob Javits (Rep.), New York, spoke at length yesterday in opposition to eliminating Section 3 of the bill or "any substantial weakening" of it.

Like Clark, he said it was designed to carry out "the responsibilities of the nation under the Fourteenth Amendment."

FILLING STATION MANAGER ROBBED OF $100 BY 3 MEN

Edward Young, manager of a filling station at 3635 Chouteau avenue, reported he was robbed of $100 early today by three men, one of whom threatened him with a pistol.

Young told police the three drove in shortly after 1 a.m. A man in the back seat pointed the pistol at him and demanded the money. When he gave it to the man, they sped away.

Police found an abandoned automobile, which had been reported stolen, a short distance from the station. They believe it was used in the holdup.

DENIES SHIFT IN JET CONTRACT COST 25 MILLION

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Roy T. Hurley, head of the Curtiss-Wright Corp. described today as "ridiculous" a Congressman's $25,000,000 estimate of the cost of transferring a jet engine overhaul contract from General Electric to Curtiss-Wright.

Hurley testified before a House Armed Services subcommittee inquiring into aircraft engine production costs and profits. Committee Chairman F. Edward Hebert (Dem.), Louisiana, had estimated the contract transfer cost the Government $25,000,000 instead of the $3,000,000 Hurley had figured.

Hurley, president and board chairman of Curtiss-Wright, said Hebert's estimate was a "complete surprise to me."

He added that he could find no way in which the estimate could be applied to the contract. Hebert has refused to give the basis of his estimate, but said he would bring the facts out Monday in questioning Air Force representatives.

Air Secretary's Letter.

Representative William E. Hess (Rep.), Ohio, read into the record a letter from Secretary of the Air Force James Douglas saying the Air Force had allowed $1,300,000 as the "facilitation cost" in June 1956 of transferring the J-47 jet engine overhaul contract from the General Electric plant at Evendale, O., to a Utica (Mich.) plant leased by Curtiss-Wright.

Hess had asked the Air Force whether there had been favoritism in transferring the engine overhaul contract to a "standby facility of a manufacturer not engaged in production."

Douglas said at the time of the contract award the engine overhaul rate was increasing because of heavy bomber and fighter production, and the change was not expected to reduce activity at the General Electric plant.

Hurley, the first witness, reported the highest pay in the industry last year, a salary of $277,190 before taxes.

Hebert said the shift was ordered by Mansfield D. Sprague, then general counsel of the Defense Department and now an Assistant Secretary.

Hurley conceded that he refused to take over the Utica plan until he had been provided a complete list of the automobile company's contracts with the Government. Hurley explained that bankers financing the $35,000,000 investment in Studebaker-Packard required this information.

Hurley said that when Curtiss-Wright moved into Studebaker-Packard, it was "bailing out" the auto firm in response to both public and Government needs to keep Studebaker-Packard going.

He said that although there are claims that 800 General Electric employes lost jobs in the Cincinnati area due to the transfer, the transaction saved 30,000 jobs for Studebaker-Packard employes.

'Feast or Famine.'

Hurley told the committee more than 65 per cent of his company's earnings now come from non-defense business, and military aircraft engine business has not been too satisfactory. Military business is a "feast or famine" affair, he said.

It was brought out that Curtiss-Wright advanced 12 years of rent to Studebaker-Packard for the Utica plant, and that a contract for a new overhaul assignment is being negotiated. The original 500-engine job is near completion.

Hurley said military procurement regulations "tend to eliminate competition, create vested interests and retard engine development."

He complained that in response to military needs an aircraft engine company after a period of austerity is expected to expand rapidly and license its products to non-aviation engine companies. Then, he said, the new firms remain in the business to compete.

Hurley said something should be done to encourage military contractors to provide their own facilities, and to recognize the cost of such facilities in the price of the product.

Gain in Net Worth.

The committee received evidence that Curtiss-Wright increased its net worth by more than 50 per cent during five years of selling mostly to the Government. The firm submitted figures showing a jump from $120,620,532 in 1952 to $183,336,612 in 1956.

But, in submitting more than 500 pages of data about its operations, the big aircraft firm indicated its non-Government business was increasing and it made higher profits on commercial sales than on Government sales.

The subcommittee, studying military aircraft engine purchases by the Air Force and Navy totaling about 2¼ billion dollars a year, says it wants to find out whether engine manufacturers are getting excessive profits, whether money can be saved in these engine purchases and whether the contracts protect government interests.

EX-REDS SAY THEY CAN GET SECRETS ON LEASED WIRES

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Two communications workers told a House Un-American Activities subcommittee today it was possible to obtain confidential Government messages sent on leased wires.

The witnesses, both admitted former Communists, were Anthony Solga, Scotch Plains, N.J., a radio operator for RCA; and Samuel Rothbaum, Far Rockaway, Long Island, N.Y., an employe of Western Union.

Solga said it was "potentially possible" to make copies of confidential messages. Rothbaum said a communications worker could copy the substances of messages.

Rothbaum also said a saboteur could inflict "quite a big" amount of damage on the communications industry but he would not say it would be easy.

The subcommittee headed by Representative Clyde Doyle (Dem.), California, has been holding a series of hearings on Communist influences in communications.

Both Solga and Rothbaum testified they had been members of the Communist party for several months in 1938. They were in the communications industry at the time, they said.

Solga named six other persons he knew as Communists at the time. Rothbaum named four. All those listed were identified either as communications workers at the time or connected with the American Communications Association, a union expelled from the CIO in 1950 on the ground that it followed the Communist party line.

The subcommittee will resume its hearings July 29.

THREE AIRLINERS LAND BECAUSE OF BOMB HOAX

BOSTON, July 19 (AP) — Three airliners carrying more than 100 passengers made emergency landings in widely separated spots last night because of a bomb hoax.

Three Air France Constellations were in the air when a woman telephoned the line's reservation desk at Idlewild airport in New York and said a bomb was on one of its planes.

One Constellation landed here. Another, bound for Mexico City, came down in Montgomery, Ala., and a third at Sydney, N. S., for precautionary checks of cargoes and baggage. No bomb was found.

The plane which landed in Boston was about 50 minutes out of New York, bound for Paris, when it received radioed orders to land in Boston. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, state police and customs men searched the plane after 59 passengers had been hustled off.

Later a fluoroscope was used to examine the baggage.

SPECIAL POWERS VOTED TO COMBAT ALGERIAN REVOLT

PARIS, July 19 (AP)—The National Assembly today voted special powers to the government to fight the nationalist rebellion in Algeria and the wave of Algerian violence within France itself.

The vote of 280 to 183 with 29 abstentions constituted a victory for Premier Bourges-Maunoury, who had risked his government by making the issue one of confidence.

Bourges-Maunoury called for a confidence vote when the Assembly emasculated a government proposal with so many amendments that at one point even the proponents voted against it.

The assembly on Wednesday voted 337 to 177 for renewal of the special powers in Algeria, but this decision was in effect reopened by the dispute over police powers in France.

The special powers proposal would expand the government's authority in dealing with persons convicted of "acts against the security of the state" and other aspects of the Algerian revolt in France.

LIE TEST FOR DR. SHEPPARD FAVORED BY OHIO GOVERNOR

COLUMBUS, O., July 19 (AP)—Gov. C. William O'Neill said today he was willing to grant a lie detector test to Dr. Samuel Sheppard.

Counsel for Dr. Sheppard, serving a life term for the bludgeon killing of his wife, Marilyn, said Dr. Sheppard is willing to take a lie test.

Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, who participated in Sheppard's futile appeal to the Supreme Court, reported the former Cleveland osteopath's decision after an hour-long conference in the Ohio penitentiary.

The conference followed a confession by Donald Wedler in Florida that he clubbed a Cleveland woman about the same time that Marilyn Sheppard was murdered in her Bay Village home near Cleveland the morning of July 4, 1954.

NAVY TURNCOAT BALLOON

YOKOSUKA, Japan, July 19 (AP)—A United States Navy weather balloon released from Iwakuni air station with 675 pounds of scientific equipment in its gondola switched course today and headed for Communist China.

The Navy said the turncoat, when last heard from, was drifting toward Foochow, on the south China coast.

Kite Hazard.

VANCOUVER (AP)—Control tower operators at Vancouver International Airport say that with the advent of fair weather, high-flying kites may plague aircraft. Said one: "If those things got fouled up in a jet there would be an awful mess."

DEATH SENTENCE IS STAYED PENDING BLAIR'S RECOVERY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 19—A stay of execution of Thomas Erwin Moore of Kansas City, under sentence to die in the gas chamber in the state penitentiary here July 26, was ordered yesterday by Acting Gov. Edward V. Long.

Lt. Gov. Long, sitting as Governor in the absence of Gov. James T. Blair, said the Governor had asked him to stay the execution date until Blair returns to Missouri and can give the case further consideration.

Blair is convalescing from a prostate gland operation in Rochester, Minn. He is not expected to return to his office until the end of July. The stay is until Sept. 13.

OPPOSES P.S. CO. REQUEST

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 19—A protest against the request of Public Service Co. of St. Louis for permission to discontinue weekly passes on busses and streetcars was filed by the City of University City with the Missouri Public Service Commission today. The company requested the authority last week as an economy measure to help offset higher labor costs.

BEN-GURION SAYS NASSER BLOCKED U.S. PEACE EFFORT

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, July 19 (AP)—An abortive try for an Israel-Arab peace settlement by "the head of a certain great power" was disclosed last night by Prime Minister Ben-Gurion. Informed sources said he referred to President Eisenhower.

Speaking of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's political actions in an address to the Zionist General Council, Ben-Gurion said:

"In case of need the Egyptian dictator is quite capable of speaking to Foreign journalists in the moderate language of a peace lover.

"But when the head of a certain great power made an attempt to bring about a peace settlement between Israel and Egypt, and for that purpose sent a special emissary to these countries, and when the government of Israel lent all possible support to these efforts, the envoy returned from Cairo with empty hands and with the clear knowledge that the Egyptian dictator had no intention of making peace with Israel."

The prime minister added that "we would not hesitate for a moment to make a peace treaty with the Arab countries, although not one of them has a true democratic regime."

RESCUE ATTEMPT FAILS, BROTHERS DROWN IN RIVER

Michael and Thorman Jowett, brothers, drowned when Thorman tried to rescue Michael yesterday from the Mississippi river opposite Alton.

They were the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Jowett, 2203 Benton street. The drownings occurred when Michael, 15 years old, waded into the swift current in an effort to free a fishing line. When he got into difficulty, Thorman, 13, tried to go to his aid, and both boys were swept under.

The boys had been fishing at a point about 500 yards downstream from Clark bridge. They were on an outing with an uncle, Edward Chesniak, 1535½ Benton street, and a friend, Gene Lawson, 2228 Benton.

Chesniak had gone to a station wagon to get sandwiches when Michael waded about 20 feet into the river to try to clear the fouled fishing line. Rivermen said a submerged dike makes the river current swift and the water rough at that point.

Both Good Swimmers

Thorman apparently saw that his older brother was being swept away, and tried to get to him. The family said both boys were good swimmers.

Their cries for help were heard by Albert W. Saladin, 2213 Kienlen avenue, Pine Lawn, and Darrell Smith, Jerseyville, who were a considerable distance away, resting after a swim. They made a vain attempt to reach the boys.

"When we first heard the shouts, we believed the boys were only playing," Saladin said, "because three men fishing near them were not doing anything. When we realized there was trouble, we ran up there and tried to help, but the current was too strong.

"In the water, I saw only one boy. I managed to hold him for a second and then he was gone."

The body of Thorman Jowett was recovered by the Alton Volunteer Emergency Corps about 5 p.m., approximately three hours after the tragedy. Search was continuing for the body of his brother.

Michael was a student at Central High School, and Thorman was in Blair school. The Jowetts have three other children, Joan, 8; July, 6, and Vernie, 3.

WORTMAN JURY RECESSES AFTER TESTIMONY BY 26

A federal grand jury investigating the financial affairs of Frank (Buster) Wortman, East Side gang boss and gambler, recessed yesterday at East St. Louis after hearing 26 witnesses in three days. The inquiry will be resumed Thursday.

Among 12 witnesses who testified yesterday were several gamblers arrested last May in raids by agents of the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Service. Twenty-seven individuals alleged to have engaged in an annual $1,000,000 betting operation were charged after the raids with failure to purchase $50 federal gambling tax stamps.

Edward G. Maag, assistant United States attorney, said transcripts of this week's testimony would be studied for possible leads in the investigation.

B-47 CRASHES IN NEVADA, ALL FOUR ABOARD KILLED

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, Calif., July 19 (AP)—March Air Force Base confirmed today that a B-47 bomber from this base is down eight miles from Shafter, Nev., and that a ground crew has reached the scene.

Maj. Craig Powell said the four men on the plane are dead. Their identities were withheld. It was out of the Thirty-third Bomber Squadron of the Twenty-second Bomber Wing.

Maj. Henry L. Tracy, at Hill Air Force Base near Ogden, said the wreckage was spread over three miles of mountains. He said identification could not be established from a helicopter although it hovered within a few feet of the wreck. Identification finally was made by a ground party.

MOTORIST SEIZED BY POLICEMAN IN 100-M.P.H. CHASE

A man who said he was John L. McIntosh, a laborer, of the 500 block of North Elm avenue, Webster Groves, was arrested last night after an automobile chase through three communities in St. Louis county at speeds up to 100 miles an hour, Kirkwood Patrolman Carl Haley reported.

McIntosh, a Negro, was speeding on Marshall road in Kirkwood when Haley began pursuing him, the officer said. When he sounded his siren and turned on his red light, McIntosh increased his speed, Haley reported.

The officer pursued McIntosh on a circuitous route through Kirkwood and Crestwood. The chase ended in Webster Groves on Edgar road near Jackson avenue when McIntosh's automobile struck a tree.

Haley said McIntosh, 21 years old, admitted he had been drinking beer. He was charged with careless and reckless driving and passing two major stop signs. Charles Webster, a Negro, a passenger, 544 Cannady avenue, Webster Groves, suffered internal injuries when the car hit the tree.

MOTHER OF LIBERACE BEATEN BY TWO MEN

SHERMAN OAKS, Calif., July 19 (UP)—The 65-year-old mother of Liberace was beaten last night by two hooded men who accosted her in her garage. She suffered possible rib fractures and bruises, police said today.

Mrs. Frances Liberace told police one of the men kicked her when she tried to flee, and before she fainted she heard one of them say, "Kick her again so we'll have something to laugh about later."

She was treated by a private physician. Officers said there was no evidence of burglary or robbery.

Police reported Mrs. Liberace told them she had to go to the garage where the incinerator is located to empty some trash. She saw two men wearing black hoods over their heads and dark stockings over their shoes and started to run toward the kitchen. She told police she believed she was semi-concious for about 40 minutes, after which she telephoned police.

PRESS OBJECTS TO DULLES PLAN ON CHINA NEWS

© New York Times News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 19—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles offered the press yesterday a chance for limited coverage of Communist China.

A five-man group representing national news and radio-television organizations objected to the limitation, and both sides agreed to keep working for a solution.

The next step will be a State Department survey to find out how many organizations want to be represented in China and on what terms.

Dulles's offer was made in a 90-minute conference with news representatives at the State Department. He said he would permit a limited number of men to work in mainland China for a trial period of six months.

The press representatives objected generally that there should be no government-imposed restrictions on the right to report the news except under military necessity.

Offer Not Rejected.

They did not, however, reject Dulles's suggestion, apparently because they were reluctant to act for the entire news industry at this stage.

Andrew Berding, Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs, said the discussion showed that no one was sure how many news organizations wanted to be represented in China or on what terms.

Until this information was available, it was decided, the matter should be allowed to hang fire. Berding said the State Department agreed to canvass the press before it made "policy decisions."

The news industry representatives were William Dwight, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association; J. Russell Wiggins, representing the American Society of Newspaper Editors; Theodore Koop, president of the Radio-Television News Directors Association; Robert Hurleigh, president of the American Association of Radio and Television Correspondents, and Henry Luce, president of Time, Inc.

After the meeting Dwight said "We just don't believe that you can limit numbers or limit news facilities." Dulles's position, he went on, was that the United States did not want a large group of newsmen entering Communist China under present conditions.

"We don't think they will," Dwight said. "We think economics will play a part in it." Thus he suggested that even if Dulles were to drop the bar entirely, the expense of sending and maintaining correspondents in Peiping would automatically limit the number of newsmen there.

Publishers' Position.

The Publishers Association's position, Dwight said, was that there should be no Government imposed limitation on the travel of American newspaper men. Koop and Hurleigh agreed. Wiggins added that travel restrictions should be imposed only under "military necessity."

Dulles's position is that he cannot lift the general restriction against newsmen without facing enormous pressures to do the same for others who feel they have justifiable professional reasons for visiting China.

The State Department remains adamant against permitting a mass invasion by United States newsmen, and the news industry remains balky about any formula that appears discriminatory.

AMERICAN TOBACCO CITED AS PRICE LAW VIOLATOR

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The American Tobacco Co. was accused yesterday by the Federal Trade Commission of discriminating among its customers in granting financial allowances for the promotion of its products.

The complaint charged that the firm had violated the Robinson-Patman anti-price-fixing law by not giving proportionately equal allowances to all competing buyers of its productions.

The commission listed amounts paid in 1955 to various retailers, including $42,869 to Union News Co., New York; $1916 to the Interstate Co., Chicago; $4680 to the Fred Harvey organization, Chicago; and $5850 to United Cigar-Whelan, Brooklyn, N.Y. American also paid cigarette vending machine operators $8 a machine to promote its Herbert Tareyton brand, the complaint said.

FTC SAYS TV COMMERCIAL FRIGHTENS YOUNG GIRLS

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission charged today that the sellers of Lanolin Plus hair shampoo "frighten beauty-conscious young girls" with their television commercials.

The FTC lodged a complaint against Lanolin Plus, Inc., of Chicago alleging that its advertising disparages competitive shampoos by representing that detergent shampoos will burn the hair.

The commission objected to both the pictures and words of a commercial showing a model washing her hair and looking up startled at the words, "stop! don't burn your hair . . . with detergent shampoos!" The complaint said the sequence is false and misleading and violates the FTC act. Actually, it said, detergent shampoos do not burn the hair.

Livestock Epidemic in Turkey.

ISTANBUL, July 19 (AP)—Veterinary authorities are taking strict measures to control a foot and mouth epidemic sweeping several Turkish provinces. The outbreak has already killed more than 100,000 head of cattle and sheep, according to press reports.

PERSONAL INCOME REACHES 344-BILLION ANNUAL RATE

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The annual rate of personal income in the United States reached a record high of 344 billion dollars in June, the Commerce Department reported yesterday. The June rate was $900,000,000 higher than the annual rate estimated in May.

The increase reflected rising wage and salary payments, the Department said. Income from dividends, interest, rents and business proprietorships and partnerships changed slightly.

The annual income rate for the first six months of 1957 was $340,100,000,000, as compared with $321,900,000,000 in first-half 1956.

TRIAL BEGINS FOR AIRMAN WHO BALKED AT SHORT HAIR

FUCHU, Japan, July 19 (UP)—Neatly trimmed Airman Third Class Donald Wheeler of Cortez, Colo., told four long-haired officers of an Air Force court martial today he refused to get a white sidewall haircut because it was "ridiculous on any human."

Wheeler went before a special court martial to answer charges that he disobeyed orders when he was a member of the honor guard at the United Nations-Far East Command headquarters in Tokyo.

The court martial was made up of a lieutenant colonel, two majors and a captain. The colonel and two majors would never make an honor guard if short hair was a prerequisite. The captain had a crew cut—but it badly needed trimming.

First Lt. William Shortt, of Seattle, Wash., Wheeler's superior officer, testified he had ordered the airman at least six times to get a close haircut. Wheeler said he thought Shortt was "out to get me."

MAN PULLED FROM RIVER, HIS LEGS BOUND TOGETHER

A man who said he was Louis Scripner, of the 4900 block of Fountain avenue, was in Homer G. Phillips Hospital today suffering from a brain concussion. He was pulled from the Mississippi river at the foot of Franklin avenue yesterday by a barge worker, who told police Scripner's legs were tied together with a belt around his ankles.

When questioned at the hospital, Scripner said he was walking in the 4600 block of Easton avenue when he was attacked by three Negroes. He said he lost consciousness and remembered nothing until he was pulled from the water. Scripner is a Negro.

400 PROSPECTORS IN URANIUM LAND RUSH IN COLORADO

NUCLA, Colo., July 19 (AP)—Law officers took positions in full view today of more than 400 prospectors, armed and eager to dash for possession tomorrow of nearly 100,000 acres of land.

Their claims to the land, being returned to public domain by the Atomic Energy Commission after nine years' exploration, can be filed after 10 a.m. It is the largest land opening in Colorado history.

The rocky terrain in southwestern Colorado is barren and thick with sagebrush but high-grade uranium ore deposits have been reported in varying amounts.

The rules call for every truck, jeep or car to race off at 10 a.m. When the prospectors find the tracts they want—no claims can exceed 600 by 1500 feet—they must drive six stakes on the boundaries of each parcel of land.

5 AIRMEN KILLED IN AIR TANKER CRASH

PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Divers today recovered the bodies of five Air Force men from Lake Champlain, where their million-dollar refueling plane crashed last night. Three companion survived.

Airmen and state police had searched the waters for 12 hours. One body was in the fuselage of the plane, which broke in two in the crash. The others were in 25 feet of water.

Plattsburgh Air Force Base identified the dead as:

The pilot, Capt. Robert V. Smith, New York City, N. Y.; First Lt. Malcolm McCoy, Jackie A. Jamerson, Riverdale, Cloyd's Landing, Ky.; Sgt. Md.; First Lt. Jack L. Hagans, Robertsdale, Pa., and First Lt. Thomas W. Craven, West Plains, Mo.

The plane was on a training flight from Plattsburgh. Base officials blamed engine failure for the crash.

Two men parachuted to safety. A third was pulled from the lake.

The two who parachuted landed near the base, about six miles south of the city. They were M. Sgt. Chester A. Kazminski, flight engineer, Chicago, and S. Sgt. Eli S. Radanovich, radio operator, South Bend, Ind.

M. Sgt. John F. Morgan, flight engineer, Garfield, N.M., was pulled from the water by Charles Finley of Keeseville, who was in a motorboat on the lake.

FEDERAL SURPLUS IS $1,645,000,000 FOR FISCAL 1957

WASHINGTON, July 19 (UP)—The Government ended fiscal 1957 with a surplus of $1,645,000,000, the Treasury Department announced today. This compared with a $1,626,000,000 surplus in fiscal 1956.

Treasury receipts in the 1957 fiscal year, which ended June 30, were $70,989,000,000. Expenditures were $69,344,000,000, compared with $66,540,000,000 in fiscal 1956, $64,570,000,000 in 1955, and $67,772,000,000 in 1954. Last year's receipts were $68,165,000,000.

Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey and Budget Director Percival F. Brundage said in a joint statement that receipts were $361,000,000 higher than estimated in January. Budget expenditures were $444,000,000 higher than estimated in January, "mainly due to larger expenditures for the Department of Defense which were not fully offset by lower expenditures in other departments."

The public debt as of June 30 was $270,634,309,846. The public debt on June 30, 1956, was $272,824,702,124.

WOMAN FLEECED OF $270 IN PIGEON DROP SWINDLE

Mrs. Fannie Lee Patten, 3105 Laclede avenue, lost $270 yesterday in the ancient pigeon drop swindle to two men who approached her in the 3500 block of Lindell boulevard.

Mrs. Patton told police she saw a man pick up a wallet from the sidewalk. A second man approached and asked if she had seen that. Then, the man who had the wallet suggested that since all three of them knew about the wallet, the contents be shared, but first they would have to put up some money as evidence of good faith.

One of the men accompanied her to the bank, where she withdrew the $270. After she gave it to the man, she was told to go to a Theresa avenue address for her share of the contents of the wallet. The address was a manufacturing company. Mrs. Patton and the men are Negroes.

BOY SEVERELY CUT IN SCHOOL

Gary Brinkley, 15 years old, was severely cut on the left forearm yesterday in an accident at the Adams School, 1311 Tower Grove avenue. He ran to a basement door with arm outstretched, intending to push open the door, but his hand shattered a pane of glass.

The boy was admitted to City Hospital. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Garnell Brinkley, 1201 Tower Grove.

Flashes of Life

Contempt of Court.
GREEN COVE SPRINGS, Fla. (AP)—A pigeon flew into the courtroom of Judge W. A. Stanly and interrupted a charge to the jury. The judge asked the court clerk George Carlisle to chase the bird out.

Just Not His Day.
PORTSMOUTH, N. H. (AP)—Raymond Littlefield was driving a rubbish truck along Circuit road when a young girl ran against the side of the vehicle. He rushed her to the hospital where she was treated for a "small skull fracture."

On his way to the police station to report the accident, his load of rubbish caught fire.

He drove to the police station garage, got a foam extinguisher and—in trying to extinguish the blaze—accidentally sprayed acid foam on the city marshal's car.

At this point, he called the fire department. While firemen were fighting the blaze, and elderly woman tripped over a hose, fell and fractured her leg.

Sounds Suspicious.

DETAILS OF PLOT TO KILL NASSER BARED IN EGYPT

CAIRO, July 19 (AP)—Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency has confirmed reports that 14 men are being held on charges of plotting to assassinate President Nasser and members of his government.

Salah El Din, Foreign Minister in the last Wafdist party government before the overthrow of King Farouk in 1952, was named as the ringleader.

The announcement said nine former military officers and five civilians were arrested in April and are awaiting trial in a military court.

No trial date was mentioned. They were rounded up, the agency said, just before they were reported ready to invade Nasser's government offices during a cabinet session, assassinate the entire group and set up a government.

Other Alleged Leaders.

The report said Salah El Din was to become Premier and Abdel Fattah Hassan, former Defense Minister, was to be controlling the police—if the coup had succeeded.

Reports that the plotters had been arrested have been circulating for several weeks and have been published abroad. Last night's report by the news agency was the first publication about the case in Egypt.

Constant questioning of those arrested brought confessions that a secret military organization planned to carry out the invasion of the presidential offices, the agency said. It reported that the military organization was headed by Brig. Gen. Ahmed Atif Nassar. Members were said to have confessed they planned an armed attack while they were in uniform.

First Tip Last April.

Authorities learned of the plot last April, the account went on, when a group of former officers tried to contact regular officers to join the organization called "Gamaat Ansar Al Hak" — the Group of Triumphal Right.

Salah El Din is considered one of Egypt's most able legal minds and has been a specialist in foreign affairs throughout his career. He was Foreign Minister in 1951 when Egypt abrogated its alliance with Britain.

Many Wafdist party members were brought to trial by the revolutionary regime after Farouk was toppled, but Salah El Din was not among those charged with graft and corruption. However, he split with Nasser on several issues.

WEBSTER GROVES CONSIDERS 20 PCT. WATER RATE BOOST

A bill to increase water rates about 20 per cent in Webster Groves to reflect the increase recently granted the St. Louis County Water Co. by the Missouri Public Service Commission was introduced in Webster Groves City Council last night.

The council also authorized the city attorney to oppose the application of the St. Louis Public Service Co. to discontinue weekly bus passes. St. Louis county also will oppose discontinuance of the passes.

A resolution urging the Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District to create a sub-district in the southwest section of Webster Groves was passed. It was pointed out that a sewage problem arises there because of the number of septic tanks used by residents and because of the sewage system of the Wilshire Terrace subdivision.

$40,000 IN CITY BONDS SOLD FOR MUNICIPAL PARKING LOT

The city has sold $40,000 in revenue bonds to the Baden Bank of St. Louis to finance purchase of ground for the first municipal parking lot to serve a neighborhood business district, Comptroller John H. Poelker announced yesterday. The 30-year bonds bear interest of ¼ of 1 per cent.

The lot, to accommodate 103 automobiles, will be just west of North Broadway, extending 90 feet on Baden avenue and 140 feet on Bittner street. The city has earmarked $37,500 from parking meter receipts for paving, lighting and landscaping.

The lot will be offered for lease to a commercial operator. If no lessee is found the city may take over operation, equipping the lot with parking meters.

INDICATION OF EARLY SPECIAL SESSION

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 19—The calling of two special elections to fill vacancies in the House of Representatives prompted speculation today that Gov. James T. Blair may call a special session of the Legislature earlier than he had planned.

Gov. Blair said several weeks ago that he would call a special session next January to consider appropriation measures that were sidetracked in the adjournment confusion last May.

Death has caused two vacancies in the last two months. In the past, such vacancies have been left unfilled if there was no prospect of legislative work in prospect for the near future.

Yesterday, however, Lt. Gov. Edward V. Long, acting for Blair, who is in a Rochester (Minn.) hospital recovering from an operation, set Aug. 6 for special elections to name successors to Representative Charles J. Burns of Randolph county, who died June 14, and Representative L. B. Nelson of Dent county, who died May 26, both Democrats.

That was taken in some quarters to indicate that the special session might come sooner than January. Blair would want all vacancies filled before such a session.

The regular session voted to increase the personnel of the State Highway Patrol and a retirement plan for state employes, but appropriation bills to finance that legislation died in the last-hour jam of bills.

Another measure that lost out was one to provide $3,000,000 for county roads.

INSTRUMENT UNDAMAGED IN 5-MILE PLUNGE TO EARTH

SUNNYVALE, Calif., July 19 (AP)—A small electronic instrument recently made a five-mile supersonic plunge to the earth's surface without being damaged, engineers of the Lockheed Missiles System plant said yesterday.

The 2½-ounce instrument was in the nose of an aerial rocket, which was part of the Lockheed X-17 ballistic missile. It was test fired from Holloman Air Development Center near Alamogordo, N. M.

It went up five miles, then plunged earthward, striking with a force about 1000 times the pull of gravity and buried itself in 12 feet of sand. The device continued to function perfectly.

WOMAN REACHES FOR PISTOL, HOLDUP MAN FLEES STORE

Mrs. Estella Bellifield, operator of a confectionery at 1420 Cole street, routed a holdup man today by reaching for a revolver she had in her apron pocket.

Mrs. Bellifield, a Negro, reported to police that a young man, also a Negro, ordered several articles and then demanded money—but without displaying any weapon.

She reached for her pistol. It caught on the pocket and she fumbled with it momentarily. But a glance was enough for the intruder and he ran away.

Steals Refugee Food.

MUNICH, Germany, July 19 (AP)—The United States Army announced today that First Lt. Luther B. Towers of Cleveland, O., has been convicted of stealing food provided for children of Hungarian refugees. A court-martial which convicted him yesterday ordered him dismissed from the service. The food was valued at $6.92.

DEMOCRATS HIT AT 4 PCT. RATE ON U.S. BORROWING

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—A flurry of partisan criticism spread today in the wake of a Treasury announcement yesterday that it will pay 4 per cent interest on 24 billion dollars of debt refinancing in August and October. The interest rate is the highest since October 1933.

Democrats in Congress called the high interest "immoral" and "inflationary."

On the other hand Senator Edward Martin (Rep.), Pennsylvania, said the Government must "compete for money just like a corporation or an individual."

A Treasury spokesman said this was the lowest rate "at which we thought we could sell Government securities of these maturities."

The 4 per cent rate was offered for one-year and four-year securities, with an alternative of 3⅝ per cent for a four-month certificate maturing Dec. 1.

Martin commented that "if these are the best terms the Treasury Department can secure, I don't see anything else it can do."

Democrats' Quick Attack.

Congressional Democrats, already critical of the Administration's "tight money" policies and high interest rates, were quick to attack the Treasury move.

Representative Abraham J. Multer (Dem.), New York, a member of the House Banking Committee, said Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey was "leaving a great heritage behind—the heritage of the greatest increase in the Government debt since the depression."

Multer said the increase in interest rates now "sets the trend for all private lending," and added: "I can't think of any one thing that would be more inflationary."

Representative Wright Patman (Dem.), Texas, also a banking committee member, predicted the rate increase would force a sharp price slump for outstanding bonds with lower rates.

He said it would also add nearly four billion dollars a year to the cost of interest on the national debt if a 4 per cent across-the-board rate develops.

"That's immoral," he said.

Attack in Senate.

Across the Capitol, where Humphrey, who soon leaves the Cabinet to return to private business, has been on the hot seat before Senate Finance Committee Democrats in recent weeks, the reaction was equally vigorous.

Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, said Humphrey "should be called back before the Finance Committee' to explain the higher interest rate on new financing.

Gore said "the country may be very thankful there is a statutory limit of 4¼ per cent on Government securities."

Gore and other Democrats said the higher interest rate would, among other things, hit particularly at states and local communities attempting to sell bonds for local improvements because of higher financing costs.

Senator Robert Kerr (Dem.), Oklahoma, Humphrey's sharpest critic at the Finance Committee hearings, said "this is tragic proof of the failure of the Eisenhower-Humphrey-Burgess fiscal policies."

Randolph Burgess was Under Secretary of the Treasury. He left the Treasury ahead of Humphrey, who will be succeeded by Robert B. Anderson.

Kerr said the refinancing operation "will release the throttle on another round of increases in the cost of living."

Treasury Explanation.

Treasury officials, however, said the impact of the financing would be less than indicated by the 24-billion size of the offering because all but about 9¼ billion dollars worth of the maturing issues are held by the Federal Reserve Board and other Government funds.

The new issues, to be opened July 22, will be on a straight swap basis for maturing securities and will not be subject to public subscription. They replace securities with rates ranging from 1½ to 3¼ per cent.

To holders of securities maturing Aug. 1 and 15, and Oct. 1, the Treasury offered a choice of these issues:

A 4 per cent one-year Treasury certifcate of indebtedness.

A 4 per cent Treasury note maturing in four years but cashable by the holder in two years, on Aug. 1, 1959.

The Treasury acknowledged it was "somewhat unusual" to offer a four-year security redeemable in two years, but said it would be attractive to investors who want to maintain a liquid position and who "think the market won't stay up forever."

REUTHER SAYS UAW WILL SEEK PENSIONS ESCALATOR

DETROIT, July 19 (AP) — Walter P. Reuther told a meeting of 12,000 retired United Auto Workers Wednesday that the UAW will fight for escalator clauses in contracts with the auto companies to tie cost-of-living increases on to pension allowances.

The UAW president did not say whether the proposal would be placed on the bargaining table in 1958 contract negotiations.

"If it is sound business to protect wage earners against inflation," Reuther said, "then it is equally sound to protect persons on pensions. It's a matter of simple economic justice."

Auto industry wages now go up and down with the Government's cost of living index. No contracts expire until next year.

ANXIOUS TOWNS WAIT AS LEAKING DAM IS PATCHED

CAPULIN, Colo., July 19 (AP) — A thousand persons, their homes and land in jeopardy, watched apprehensively as workmen tried to plug a gaping hole today in the face of Terrace Reservoir dam.

"This is the critical period," said Highway Patrol Chief Gilbert Carrel following an aerial inspection, "but the situation looks somewhat improved."

Five bulldozers ripped dirt from a mountainside near the crumbling earth-filled dam and moved it into the hole believed created by recent cloudbursts. The 45-year-old dam in southern Colorado was full for the first time in years, with nearly six billion gallons of water behind it.

Below, in a valley stretching nearly to Albuquerque, N.M., lie dozens of small communities and many isolated farms. All 300 residents of Capulin were evacuated to higher ground yesterday and those in La Jara, Manassa and Sanford, Colo., were alerted to flee, should the dam burst. Mayor Raymond Braiden of La Jara said more than 1000 persons living nearest to the dam on Alamosa creek remained in danger, but he said all had been given ample warning.

Farm Price Level Seen Firm, Steady

Now at a record national price level, the value of land now in farms will remain constant or climb to even greater heights in the rest of this year, the National Association of Real Estate Boards forecast.

Basis for this prediction is the sixty-third semiannual survey of the real estate market conducted by N.A.R.E.B.'s Research Division. Taking part in the survey were real estate boards in 227 communities in all parts of the country.

"Competition for land appropriate for residential subdivision, industrial development, or commercial farm expansion has sharpened during the past year," the report found. "Strong demand and diminishing supply are influencing land prices nationwide and changing values of farmland in a manner unrelated to crop or produce prices."

Current Demand Strong.

Competition for land from these three sources — only one of which is agricultural use — "points up the almost hopeless task of studying farmland prices as a single definable sector of the current land market," the survey summary added. "They illustrate the competition that is characteristic of most areas — a competition rooted in widely differing potential uses."

Future prices of full-time farms are expected to be the same during the second half of 1957 as those now prevalent by 54 per cent of the real estate boards taking part in the survey, and higher by 33 per cent. With respect to part-time farms, rising prices are anticipated by 36 per cent of the realtor respondents, and a continuation of present prices by 56 per cent.

This forecast, the report points out, rests on the current strong demand and the expected continuation of the vigorous economy that has created the strong competition for land.

According to the latest report from the Department of Agriculture, the total market value of farm real estate is $109,500,000,000 or an average value of $94.52 per acre.

Offerings Limited.

While not establishing dollar values, the N.A.R.E.B. survey corroborated the trend found by the department. Fifty-three per cent of the realtor respondents said the prices of full-time farms were similar to those prevailing a year ago, but 31 per cent described them as higher. Similarly, with respect to part-time farms, prices were found to be about the same as those that prevailed a year ago by half of the respondents, while 40 per cent found them higher.

The survey found that in many areas a strong demand exists for all farms, but relatively few are for sale.

"Higher prices often were combined with a low volume of transfers because of the few farms being offered in the market," the report observed. "The trend in number of sales of full-time farms was classified as the same as a year ago in 47 per cent of the reports, and lower in 38 per cent. For part-time farms, it was listed as the same by 50 per cent, and lower by 21 per cent."

Educational Joint Action Undertaken

WASHINGTON — The National Association of Home Builders and the United States Savings and Loan League today announced a joint educational program to foster home ownership and channel increased savings into mortgage investment.

George S. Goodyear, NAHB president, and League President Roy Marr said the co-operative effort was decided upon because the two organizations have a mutual interest in broadening the mass market for housing and in providing new sources of capital to finance home mortgages.

The joint "Save for Your New Home" program will be conducted on a local basis through members of the U. S. Savings and Loan League and the NAHB's 285 local and state associations throughout the country.

Serve Two Purposes.

The officials of the two organizations said their objective is to promote regular savings for a definite purpose—owning one's own home. Both the NAHB and the league's members plan to place major emphasis in their new program on the important role of home ownership in the economic and social development of their communities.

They pointed out that every dollar of new savings generated by this program will serve two worthwhile purposes — it will strengthen the financial position of the family which makes the saving, and it will add to the reservoir of mortgage funds availble for investment in housing.

A primary aim of the program is to encourage young married couples to begin saving for a new home and to acquaint them with the modern, long-term financing methods which make it easier today for young people to begin married life in a new home.

Provide Down Payment.

"Each year, there are approximately 1,600,000 marriages in the United States and most of these couples are young people in their early 20's who are eager for information about homes and home ownership," Goodyear and Marr said. "This program is designed to provide them with the information and to show them how, by saving regularly from the beginning of married life, they can provide the down payment on a home that will insure the future security of their family.

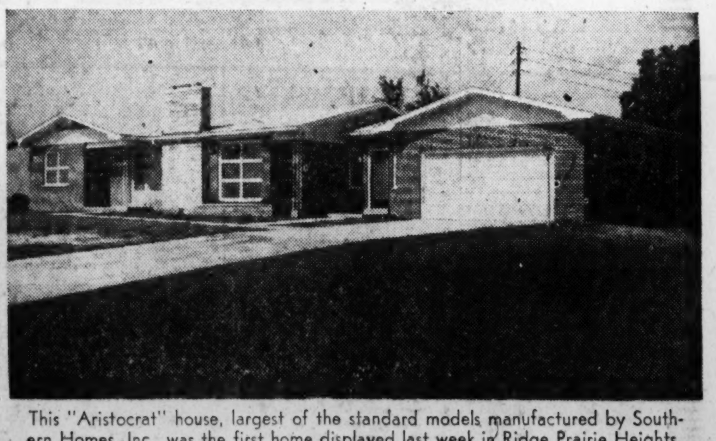
"Buying a new home is the best investment that any family can make, from the standpoint of family security and happiness. And the soundest way to approach that investment is through a plan of systematic savings.

"We hope to demonstrate to young married couples particularly that they can reap future financial benefits and security by putting first things first—providing for the shelter of their family."

A 60-Foot Long Recreation Room—A Design for Casual Individuality—and an 'Aristocrat' Model Are Featured in These New Display Homes

A 60-foot-long recreation and family room on the lower level is featured in this new display house in Jamestown Hills, according to the Reliance Real Estate Co., sales agent for the development. The main floor of the air-conditioned house includes three bedrooms, two baths, 16-foot kitchen, dining room and 25-foot-long living room, which has a Roman brick fireplace extending across one end, setting off an entry hall. The display is reached by driving north from Highway 66 on Old Halls Ferry road, through Black Jack and north on Old Jamestown Road.

This "L-"shaped house in Schuermann Building & Realty Company's new Northland Hills Addition "breaks from tradition and conventional four-corner construction," a spokesman for the company says. "This design gives us wide latitude in planning a subdivision keynoted by casual individuality. It marks a new trend in community planning." Northland Hills Addition, on West Florissant and Highmont drive, is just north of Famous-Barr Northland shopping center and adjacent to Schuermann's Northland Hills.



This "Aristocrat" house, largest of the standard models manufactured by Southern Homes, Inc., was the first home displayed last week in Ridge Prairie Heights, a new suburban development a mile and a half north of Collinsville, Ill. Design and construction of the house make it possible to include a heat pump for heating and air conditioning, Pat Urban, head of the Collinsville firm of Urban Enterprises, builder and developer, reports. The Holzweg-Sutton-Reinch Agency, Inc., of Collinsville, is sales agent.

Testifies Some Filter Cigarettes Yield More Tar Than Unfiltered

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP) —A researcher said today some tobacco companies were producing filter cigarettes which have as much or more tar and nicotine than unfiltered cigarettes.

Dr. Ernest L. Wynder said, "A safer cigarette can be made today by using an effective filter and the proper blend of tobacco." He added in testimony prepared for the House Government Operations subcommittee that some companies have taken advantage of the public desire for filtered cigarettes by marketing "increasingly ineffective filters" on cigarettes containing tobacco which yields greater quantities of cancer-producing tar.

Wynder, of the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research, said about 25,000 persons will die of lung cancer this year, and that at least 80 per cent of the deaths could have been prevented if the patients had not smoked.

Wynder began his research studies on cigarettes and cancer while a student at Washington University Medical School.

Recent studies, Wynder said, indicate "the majority of filtered cigarettes currently on the market have a tar and nicotine content which is at least as high, if not higher, than that of standard regular sized cigarettes."

He defined an "effective filter" as one which would remove at least 40 per cent of the tar and nicotine from tobacco smoke of the regular-size cigarette.

He said that was based on laboratory findings and statistical studies which indicated that "the value of a filtered cigarette in reducing cancer risk is directly related to the decrease in tar content of the smoke."

"In a recent laboratory study attention was called to a new development in the filtered cigarette industry which seems to be encouraging—a filtered cigarette with a good pressure drop and satisfactory tobacco taste can be produced which would yield 40 per cent less nicotine and tar than the average regular-size unfiltered cigarette," he related.

"Uniform acceptance of a filter in this range will be a partial answer to the present problem . . ."

He also recommended:

1. The possible lowering of the burning temperatures of cigarettes since, he said, virtually no cancer-causing substances are produced when tobacco is burned at 620 degrees. The present burning is 880.

2. "Dry cleaning" tobacco leaf to remove the waxy coating. Wynder said the coating apparently was a major source of most of the cancer-causing substances.

Dr. R. H. Rigdon, professor of pathology at the University of Texas school of medicine, testified that because of many variations in the incidence of lung cancer in smokers, analysis of any figures is likely to be inaccurate.

"The alleged relation of tobacco to lung cancer is an old story," he said. "History gives many accounts in which the public and scientists have become alarmed about this problem.

"They have carefully considered smoking as a possible cause; however, it was never established. Cancer may be associated with many things and may result from chemicals, viruses, sunshine, irradiation and spontaneously.

"When there are cancer-producing agents in the air we breathe coming from the exhaust of automobiles and from commercial plants, I find it impossible to accept the theory that the apparent increase in lung cancer is due to the cigarette."

PARIS-BOUND TRAIN WRECKED; 13 KILLED

AVIGNON, France, July 19 (AP) — Thirteen persons were killed and 70 injured early today when a speeding Riviera-to-Paris express train switched onto a side track and derailed.

The train, which originated across the Italian border at Ventimiglia, ordinarily carries a large number of foreign tourists to the French capital. But several hours after the accident railroad officials said they had no indication of the identity of the dead or injured passengers.

Four persons were killed outright when the engine and nine cars left the tracks. Nine died in hospitals.

The train went off the tracks 25 miles north of Avignon in the yards of the Rhone valley town of Bollene-La Croisiere. Two of the nine cars overturned.

Railway officials said the accident apparently occurred through confusion in orders. The station security chief said he had received an order to direct a train into a siding at the moment the express was approaching the station, someone threw the switch on the main line and the express, reported going 70 miles an hour, whipped across it and derailed.

Other trains on the line were shunted to another track.

One of the passengers, Raymond Vermeersch of Cannes, survived the wreck only to die of a heart attack as he was phoning his wife to assure her that he was safe.

BIG CARGO PLANE DECLARED EXCESS, COST $15,000,000

©New York Times News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 19—The XC-99, the world's largest land-based airplane, has been declared excess by the Air Force and will be auctioned.

The plane cost $15,000,000 and has been in operational use less than seven years. It costs $1100 an hour to operate and maintain, and required special fabrication of spare parts.

Few observers at the Pentagon thought anyone would want to buy the giant aircraft. At the time it was accepted by the Air Force, it was hailed as a global cargo carrier.

The plane was designed to ferry 400 troops, fully-equipped for battle. During its service, the big ship carried 60,000,000 pounds of cargo over a distance of 1,486,000 miles, or the equivalent of 59 trips around the world.

OLIVER L. PARKS REALTY CO., INC.
815 ST. WILLIAM DRIVE CAHOKIA, ILL.

Dear Veteran:

We feel you should know the full facts about the G.I. loan privilege. This special privilege granted you as veteran, of buying a home with little or no down payment on a 4½% long term loan is rapidly fading out of existence-so rapidly that if you are in the market for a home under the G.I. Bill, you just can't afford to put it off another day.

Even though the G.I. home guarantee section of the G.I. Bill doesn't expire until July 25, 1958, face the facts. There just aren't any more new G.I. no down payment or 2% down commitments available today any where. The reason is very simple and understandable. Lenders will not loan money at 4½% interest when there is a ready and waiting market for mortgages at 5½% and even 6% interest. The government doesn't loan the money itself, only guarantees a certain portion of it. When the few remaining G.I. commitments (all made from 12 to 18 months ago) now available in the Greater St. Louis area are gone, so will your chances of buying a home under the G.I. guarantee Congress has steadfastly refused to increase the interest rate on the G.I. loan and from all indications, are willing for it to just fade away.

To verify the above facts you have only to call your financial advisor or banker, they know the facts only too well.

Here at St. Joseph Gardens where a few no down payment commitments are still available, we have a number of 2% down 30 year G. I. commitments. These must all be used within the next 45 days or be cancelled.

If you need a home and are going to buy one soon, you'll be money ahead by driving to St. Joseph Gardens today.

Sincerely,
Oliver L. Parks

Senate Debate Has Publicized Implications of Civil Rights Bill That Were Unforeseen by Many

Supreme Court Ruling Made School Integration Subject to Troop Enforcement —Basis of Arguments for Jury Trial in Contempt Action Is Explained.

By E. W. KENWORTHY
WASHINGTON, July 19.

AFTER THE FIRST two weeks of Senate debate on civil rights, a good many citizens probably share the views of Dick the Butcher in Henry VI.

"The first thing we do," said Dick, "let's kill all the lawyers."

Ordinary citizens, however, were not the only ones ignorant of all the bill contained. It breezed through the House with scarcely any attention to the questions which have embroiled the Senate and made major deletions and amendments certain.

Even President Eisenhower conceded that he had thought the bill's principal objective was the right to vote and that upon re-reading it, he had discovered "certain phrases I didn't understand."

Sources of Confusion.

The widespread confusion has arisen from:

1. The "discovery" that the bill permits enforcement of school integration, as well as the right to vote, by federal court injunction.
2. The assertion by Southern Senators that the bill contemplates the use of federal troops to carry out integration decrees.
3. The tangled legal question of whether a non-jury trial of contempt cases arising out of violation of an injunction—as provided by the bill—is a deprivation of basic constitutional rights.

To take up these matters in order, how did the idea become so widely accepted that the bill's sole purpose was to fashion teeth for federal right-to-vote laws?

In the first place because the Administration's civil rights program in 1956 concentrated on voting rights. It asked Congress for legislation authorizing the Attorney General to bring injunction proceedings against anyone depriving, or threatening to deprive, a citizen of voting rights, guaranteed without distinction of race, in section 1971 of Title 42, United States Code.

Brownell 1956 Proposal.

As for other civil rights, Attorney General Brownell, in 1956, merely recommended that the proposed civil rights commission study legislation authorizing the Attorney General to "initiate civil action where necessary" to protect such rights.

Thus, the idea became implanted that the Administration was chiefly interested in guaranteeing the franchise. There was no specific mention of school integration.

When the Administration submitted a draft of legislation last winter, that, too, contained no specific mention of school integration.

However, Part III of the draft bill called for the addition of two paragraphs providing for injunctions, to section 1985 of Title 42, United States Code. The pertinent part of Section 1985, which derives from acts passed by Congress in 1861 and 1871, reads:

"If two or more persons . . . conspire . . . for the purpose of depriving, either directly or indirectly, any person or class of persons of the equal protection of the laws, or of equal privileges and immunities under the laws . . . the party so injured . . . may have an action for the recovery of damages . . ."

By the Supreme Court's 1954 ruling, school segregation became a deprivation of equal privileges covered by Section 1985.

Inserted by Reference.

Thus, the federal power to enforce desegregation by injunction was inserted into the civil rights bill by reference.

In testimony before a Senate judiciary subcommittee last February, Brownell made quite clear that the bill did provide such power, and was not limited to voting rights. This attracted little notice at the time.

What, then, of the Southern charge that the bill envisages the use of troops?

The power is in the bill—though again not stated explicitly. In the United States Code, two pages beyond Section 1985, is Section 1993, which is derived from laws passed in 1866 and 1870. Section 1993 reads:

"It shall be lawful for the President of the United States, or such person as he may empower for that purpose, to employ such part of the land or naval forces of the United States, or of the militia, as may be necessary to aid in the execution of judicial process issued under sections . . . 1985-1992 of this title (42) . . ."

Thus Section 1993—the use of troops—applies to Section 1985 which now includes school integration as one of the equal privileges guaranteed by the Constitution.

Both school integration and the use of troops are in Part III of the bill, and the prospect is that this part will be knocked out altogether.

Therefore, the great struggle is likely to come over whether those who violate a court injunction against interference with voting rights should, or should not, have a jury trial in contempt proceedings.

The bill does not specifically mention what kind of a trial the accused shall have. It empowers the Attorney General to ask for an injunction whenever "any person has engaged" or there is reason to believe he is "about to engage" in acts to deprive another of voting rights.

U.S. Made a Party.

The reason that the United States in this way is made a party under the bill is found in Section 3691, Title 18 of the United States Code, which reads:

"Whenever a contempt charged shall consist in willful disobedience of any lawful writ . . . of any district court of the United States . . . and the act or thing done or omitted also constitutes a criminal offense under any act of Congress, or under the laws of any state in which it was done or omitted, the accused, upon demand therefor, shall be entitled to trial by a jury . . .

"This section shall not apply . . . to contempts committed in disobedience of any lawful writ . . . entered in any suit or action brought . . . in the name of . . . the United States."

Thus because the injunctive proceedings would be initiated by the Attorney General, cases of contempt would be tried without jury.

Supporters of the bill argue that there is nothing irregular or even uncommon about this, that contempt cases in equity proceedings—and they would be equity proceedings under the new bill—are usually tried without jury. They cite some 28 statutes permitting such non-jury trials for contempt, including the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Opponents' Argument.

Opponents of the bill contend the cases are not parallel. Suppose, they argue, that in an anti-trust equity suit a judge finds that a monopoly exists and orders the company to sell a factory or divest itself of 100,000 shares of stock.

If the company refuses, it can be fined, or its officers jailed, in contempt proceedings for violating the judge's orders. The officers cannot be tried and punished for committing a criminal act, because the refusal to sell is not a crime.

On the other hand, the bill's opponents argue, to deprive a citizen of the vote, or to conspire to prevent him from voting, is a crime under federal law (for example, Title 18 United States Code, Sections 241 and 242) and many state laws.

Contrary to equity procedure, the bill's opponents argue, the bill permits the court to issue injunctions against an act that is a crime. If Jones is enjoined from interfering with Smith's voting rights and does so, he will not only have violated the order but committed a crime. He will be tried and convicted by a judge without jury for the contempt and not for the crime. This, they argue, is a deprivation of jury trial guaranteed by the Constitution.

Treasury Aid to Resign.

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The White House announced yesterday that Assistant Secretary of the Treasury David W. Kendall plans to resign to return to private law practice, probably by the end of this year.

Money Woes Spur Move to Oust Butler

Democratic Committee $660,000 in Hole—Rights Also Issue.

By DORIS FLEESON
WASHINGTON, July 19.

WHEN a gathering of politicians can't produce at least one good rumor, all that remains is to write their party's obituary. From the recent meeting of Democrats in Harry Truman's home town has emerged a report of new plans to oust Paul M. Butler as chairman of the national committee.

The threat to Butler actually occurred several days later when three powerhouses of the national committee — Carmine de Sapio of New York, Mayor David Lawrence of Pittsburgh and Jake Arvey of Chicago—held a very private conclave with Truman.

With them was the national committee treasurer, contractor Matt McCloskey of Philadelphia, who has long warred with the chairman. Their feud is of real importance, since the committee admits to being $660,000 in debt and probably owes even more; its 75 employes sometimes have to wait for the ghost to walk, and possibly so does the landlord of its one third of a floor in a modern office building.

This group can almost surely muster the votes to call a committee meeting and elect a chairman of its choice. Its problem, hashed over to no conclusion at Independence, is to get the old bills paid so as to give their man—thought to be James Finnegan of Philadelphia, who managed Adlai Stevenson's 1956 effort—a decent sendoff.

Butler's deficit difficulties are his greatest; committeemen otherwise feel he has been greatly helpful to them and they can relax in the certain knowledge of his sincerity and integrity. Part of the trouble is that same old party division pointed up by the civil rights issue.

Party liberals felt their view had to be expressed as a counterpoise to the southern leadership in Congress. So they have hired a suite of rooms, a staff and a $20,000-a-year staff director, Charles Tyroler, so a national advisory council can function.

These and other sources of the sinews of war are also being tapped by Senate and House campaign committees who will bear the brunt of the midterm election campaign next year. The House operation under the capable Ken Harding is rather modest.

Not so the Senate setup, where the restless ambition of Senate majority leader Lyndon B. Johnson has installed his former whip, Senator Earle Clements of Kentucky, who was defeated last year. It is understood that Clements is being paid a Senator's salary. He is the voice of Johnson and eager to build for him bigger and better majorities.

In fact, Clements is so eager that he tried at Independence to raid the chicken coops of the California leaders who have—or think they have—persuaded their reluctant dragon, Attorney General Pat Brown, to run for Governor. Clements held up to Brown a shining vision of Johnson's mighty army and urged him to join it as Senator.

Brown is, of course, no more averse to flattery than the human race generally, but he prudently rallied other Californians to see the show. At least one told Celements to mind his business and let California handle its own.

RELATIONS TO IMPROVE, SAYS U.S. ENVOY IN POLAND

WARSAW, July 19 (AP)—United States Ambassador Joseph E. Jacobs yesterday forecast a further improvement in Polish-American relations.

"The way things look now augurs well for the future," he said. "If all goes well we can look for further betterment."

Jacobs leaves Warsaw next week to retire. His successor here will be Jacob D. Beam, career diplomat who has served in Yugoslavia, Russia, Indonesia and Germany.

Four strong beams of light are focused on the four-foot square mirror, creating a brilliant spot of light that remains centered when the incoming pilot keeps his plane at correct angle and glide path. The spot moves when the plane is out of position. The green lights at top of the device are stationary. The new system will be installed on other carriers.

Country Has Its First Scientific Program On Utilizing Forests

HARBIN.

NOT far from here, as distances go in this country which is almost the size of Canada, China is conducting its first scientific program of utilizing forests. For here, where natural conditions favor the growing trees, lumber is almost as precious as diamonds.

This program, based on a recently completed survey and classification of resources, is being conducted in the Changpaishan mountains, near the Chinese-Korean border. The program lays down plans for felling, for improving conditions for the growth of trees, and for the regeneration of the forests. The same type of program is being instituted in other areas.

In the Greater and Lesser Khingan mountains, also in this part of China, to the north, 50,000,000 acres of forest have been surveyed and photographed from the air.

At the opposite end of the country, in Tibet and western Szechuan province, great forests of spruce, fir and Chinese hemlock-spruce have been surveyed. Many of these trees, which provide excellent construction lumber, are 200 or 300 years old. Survey parties are mapping areas for conservation as well as for lumbering.

So sparse in fact is China's

21 American Nations Map War Strategy

Joint Defense Plan Is Revised in View of Nuclear Threat.

By JACK RAYMOND
WASHINGTON, July 19.

A NEW joint military defense plan was approved yesterday by the Inter-American Defense Board, representing 21 countries in the Western Hemisphere.

It was the first new military strategy since 1951 to be adopted by the group, which was founded in World War II.

The details were secret, but the new defense plan is understood to be based on the premise that the threat of Soviet Communist aggression is as real as ever.

The new plan is said to take into account the advent of revolutionary new weapons, particularly the possibility of nuclear aggression at vulnerable points, such as the Panama Canal.

It is believed to deal also with problems of weapons standardization and the availability of raw materials in the event of emergency.

There was said to be no pressure, similar to that existing in other alliances of which the United States is a member, on the part of smaller nations seeking modern nuclear weapons from the United States.

A significant factor in the new military plan, it was said, was the recognition of the need to curtail armament costs. This problem was dealt with at the regional conference in Buenos Aires last May.

At that meeting military representatives of Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay and Paraguay met to discuss problems of the defense of the South Atlantic.

Unlike the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Inter-American Defense Board has no forces of its own. Like the Southeast Asia Treaty organization, it is a planning board that depends on the readiness of separate national military forces.

Different from either, the Inter-American Defense Board has only one major power—the United States. The board is the "organ of preparation for collective self-defense" of the organization of American states.

Scientists Reported Optimistic Over Taming Hydrogen Power

Melvin Price Discloses Feeling of Progress After Meeting of Congressional Unit With AEC Experts.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, July 19.

A NEW FEELING of optimism among American scientists who are trying to tame the hydrogen bomb for peaceful purposes was reported today by Representative Melvin Price (Dem.), East St. Louis. Price is chairman of the subcommittee on research and development of the Senate-House Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

Discussing a hearing the committee had held yesterday on development of thermonuclear power, Price told the Post-Dispatch the scientists appeared more encouraged than ever before, although no one can yet predict when current efforts will be successful.

Witnesses at the hearing included Dr. T. H. Johnson, director of research for the Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Arthur Ruark, technical director of Project Sherwood, the AEC's effort to develop a controlled H-bomb reaction, and heads of the four laboratories working on the project.

Satisfied With Budget.

Price said the scientists appeared satisfied both with their current budget for the project and with the current rate of declassifying information on the subject.

The pending authorization bill for the AEC includes an item of $5,600,000 for Project Sherwood. Price said he had been told this was adequate for the present, although a larger amount would become necessary when it came time to develop new apparatus to prove some new theoretical principle.

Secrecy surrounding the project has been a target of much criticism. Price reported, however, that the scientists working to develop hydrogen power see now tremendous benefits to be gained by faster declassification.

The AEC follows the Russians in releasing information about the development of thermonuclear power, Price said. As soon as any new details are revealed by the Soviet Union, the AEC discloses its own information in the same field.

Reason For This Procedure.

Price explained that this procedure was considered necessary because of the possibility that findings of the project might be applicable to hydrogen weapons as well as to the peaceful applications.

The Congressman said he was inclined to rely on the judgment of the scientists in this matter because he thought they ordinarily would want to release as much scientific information as possible in the interests of scientific progress. He pointed out that part of their enthusiasm about Project Sherwood stems from the fact that it "takes some of the burden off them for their involvement in the weapons program."

Russia has a substantial hydrogen power research program, probably next to that of the United States, Price said. Britain probably comes third, he said, and the United States and Britain have arranged to exchange classified information on the subject. West Germany, France, India and possibly other nations have nominal programs.

Price said one indication of progress was the fact that private money already is being invested in hydrogen power research. He said the general atomics division of General Dynamics was putting $10,000,000 into a four-year basic research program and General Electric also was setting up a special study.

REDS IN INDIA MAINTAIN CASTE SYSTEM IN DEATH

MADRAS, India, July 19 (AP) Kerala, the only Communist-run state in India, is retaining the ancient system of caste segregation at cremation grounds.

A Communist member who raised the question in the legislative assembly was silenced by Dr. A. R. Menon, independent leader of the Communist-dominated health ministry, who said:

"The caste system is more rigorously observed in cremation grounds than elsewhere and there will be a hue and cry if communal cremation grounds are prohibited in the state."

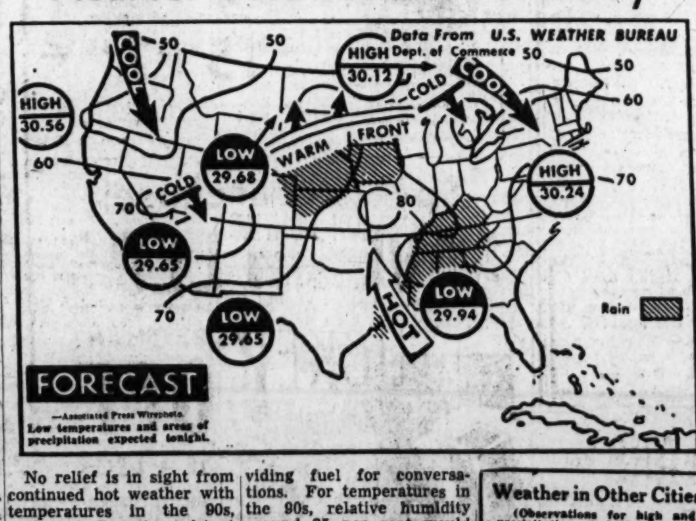
Nearest Cold Front Is Far Away



—Associated Press Wirephoto.
Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

No relief is in sight from continued hot weather with temperatures in the 90s, Arthur A. Rausch, assistant chief weatherman, said today. The nearest cold front is in Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota.

"There's one thing about hot weather here—when it rains it pours," he added, mixing his meteorological metaphors. Today should be the eighth day in a heat wave that is extending throughout Missouri. St. Louis, with a high of 93 yesterday, tied for having the lowest maximum in the state. The thermometer registered 101 at St. Joseph.

Rausch's calm advice to St. Louisans about the hot weather is, "learn to live with it. It's here to stay." He pointed out that the high relative humidity was providing fuel for conversations. For temperatures in the 90s, relative humidity around 25 per cent would be comfortable, he said. Yesterday there was more than 50 per cent relative humidity.

Duluth, Minn., had 2.10 inches of rain in a six hour period yesterday. Scattered thundershowers fell across Nebraska and Minnesota. Wind gusts near 60 miles an hour were recorded at Scotts Bluff, Nebr.

Hottest spot in the nation yesterday was Yuma, Ariz., with a temperature of 106. Yuma and Galveston, Tex., were the hot boxes this morning, with lows of 81. Low minimum this morning was 30 at Drummond, Mont. Eureka, Calif., had the nation's coolest afternoon yesterday with a high of 59.

WALTER LIPPMANN

A Real Civil Rights Compromise?

WASHINGTON.

NOW THAT CIVIL RIGHTS LEGISLATION is before the Senate, the crucial question is whether the leaders from the Southern states are willing to let a bill pass which is directed solely to securing and protecting the right of Negroes to vote.

Russell.

There have been some indications that Senator Russell may be willing, after the Southern minority have argued their case, to let the majority of the Senate pass such a bill. There is, also, some reason to think that Senator Lyndon Johnson is feeling his way toward a compromise based on limiting the substance of the bill to the single issue of suffrage in the Southern states. By such a compromise the Southerners would be making a very big concession. But they would avoid, or at least postpone for some considerable time to come, what would amount to a decisive defeat on the whole range of civil rights issues.

If they resorted to a filibuster to destroy a bill amended to deal only with federal voting, there is a very good chance, as Rowland Evans Jr. reported in the New York Herald Tribune the other day, that they will provoke a movement to amend the rules of the Senate in order to abolish the right to filibuster.

Much to Lose if Stubborn.

If ever the rules are amended, the Southerners will be faced with a majority in the Senate which is prepared to use the federal power to enforce all the civil rights laws, including that against segregation in the public schools.

The South, therefore, has much to lose by being intransigent, and it has much to gain by a concession on the right to vote.

The word "compromise" needs to be defined. A genuine compromise would be an understanding that the bill should be amended by cutting out part III, which deals with integration in the schools and other civil rights.

Such an amendment would mean that the special feature of the bill—the use of injunction—would be limited to the cases where there is a denial by local election officials of the right to vote.

Avoiding School Issue.

The injunction procedure would not apply to the school problem, or to the other civil rights problems.

It would not be a true compromise, on the other hand, to cut out part III, and then also to amend part IV to require trials by jury in all election cases.

That would amount to the emasculation of the bill, and would mean that Congress was passing a bill that was not meant to be enforced. Either the Federal Government is to have power to secure and protect the right to vote or it is not to have that power.

That power can be, and should be, strictly defined. But there is no halfway station between granting and not granting the power.

There may be in the making something bigger than a compromise on the bill which is now before the Senate.

Right to Vote Paramount.

We may venture to hope that for the first time there exists an opportunity for something like a national settlement and understanding based on the inherent principle and implied policy of an amended bill.

The principle of the amended bill would be that the paramount civil right of an American citizen is the right to vote. If he can qualify under rules that are the same for all, the right to vote is his guarantee that he will be heard and listened to and counted.

The corollary of this principle that the right to vote is the paramount civil right is that the other civil rights are not to be enforced by the executive power of the federal government.

Chance for Understanding.

They are to be brought into being by persuasion, experiment, negotiation and by judicial process.

It would be a bright day for the country if there could be a general national understanding based on such a view of the scope and nature of federal intervention in the problem of civil rights.

There are great reputations to be made by those, be they in Congress or in the Administration, who seize the opportunity which is open, and make themselves the architects of such an understanding.

BARAK T. MATTINGLY FUNERAL TOMORROW

Services at Scottish Rite Cathedral for Prominent G.O.P. Leader.

Funeral services for Barak T. Mattingly, attorney and Missouri Republican leader, who died unexpectedly yesterday, will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3637 Lindell boulevard. Burial will be in Hiram cemetery.

Mr. Mattingly, 56 years old, died at De Paul Hospital a few hours after suffering a heart attack at his home, 2 Chambers road.

The death of Mr. Mattingly, a former Republican national committeeman for Missouri and one of the close political advisers of the Eisenhower Administration, came as a shock to political leaders of both parties and to his business associates.

Chairman Meade Alcorn of the Republic National Committee sent this telegram to Mrs. Mattingly: "I am deeply grieved to learn of the sudden passing of your husband, whom I knew as a friend and a loyal Republican who, despite his many business and civic interests found time to serve well and faithfully as a member of the Republican National Committee, later as its general counsel and continued to take the utmost interest in the party.

"He will be missed by his former associates on the committee and, speaking for them as well as myself, I send you and your family our sincerest sympathy in the great loss which has come to you."

United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem.), Missouri, wired Mrs. Mattingly that he was "shocked and distressed" by the death of her husband.

Messages of condolence received included one from Gov. and Mrs. James T. Blair of Missouri. It read: "We are shocked and grieved to learn the sad news of your loss in the death of your wonderful husband. We both feel that Jim has lost one of his finest friends." Gov. Blair is in a Rochester (Minn.) hospital, recuperating from surgery.

Harry Darby, former United States Senator from Kansas and veteran Republican leader in that state, telegraphed Mrs. Mattingly that "the Republican party and America have lost a great leader."

W. G. Daniel, national commander of the American Legion, sent this message: "Barak was a loyal legionnaire, and we feel a personal sense of loss in his passing."

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Melba Schmidt Mattingly, and his mother, Mrs. Hallie Mattingly. The body is at the Leidner undertaking establishment, 2223 St. Louis avenue.

Bosses Who Take Domestic Woes Out on Staffs Irk Secretaries

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

MRS. RUTH CLEMENCE of Chicago who was selected Secretary of the Year last night at convention of National Secretaries Association.

Bosses who take out their domestic problems on their office staffs are most disliked by their secretaries, delegates attending the convention of the National Secretaries Association commented here today. About 1500 women are attending the convention sessions at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson.

"We have an example in our bank," Mrs. John V. Elmlund of Riverside, Calif., noted.

"You can sense his disposition when he arrives in the morning. He is dissatisfied with the world. He'll change his method of doing something which we have done one way for a year and a half. This change will last for a month, and then we go back to the old way."

As for secretaries, a good one is an "office wife" of her employer, Mrs. Russell L. Heath of Miami, Fla., said.

"A boss and his secretary are a team," she said noting that a secretary is with her employer eight hours a day and adapts to his thinking and his way of doing things.

"This is not to be confused with a marriage," she added. "In a marriage, you feel a little freer to tell your husband what you think of him."

"It is difficult to be a secretary for a public official," said Miss June E. Sprague, who works for New York City Chief Magistrate John M. Murtagh. "There are so many people who feel they have a right to see him and who believe he alone can solve their problems.

"Someone well-known, maybe a politician, will call up and ask to speak to the judge. When I tell him the judge is not in and ask if I can help him, he will say, 'No, it is a personal matter, and will you have the judge call me?' Ninety-nine per cent of the time, it is a traffic ticket."

Last night Mrs. Ruth Clemence of Chicago was named "Secretary of the Year." She is a certified professional secretary and works for a vice president of Bell & Zoller Coal Co.

Mrs. Clemence, 40 years old, has been a secretary 12 years. She took executive secretarial courses at City College in New York and business courses at Northwestern University. At present she is enrolled in liberal arts night classes at the University of Chicago.

She is divorced and has a 22-year-old daughter, Fay, also a secretary.

Leaving for World Jamboree — Meeting at Valley Forge Closes.

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., July 19 (AP) — Some 50,000 Boy Scouts were homeward bound today from their week-long fourth national jamboree at historic Valley Forge Park.

But for some 1700 picked scouts and leaders representing every state and United States possession, there was still another adventure ahead. This is the jubilee contingent, which leaves now for Sutton Park near Birmingham, England, for the international jamboree.

They leave in two groups, the largest from Ottawa on the S.S. Fairsea on Monday and 186 who leave today aboard the S.S. Castel Felice from New York.

England was chosen as the site of this year's international camp because this is the fiftieth anniversary of the world scout movement and the jubilee jamboree will honor the founder of scouting, the late Lord-Baden Powell. It is also the one hundredth anniversary of his birth.

Aga Khan Is Buried Beside Nile As 500 Followers Chant Prayers

20-Year-Old Successor Wears White Suit and Red Fez—Tomb Enlarged at Last Moment to Admit Coffin.

ASWAN, Egypt, July 19 (AP) —The body of Aga Khan III was lowered into a temporary tomb today in the courtyard of his villa overlooking the Nile river.

Aga Khan IV, grandson and successor of the 79-year-old leader of the Ismaili Moslems, stood tight-lipped as Moslem religious leaders chanted prayers over the white oak coffin. The new Aga, a 20-year-old Harvard senior, was attired in a white suit and a red fez.

Nearly 500 members of the Aga's religious sect, dressed in the costumes of many lands, joined in prayers. The Begum, the French widow of the old Aga, sobbed as she watched the funeral ceremony.

All were crowded into the living room, dining room and courtyard of the villa, which was transformed into a mosque with the floor covered with mats and walls hung with carpets for the occasion.

The Ceremony was delayed for 15 minutes when the coffin proved too long for the tomb and workmen hastily increased its size.

This was a favorite spot for the old Aga, leader of the Ismaili sect for 71 years. He specified in his will that he be buried at the villa he built after his honeymoon in Aswan in 1944 with the Begum, his fourth wife.

A mausoleum will be built later atop a hill 200 yards from the villa, which the Aga named Nour el Sallam—Light of Peace. It is on the west bank of the Nile, across from Aswan, which the ancient Egyptians called the "land of the setting sun."

BILLS INTRODUCED TO BAR PARK OPERA TICKET TAXES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 19—Bills which would give the St. Louis Municipal Opera permanent exemption from the 10 per cent federal amusement tax on its tickets were introduced yesterday by Representatives Thomas B. Curtis (Rep.), Webster Groves, and Frank M. Karsten (Dem.), St. Louis.

The measure would amend the Internal Revenue code by striking out the word "concert" and substituting "certain musical performances." Under present law, non-profit organizations presenting concerts, operas and light operas are exempt from the amusement tax.

Municipal Opera officials had informed Karsten and Curtis that there was a possibility the park opera might have to pay the tax since its schedule included some musical comedies. An exemption for this season was obtained.

Strominger, assistant professor of pharmacology at the Washington University School of Medicine, to help support research in uridine diphosphoglucose dehydrogenase, it was announced today. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Legion's Dissent

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Supreme Court has spoken in the case of Army Specialist William S. Girard. Having made its decision the court ended further legal action under our judicial system. But it did not alter the fact that the rights of American service men overseas are jeopardized by the Status of Forces Treaty.

We can and will do everything possible to prevent a repetition of this betrayal of American service men stationed overseas. We will urge quick and overwhelming Congressional approval of legislation repealing the Status of Forces Treaty and all similar agreements.

As far as the American Legion is concerned, the Girard case marks a turning point in American foreign policy as well as in our Constitutional form of government. Either the Congress must repeal the Status of Forces Treaty and all similar agreements, and the Supreme Court uphold the constitutionality of such legislation, or we must tell our men in uniform that they are captive citizens and tell the world that the United States is fear-ridden and appeasement-minded, unwilling to stand up for the most important, fundamental rights of its citizens.

For the sake of our service men stationed abroad and for the salvation of what little following the United States may still enjoy among the free nations of the world, I hope that our answer will be a ringing Congressional denunciation of the Status of Forces Treaty and all similar agreements.

I hope, too, that the Congress, in repealing these instruments of international blackmail, will reaffirm America's traditional spirit of courage, independence and integrity in our dealing with all nations, great and small alike.

The time has come for us to stop kidding ourselves and foreign nations that American service men are stationed abroad solely for our own protection.

If the citizens of those foreign nations in which our troops are stationed really believe they are doing us a favor in permitting us to protect them, then we had better begin re-evaluating our whole defense concepts and the military value of those nations in the event of a real showdown with Russia and the Communist world.

National Executive Committeeman,

As to the 'Kerr Slur'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Regarding your editorial in which you exhibited your usual holier-than-thou attitude in denouncing Senator Kerr's so-called "slur" against the President, may I make a timid comment?

From all I have read of Mr. Eisenhower in your newspaper, whether quoting him verbatim in news conferences or by inference, it would appear that he either does not have the mental capacity for the job; or, if he does, he will not use it.

Senator Kerr at least had the honesty to express publicly what many people feel is a fact, based on the President's over-all performance since 1952. I am sure that the Senator and all of us have the highest respect for the "presidential office" but not necessarily for the individual occupying it.

Check your files for congressional statements about the occupants of the same office from 1932 to 1952.

NO HYPOCRITE.

I can tell you one thing: Giving our money away so freely and recklessly to foreign nations all around the world certainly is not a very smart thing for Ike to do. It's too hard on the American taxpayer's pocket book and it should be stopped!

ED BATZNER.
Milwaukee.

Perhaps I missed something awhile back, but I have no recollection that the Post-Dispatch ever rapped a Senator's knuckles for verbal abuse directed at Presidents Roosevelt or Truman.

Are there really so few domestic and international issues at stake that the Post-Dispatch, a newspaper of recognized stature, must editorialize in the manner of a Madame Grundy pursing her lips over the back fence?

The most terrifying aspect of the Eisenhower era, and there are many, may be its seeming power to reduce great institutions to its own level of mediocrity, lack of imagination, and pettiness.

Time to Call a Halt

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I note the increased price of steel has started another merry-go-round of wage and then price rises.

If something isn't done in Congress pretty soon to curb wages and prices this country is facing ruination and the worst depression it has ever experienced.

The high cost of living is creeping up while the value of the 50-cent dollar is going down.

A Navy Captain's Pay

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I read in the paper an item telling about a Navy Captain who is leaving the Navy because he cannot live on $900 per month.

Well, all I have to say is "good riddance." One who is so extravagant that he cannot live on that much money is a mighty poor risk to the United States Treasury.

Belleville, Ill. W. WOODS.

No Security in Secrecy

It is now nearly four weeks since Chairman Loyd Wright of the Commission on Government Security promised to list for Congress specific examples of security leaks by the press. He was challenged to do so by Congressman Moss of California, chairman of the House Information subcommittee, after the Wright commission called for legislation to jail and fine reporters or editors who publish information classified by the Government as "secret."

If Chairman Wright, who is a former president of the American Bar Association, has ever issued his list it has escaped our attention. Seeking to support his charge that there have been many instances of betrayal of national security by the press, Mr. Wright turned to the files of the Government for the evidence. But the instances have not been forthcoming.

Why? Bcause, so he says, the Government officials who are responsible for keeping the records will not release them for publication. His words are a bit on the pathetic side:

> The information is apparently entombed forever, with the final rites of classified burial in the bureaucratic graveyard of a maze of files, never to be disseminated to the American people who are entitled to know the full details of these dark chapters of betrayal.

Mr. Wright did cite an alleged breach concerning the Battle of Midway in June, 1942. He said that one newspaper tipped off the Japanese that their code had been broken by our Navy which "was lying in ambush for the enemy fleet." As a consequence, said Mr. Wright, "the enemy immediately changed their codes." Had it not been for this publication, he continued, "there is strong reason to believe that the Japanese sea power could have been finally and completely destroyed many long and bloody months sooner."

The Washington Post has put Mr. Wright's charge against The Chicago Tribune—for that is the newspaper he had in mind though he did not name it—alongside the official account in the Defense Department's Field Press Censorship Manual, published in 1954. The manual says in part:

> As students of the Pacific war know, the Japanese did not realize that the code had been broken. Thus in April, 1943, the deciphering of an enemy message made it possible to ambush Adm. Yamamoto, Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese Navy, on a flight over the Solomon Islands.

Is this a sample of what Mr. Wright has in the way of "evidence" in support of the commission's call for jail and fines for reporters for undermining the national security? If so it is just as well that he is spared the embarrassment that would follow further presentation.

The Government Security Commission's proposal concerns only matters relating to the defense of the nation and so is limited to that extent. But a law that would attempt such imprisonment could be a precedent for efforts to punish newspaper men who dug into other fields that Government officials desired to keep secret.

The plain fact is that while there have been abuses of freedom of the press at times, the history of American journalism is replete with instances of publication of "secrets" that cried out for release to the people who were entitled to know about them.

The Teapot Dome and Elk Hills oil reserve transfers were kept secret in the Harding Administration until the press brought them out into the light of day. Should some reporter have been fined and put in prison for that?

For a long time no one in the press corps in Washington could get his hands on the notorious Dixon-Yates TVA contract which some utility promoters tried to slip over on the country in the Eisenhower Administration. Should the newspaper men who published it be locked up?

The First Amendment to the Constitution gives the freedom of the press—and another way to say it is, freedom of the people to know—wide protection because that is where our true security lies. We hope by now that the Wright commission realizes that its press proposal is at variance with our basic institutions. Surely Congress will not spend any time trying to implement it in law for such a law would be unconstitutional.

Style Rather Than Sport

Half-way through the ninth inning of Thursday's Cardinal-Brooklyn game, this space was reserved for the praises of diamond derring-do. But it seems more interesting now to think of eggs—not those laid, but skirts shaped like eggs by Italy's high-fashion entrepeneurs.

What an egg-shaped skirt looks like may be a little uncertain until the pictures come in from Rome. What a dashing woman of the world will look like, projecting top and bottom from an egg, also is not to be guessed at. Maybe something like the chick which used to go with the boast: "Hasn't scratched yet!" Nor does it help to know that the creator of the Roman egg-shell was "inspired by the era of long cigarette holders and low necklines."

The egg-skirt is to be accompanied by mink, dyed pink, blue, lilac and green; and the ensemble is for cocktail parties. Seeing it for the first time, a man might wonder whether he really is having the first martini of the day. Even so, he cannot be half as confused as those involved in that Cardinal-Brooklyn affair.

Razzle, Dazzle and Russell

President Eisenhower is playing in a fast league in the civil rights contest. The Southern Democrats with whom he is expected to match wits are "old pros" at the game. They have been pitching fast ones and curves, engaging in brilliant razzle-dazzle on the field, all their lives. It is not surprising that they should have made the President "look bad" on several plays.

There was Senator Russell's ingenious and quite fraudulent outcry against using federal troops to enforce school integration or race mixing in public places. The civil rights bill does not authorize the use of federal troops for anything. But because it contains a cross-reference to an old Reconstruction period statute which does, Senator Russell was able to send the President and others off on a false scent.

Senators Knowland and Humphrey are now sponsoring an amendment to take care of Senator Russell's spurious alarm. The amendment does not change the civil rights bill. It changes the Reconstruction-period statute. Thus its very terms emphasize how unfair Senator Russell was when he blamed the Administration bill for granting the President a power which Presidents have actually possessed for more than 80 years. But Senator Russell brazenly goes right on claiming credit for discovering a flaw which Mr. Eisenhower had not known about.

More serious, perhaps, is the President's news conference comment which seemed to indicate he was ready to junk Section 3 of the bill, though he had specifically supported it just 24 hours previously. Section 3 authorizes the Attorney General to seek civil injunctions in support of equality in other than voting rights. It may have to be sacrificed ultimately in order to get any bill passed at all. But if the President sacrifices it prematurely, without a quid pro quo from the Southerners, he may wake up some morning to find that all he has left is a meaningless husk of a bill, and the echo of Southern laughter in his ears.

Give St. Louis a Watchdog

One of the most important features of the proposed new St. Louis Charter is its creation of a brand-new post of City Auditor. This official would be elected directly by the people. He would be completely independent of the Mayor, and his principal duty would be to assure the taxpayers that their money was buying the municipal services for which it was intended—not being siphoned off into some wasteful use.

The City Auditor would act as one of the principal checks on the Mayor. (Those who complain that the Charter would make the Mayor a dictator conveniently ignore the fact the Auditor would be looking over the Mayor's shoulder all the time). The Auditor would be required to inspect the general fiscal books and records of the City at least once a year. And he would enjoy authority to conduct a surprise audit on any city department or agency whenever he deemed it advisable.

Reports of all such audits woud be made directly to the Board of Aldermen, with one copy to the Mayor and another made public for the information of the voters. This would assure the people against suppression of facts uncovered in the audit. The Auditor also would be expected to suggest improvements in the procedures and systems of the various departments.

Moreover since the Auditor in addition would be required to make investigations requested by the Board of Aldermen, still another effective check on the City Administration would be provided; an Auditor who might not act on his own initiative could be required to act by the Aldermen.

To assure that not any Tom, Dick or Harry could file for this post, the Charter requires that candidates must be Certified Public Accountants. And to attempt to avoid a situation in which an Audior was politically dependent upon the Mayor, the Auditor would be elected in off-years—that is, midway through the sitting Mayor's term.

The new City Auditor would assume some of the functions of the Comptroller, whose office would be abolished. St. Louis Comptrollers have on occasion been referred to as "watchdogs of the Treasury," but that was an inaccuracy. Under the present Charter the Comptroller authorizes expenditures before they are made. If he were then to audit these transactions in effect he would be auditing himself, as Orville E. Hodge did in Illinois with such disastrous results.

St. Louis does not now enjoy any of the guarantees of honest and efficient government that would be provided by the Auditor's post under the new Charter. That alone is reason enough for a vote of overwhelming approval on Aug. 6.

Our Pre-Atomic Laws

Atomic legislation is sadly lacking in most of the 48 states. With 500,000 workers in this country engaged in handling radioactive substances in 4000 plants, legislation is a pressing necessity. Yet only three states—New York, Pennsylvania and Texas—have atomic laws which are considered adequate—and many of the other states have no laws on the subject whatever.

Already there have been two instances in which hazards to public health have broken out at private industrial plants using radioisotopes. Numerous claims have been filed for injuries from radiation, yet the workmen's compensation laws have not been brought up to the Atomic Age. A dramatic illustration of our atomic legal inadequacies occurred when fire broke out in a private plant using radio-isotopes and the management refused to admit the fire department. This was not very sensible, but neither would it have been sensible to contaminate the entire community, as could have happened if firemen ignorant of the special dangers involved had turned their hoses on radio-active materials.

The Atomic Energy Commission should, we think, be taking the lead in drafting model laws, pointing out to the states the advisability of adopting them, and in general encouraging uniformity as well as adequacy of state legislation on the subject.

Did Carl Buck Get Justice?

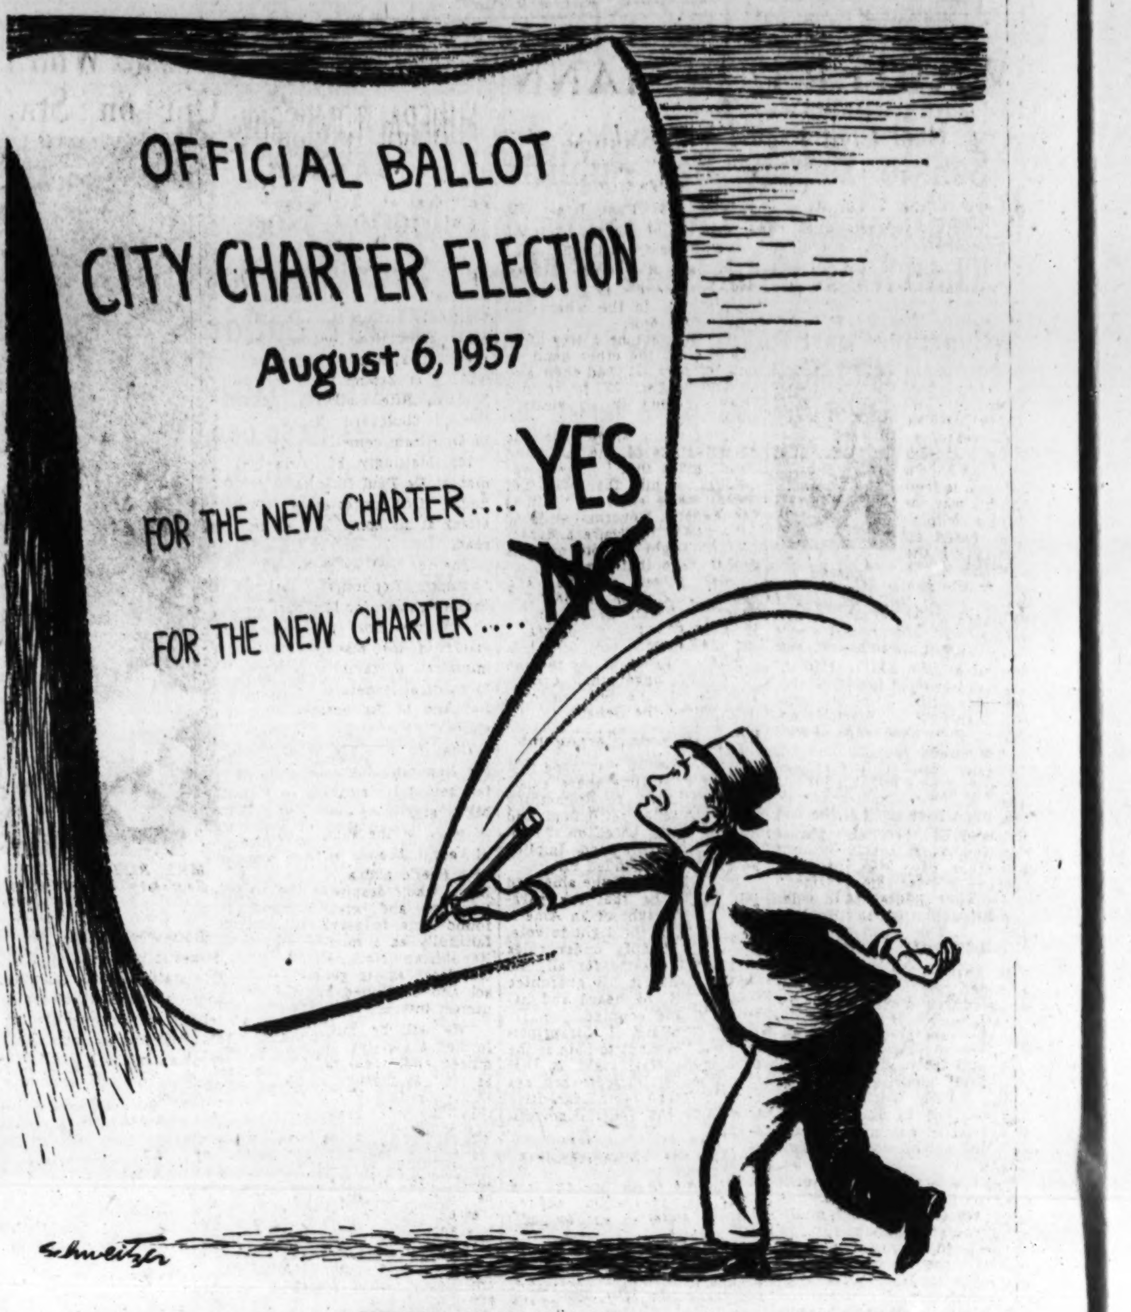
Carl H. Buck, a former St. Louisan, had an excellent 18-year-record as a marine until a court-martial convicted him in 1952 of stealing three boxes of chevrons worth $496. The hard fight that this determined man has been making since then to clear his name emphasizes the unusual aspects of the case.

Although the Navy Department said in January 1956, that Buck had exhausted all legal means open to him, he since has won the strong support of Senators Hennings of Missouri, Douglas of Illinois and Mundt of South Dakota. Senator Dougas has noted incidents that cast doubt on the court-martial; the defense counsel gave some testimony for the prosecution; the main witness had an interest in the case; one of three witnesses who said they saw the theft asserted Buck was not the culprit; according to the evidence adduced, it would have been almost physically impossible for Buck to have transported the boxes of chevrons in his automobile. Yet the court-martial took only seven minutes to find the master sergeant guilty.

A Navy Board of Review ruled no larceny had been committed, threw out the charges and returned Buck to duty six months after the court-martial. The Marine Corps appealed the case and a few days later Buck was again held in arrest. This appeal was upheld by the Military Court of Appeals and a second board of review and Buck was dishonorably discharged. Buck moved with his wife and two small children to Washington, where he is employed as a baker, and has been seeking to have his case reopened.

The Navy Judge Advocate General has now ordered the entire Buck record taken from the warehouse for a complete review of the court-martial and the appellate proceedings. A special board has changed his discharge to a general discharge under honorable conditions. The Hennings Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights is going to check the case.

It is most unusual for any court-martial proceedings to be so thoroughly rechecked. But the nature of the evidence against the defendant, the persons who have interested themselves in the case and the official actions already taken all combine to indicate that Carl H. Buck is a man who may have been a victim of gross injustice.



WHERE TO MARK IT

21 Benefits for St. Louis

From a 'Fact Book' Concerning the St. Louis Charter Election, Aug. 6, Prepared by the Citizens Charter Committee

1. You Vote for More Aldermen.

Today no citizen can vote for more than two members of the 29-member Board of Aldermen, the group that makes the laws in St. Louis. The new City Charter will let him vote for nine of the 15 members—a majority. His direct influence on the law-making process in St. Louis will be much greater than it has been.

2. A Board of Aldermen for ALL the People.

Today St. Louis has one of the largest—and one of the most unwieldy—boards of aldermen in the United States. We have four more aldermen than even New York City. Each of 28 wards in St. Louis elects one member of the board. Only the president is elected by the voters of the entire city. It is only natural that special interest groups exercise undue influence. The interests of the whole city—and of all its residents—play second fiddle.

The new City Charter will give St. Louis better balance between the city-wide viewpoint and the neighborhood viewpoint. It sets up a Board of Aldermen that will have seven members and a president elected by a city-wide vote, and seven other members elected from that many different wards.

3. Traffic Control by Experts, Not Amateurs.

Today traffic control in St. Louis is crippled by politics and the practice of "aldermanic courtesy"—which makes any one of the 28 aldermen the final authority on traffic matters in his ward. The Master Traffic Plan is only partly in effect; St. Louis has more stop signs than any other city in the world; too often traffic crawls when it should flow.

The new City Charter will give St. Louis a Department of Traffic Engineering and Control, and a director who is an experienced traffic engineer. This director will have real authority over speed limits, one-way streets, stop signs, etc.

4. No More Minority Government.

Today any committee of the Board of Aldermen can kill a proposed bill simply by refusing to report it out for a vote by the full board. Only a majority vote of the aldermen can force a bill out of committee against the committee's will—and in practice this almost never happens. Often a committee will pigeonhole a bill because one member wants it that way.

The new City Charter provides that any five members of the new 15-member Board of Aldermen will be able to force a bill out of the hands of a board committee.

5. Regular Audit for Honest Spending.

Today there is no such thing as a regular and independent audit of how the city departments are spending the taxpayers' money. The Comptroller authorizes departmental expenditures before they are made, so if he undertook such an audit he would be auditing himself. And the Board of Aldermen has no staff of auditors to check on the appropriations city officials ask for, or to find out how they spend their money.

The new City Charter sets up the new elective office of City Auditor (and abolishes the office of Comptroller). The City Auditor—who must be a C.P.A.—and his staff will make independent audits of all city financial transactions, investigate financial operations of city departments, provide aldermen with a staff of trained auditors to supply the information.

6. Better Run Health Clinics and Hospitals.

Today these vital city activities are part of the sprawling, oversized Department of Public Welfare. They cannot receive the care they should have.

The new City Charter sets up a separate department for health and hospitals. It provides that the director must be a doctor of medicine who is experienced in public health work.

7. Non-Political City Judges.

Today the judges of the Circuit Court and other state courts are no longer forced to think of party politics. They are protected by the nonpartisan court plan, but not the two city judges.

The new City Charter sets up a judicial commission to select three candidates for each vacancy as judge. The Mayor will then appoint one of the three to fill a vacancy.

8. An Even Stronger Merit System.

Today the Charter forbids discrimination in hiring city employes because of politics, race and religion. The new City Charter also forbids discrimination because of membership in a labor union. And the new Charter requires either premium pay for overtime or compensating time off.

9. No More Spending What We Haven't Got.

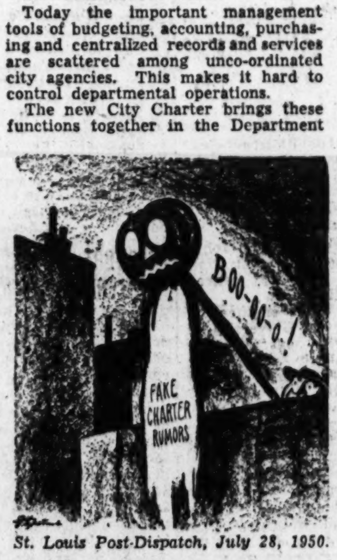
It has not been uncommon for the city to finish the year having spent more money than it took in.

The new City Charter plainly forbids spending anything that the city does not have in its treasury or in prospect.

10. Tools to Cut Waste.

Today the important management tools of budgeting, accounting, purchasing and centralized records and services are scattered among unco-ordinated city agencies. This makes it hard to control departmental operations.

The new City Charter brings these functions together in the Department of Administration. It provides for a staff of specialists to analyze financial problems and help city officials improve efficiency and avoid waste.



St. Louis Post-Dispatch, July 28, 1950.

Political Scare Campaign

11. Better Parks, Playgrounds.

Today the city has many activities in these fields. It runs picnic grounds, baseball diamonds, golf courses, swimming pools, tennis courts, gardens, etc. The efficient handling of these matters is handicapped by the fact that they are under the already-outsized and unwieldy Department of Public Welfare.

12. Better Chance of Getting Top Men for Top City Jobs.

Today the Charter hinders the hiring of nonresidents for even policy-making jobs that also require professional training no matter how hard it is to find qualified persons in St. Louis.

The new City Charter allows the city to look any place in the United States for the men best qualified to serve as directors of the key departments of Administration, Health and Hospitals, Traffic and Personnel. They must become residents within six months of being hired; however the new Charter also improves the procedures for recruiting scarce scientific and professional employes.

And the new Charter's higher salaries for elective officials should attract better candidates for the most important jobs of all.

13. Stronger Bar on "Conflict of Interest" Activities.

The new City Charter provides more protection than the old against loss resulting from a city officer or employe taking improper advantage of his official position to influence a city sale or purchase to his own interest.

14. More Voice for Citizens Part in City Affairs.

Today there are citizen members of boards and commissions which work with established city departments. However, they are often surrounded and sometimes dominated by the city officials who serve as members of those same boards and commissions—despite the fact their major functions are to hear appeals from decisions of city officials and advise on policy matters.

The new City Charter also sets up boards and commissions to advise many city departments. However, it specifies that no city officer or employe and no alderman can be a member of these boards or commissions, with the sole exception of the City Plan Commission.

15. Easier for Citizens to Fix Responsibility.

Today the city works under a Charter written in 1914 when the Mayor's job was regarded as part time. The Mayor's responsibilities have multiplied since—but not his authority to handle them.

The new City Charter recognizes that the Mayor must have authority to go with responsibility. It makes him responsible for the annual budget and for avoiding deficits, gives him a stronger voice in personnel policies and pay plans, sets up clearer lines of command to his department heads.

16. Easier for Citizens to Remove Incompetent City Officials.

17. No More Same Old Charter for 43 Years.

One big reason our 1914 Charter has never been replaced is that it has no requirement for automatic consideration every so often to see if it is still adequate.

The new City Charter provides that the people must vote every 12 years on whether they want a Board of Freeholders to write another City Charter.

18. New Rights for Property Owners.

Today a corporate property owner, but not an individual, can demand a jury trial in appealing the verdict of a condemnation commission which has fixed the value of land taken over by the city for public use.

The new Charter gives individual owners of private property this same right of a jury trial. It also requires the city to pay condemnation damages more quickly.

19. Stronger Human Relations Commission.

The old Charter did not set up any city agency to deal with civil rights. A few years ago, an ordinance created the Council on Human Relations.

The new Charter gives the permanency of Charter status to this city agency, and changes its name to the Human Relations Commission.

20. Business-like Airport Management.

The Aviation Commission is given Charter status; the administrative set-up of the St. Louis Municipal Airport is much improved.

21. More Citizen Control Over Legislation Passed by Aldermen.

The new Charter makes it harder for the Aldermen to pass ordinances or laws that are not subject to referendum—the power of the people to sign petitions forcing the aldermen to submit an ordinance they have passed to a vote by the people.

Milon Marusic, Sam Snead Knocked Out in Wave of PGA Upsets

Algonquin Pro Loses By 2 and 1

DAYTON, O., July 19 (UP)—Four of the favorites, Sam Snead, Doug Ford, Tommy Bolt and Mike Souchak were nocked out of the P.G.A. golf championship today as a wave of upsets made it one of the "blackest Fridays" in the tournament's 39-year-old history.

Milon Marusic of Algonquin Golf Club, Webster Groves, Mo., lost to Don Whitt, Alameda, Calif., 2 and 1.

On this third day of match play in this 162-hole grind, when a lot of the top players fall by the wayside, that old "Black Friday" jinx for the favorites was working harder than ever.

First to fall on the sun-baked 6773-yard Miami Valley golf course was Souchak as he tumbled before the younger of the golfing Hebert brothers, Lionel, 2 and 1.

Harmon Jolts Bolt.

After that it was Bolt, who up until today had been playing some of the best golf of his career, joining Souchak and Ford on the sidelines. He lost out to the veteran Claude Harmon, the former masters champion from Mamaroneck, N. Y., 1 up. Bolt missed a 10-foot putt on the eighteenth green which would have evened the match.

After Bolt came Snead, who started out today's fourth round 10 under par for the 47 holes it took him to down his first three opponents. But Snead, who has won the P.G.A. crown three times, didn't have it today as he bowed to young Don Finsterwald, of Athens, O., 3 and 1.

Joining the Hebert brothers, Burkemo, Harmon and Finsterwald in the quarterfinals were Don Whitt, Charles Sheppard of West Newton, Mass., and United States open champion Dick Mayer.

Sheppard defeated Warren Smith of San Antonio, Tex., 4 and 3 and Mayer beat Ted Kroll of Ford Lauderdale, Fla., 1 up.

There were a lot of name stars on the outside looking in after a wave of upsets in this all-match play tournament which saw defending Champion Jackie Burke, former P.G.A. kings Vic Ghezzi and Denny Shute; former United States Open Champion Jack Fleck and Gene Littler, one of the more promising young pros, eliminated yesterday.

Snead Ousts Watrous.

Snead, shooting four under par golf, defeated veteran Al Watrous, the P.G.A. senior's champion, in the morning round, 4 and 3, and then, after a hacking front nine in the third round, finally found his game again and fired two straight birdies and a par to down Henry Thoren, a 44-year-old home club pro from South Hamilton, Mass., 3 and 2, in the afternoon.

Ford downed Jim Guinnup of Lafayette, Ind., 4 and 3 in the morning and then beat Robert Gajda of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., 3 and 2 in the afternoon.

Marusic knocked out Mike Krak of Morgantown, W.Va., and Champion Burke, both by 2 and 1 scores.

Burkemo scored two 1-up triumphs yesterday, making it three in a row he has won by that margin. The Franklin, Mich., pro, who has won the title once and has been in the finals three of the last six years, bested Bill Heinlein of Carmel, Ind., in a second round extra hole match and then defeated Tony Holguin of Midlothian, Ill.

Bolt, who didn't arrive until eight hours before he teed off for his first round match on Wednesday put out Littler, 1 up, and then Eldon Briggs, a 44-year-old unemployed pro from Lansing, Mich., 7 and 6.

Mayer, although he had played only four rounds since he won the Open at Toledo last month, ousted Shelley Mayfield of Jericho, N.Y., 1 up, and Al Smith of Danville, Va., 5 and 3.

Souchak, playing in the tourney for the first time, beat Al Besselink of Grossinger, N.Y., 1 up, and Brien Charter of Janesville, Wis., 4 and 3.

Lionel Hebert, the youngest of the golfing brothers, put out Marty Furgol of Lemont, Ill., 3 and 1, and then whipped Charles Farlow of Greensboro, N.C., by the same margin.

His brother, Jay, downed Al Feminellin of Purchase, N.Y., 6 and 5, and then Charles Harper of Columbus, Ga., 1 up.

Whitt downed Henry Lindner of Nashville, Tenn., 1 up, and Ellsworth Vines, 4 and 3.

Warren Smith took Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah, 1 up, and Skee Riegel of Ithan, Pa., 3 and 2, while Sheppard bested Bob Moore, Fairfax, Calif., 2 up, and Buck White of Greenwood, Miss., 1 up.

Briggs had knocked out Fleck 1 up in the second round; Keiser beat Ghezzi, 3 and 2, and Vines took care of Shute, 1 up.

P.G.A. Scores.

Lionel Hebert, Lafayette, La., defeated Mike Souchak, Grossinger, N.Y., 2 and 1.

Torpid Ties Mark in Grand Circuit Race

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 19 (INS)—Torpid became the second three-year-old pacer in history to run a two-minute mile over a half-mile track last night when he hit the mark on the nose in winning the $5000 Springwood.

In winning the Grand Circuit feature at Saratoga Raceway, Torpid matched the world record set by Tar Heel in the 1951 Little Brown Jug at Delaware, O.

In capturing his nineteenth straight victory, and twenty-fourth in 26 starts, Torpid paced the last half in a scorching 58 seconds and the final quarter in 28 3-5 seconds.

Mrs. Mitchell Even With Mrs. Conant for 18 Holes in Final

By Robert Morrison

NORWOOD HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, July 19—A deliberate-playing Mrs. Dave Mitchell, veteran contender who has been a finalist three times, held St. Louis Country Club's Mrs. George Conant Jr. even for the first 18 holes of their District Women's golf final today.

They each scored 79, four over women's par. Each was one over par going out with 38, and three over on the back nine with 41.

The stronger, younger Mrs. Conant, a favorite though lacking in experience, was 3 up after the first four holes, but she lost the next three holes and thereafter it was a closer struggle.

Mrs. Mitchell was short with her approach at the first hole and took a bogey 5 to go one down. They halved the second hole in regulation par 3, then Mrs. Conant took a 2-up lead at the third when she hit a great approach to just three feet from the pin and made the putt for a birdie 3.

The St. Louis Country Club player then went three up at the fourth when Mrs. Mitchell trapped her second shot and took a bogey 5.

But from there to the first turn Mrs. Mitchell outplayed her opponent. She won the fifth when Mrs. Conant three-putted. She sank a 10-foot putt for a birdie 4 to win the sixth. She birdied the seventh with a brilliant second shot to the green on that women's par 5 while Mrs. Conant, also on in two, took three putts. The match now was even.

At the eighth Mrs. Mitchell hit wild off the tee but it didn't cost her the hole for Mrs. Conant three-putted again. When they halved the ninth with fives, they remained even.

Mrs. Conant, powerful but high strung, apparently was losing the psychological battle in the early part of the match. Little things like the flurry of flipped rule-book pages may have disturbed her more than her opponent.

At the tenth hole, Mrs. Conant took three from the edge of the green for a bogey 6 and went one down.

They halved the 11th and 12th in pars and then it was Mrs. Mitchell's turn to three-putt. She did it to lose the 13th and 14th and went 1 down.

But on the 15th Mrs. Conant continued the battle of three-putts by lapsing again from above the hole. Each bogied the 16th, as Mrs. Conant didn't seem to have a chance of making a 10-footer for her par.

At the 17th each was short of the green on that par 3 hole but Mrs. Conant outchipped Mrs. Mitchell and when Mrs. Mitchell missed her six-foot putt for a par, Mrs. Conant went one up.

Mrs. Conant's lead didn't last long. Her drive on No. 18 stopped under over-hanging tree limbs. She ticked her backswing and missed her second shot. She lost easily to Mrs. Mitchell's birdie 4, gained on a pitch to two feet from the pin. Thus they went to lunch even.

In the simifinals yesterday Mrs. Conant ran roughshod, 6 and 5, over 17-year-old newcomer Margaret Hill of Normandie, playing even with women's par. Mrs. Mitchell was seven over for the 19 holes she took to defeat the 18-year-old medalist, Kathy Fawcett of Norwood.

Score Says He Did Better Than Expected In His First Workout

CLEVELAND, July 19 (UP)—Herb Score felt much better today about his return to active duty with the Cleveland Indians.

Score worked out yesterday for the first time in two months, since being hit in the eye by a line drive during a game with the New York Yankees.

Score said he did much better than he expected after pitching a few half-speed fast balls and swinging at pitches served up by Manager Kerby Farrell.

"The first few times I caught the ball it looked a little fuzzy," the southpaw said. "Later on, it was all right."

"I suppose my eye has simply got to adjust itself," Score added.

Charles Ziegler Beats Brother In Junior Final

GREENBRIAR HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, July 19.—Fifteen-year-old Charles Ziegler, who was Ed Furgol's tow-headed caddie when the pro star was playing here, became the district junior golf champion today by defeating his 17-year-old brother, Larry, 4 and 2, in a scheduled 36-hole final.

Larry, who won the title last year, was 1 up when the brothers stopped for lunch after the morning round, but Charles caught up quickly. Though consistently outdriven by his older brother, Charles used an accurate short game to stay within one stroke of par with a 34 on the front nine and took a two-hole lead.

On the back nine, Charles matched par exactly for seven holes. Larry had five pars, but when he bogeyed Nos. 15 and 16, it was all over.

Kimacks Play Carondelet for Lead Tonight

Carondelet Sunday Morning Club and Kimacks, tied for first place in the Muny South Side baseball league with 8 and 4 records, meet tonight at 8:15 at Carondelet Park.

Carondelet, the 1956 state amateur champion and defending titleholder in the South Side circuit, is expected to send former Cardinal Jack Faszholz or Wally Holder to the mound. Manager Johnny Schaller has been using Faszholz in the infield, too, since Shortstop Chuck Vogt wen to Minnesota to play semi-pro ball.

Kimack Manager Herb Mueller probably will start Mel O'Bannon, who has to miss some games because of his railroad job, or Mel Anderson.

Women Play in Semifinals of Western Golf

OMAHA, Neb., July 19 (UP)—Mrs. Ann Casey Johnstone of Mason City, Iowa, who assumed the favorite role yesterday with an upset victory, met Anne Richardson of Columbus, Ohio, today in the feature semifinal match of the women's Western amateur golf tournament.

Mrs. Johnstone ousted the preveous favorite, Mrs. Barbara Romack Porter of Sacramento, Calif., 2 up on 18 yesterday with a brilliant comeback.

Mrs. Johnstone, former Iowa State women's champion and last year's Palm Beach open winner, was two down after the first dozen holes, pulled on the 15th and won the 17th and 18th to gain the semifinals.

The victory avenged a defeat administered this winter by Mrs. Porter in the semifinals of the St. Augustine, Fla., women's amateur. The Californian won the match, 8 and 7.

Miss Richardson fired a 3-over-par-76 to eliminate Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, Md., 2 up.

Miss Bailey, national intercollegiate champion, advanced by stopping Andrea Cohn, 17, Waterloo, Iowa, 3 and 1. Miss Riley, a five-time Curtis Cup team member, dropped two 20-foot birdie putts as she beat Mary Mills, 17, Ocean Springs, Miss., 3 and 2.

Stormy Hutch Bars Door in Brooklyn, but Not on Dodgers

Mizell Is Scapegoat In Grand-Slam Scene Of Cards' 10-9 Loss

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

PITTSBURGH, July 19—Red-necked Fred Hutchinson today had lost the National League lead and his temper. Whether he'll regain either soon is a question as unanswered as the manager's reason for letting a left-hander pitch to a right-handed hitter in a crucial moment during yesterday's fiasco in Flatbush.

General Manager Frank Lane, his boss, and reporters, who've got a job to do, tried to inquire about the unusual at Ebbets Field, a southpaw facing Gil Hodges, who feeds on left-handers as though they were tender sprouts. But Hitchinson, who had railed at Vinegar Bend Mizell on the mound after finally relieving him, refused to permit anyone into the clubhouse for the first time since he became Cardinal manager.

Hutchinson's anger with Mizell was obvious to a children and church group's crowd of more than 23,000, but perhaps the granite-jawed competitor was mad at himself, too. In the judgment of Lane and others the self-rebuke would have been merited.

"Were we happy to see him leave Mizell in there to pitch to Hodges," one of the Brooklyn coaches exclaimed happily, displaying the cat-that-swallowed-the-canary grin prevalent in the Brooklyn clubhouse after the Dodgers' 10-9 victory in 11 innings.

Fall-Guy Merritt.

Hodges, walloping a record-matching and game-tying grand slam off Mizell, capped a five-run rally in the home ninth just after the Cardinals had stormed from behind to score seven times and take a sizable lead. The Dodgers then won against Lloyd Merritt in the second overtime inning on a double and an error. The Redbirds officially weren't knocked out of first place until then, but they already were out on their feet.

The abortive effort by St. Louis pitchers will install that monstrosity in the trophy case as an ugly example of Redbird relationships with the Dodgers at Ebbets Field, where—it's hard to believe now—the Cards were within two outs of taking the season's series.

Ten bases on balls and a hit batsman enabled Brooklyn to hitch-hike to victory, even more than Hodges' four-run homer off Mizell, who presumably had been brought in to retire left-handed-hitting Duke Snider and had been permitted to tarry to be destroyed by the Dodger righthanded hitter. The strategy of bringing in a southpaw to oppose Snider is both conventional and sound, but veteran Brooklyn observers noted that seldom are lefthanders allowed to face Hodges and other right-handed sluggers.

Mizell, who lost in relief to Brooklyn at St. Louis June 24, 6 to 4, came in after Hoyt Wilhelm, inheriting a 9-4 lead, filled the bases with none out on an infield hit and two walks. Vinegar Bend got Snider on a sharp grounder, one run scoring. With righthanders Herm Wehmeier and Lloyd Merritt warming up, Mizell stayed on to pass Gini Cimoli, loading the bases once again and bringing up the potential tying run to the plate.

Hodges, Hornsby and Kiner.

Hodges' smash on a "1-1" pitch went into the left-center field stands and not only tied the score, but enabled the Brooklyn blacksmith to match Rogers Hornsby and Ralph Kiner for grand slam homers (12) in a National League career. Hodges' dramatic drive more than made up for an error which had made four of the Redbirds' seven runs unearned in the ninth.

The savage St. Louis inning, enabling the Cards to finish with 15 hits to Brooklyn's 10, saw the Redbird bench deliver in a manner that was inspirational — until the abominable pitching wiped it out.

Going into the final frame, the Dodgers owned a 4-2 lead in a game which had been a hurling hook-up between Larry Jackson and lefty Johnny Podres. A walk by Jackson had set up one of two Brooklyn runs driven in by Junior Gilliam on a fifth-inning double and another pass by Willard Schmidt had paved the way for the home club's fourth tally in the eighth.

Then in the ninth Ken Boyer singled and Manager Walter Alston of the Dodgers replaced Podres with relief ace Clem Labine, who yielded a pinch single to Joe Cunningham, struck out Wally Moon, but was hammered for a game-tying two-base blow by Eddie Kasko. When Hobie Landrith batted for Schmidt and singled, Kasko scored with the run that put the Redbirds ahead.

Fun While It Lasted.

At this point lefthanded Danny McDevitt took over and Don Blasingame was safe on Hodges' fumble. After Al Dark fanned for the out that should have ended the inning, Stan Musial singled Landrith over. Del Ennis' triple scored two more and following a pass to Boyer, Cunningham tied a pinch-hitting record with his second safety of the inning, scoring Ennis with the seventh run of the frame.

In the five-run Brooklyn retaliation the Dodgers needed only two hits, Carl Furillo's infield single and Hodges' homer, because Wilhelm and Mizell contributed four walks before Wehmeier replaced Vinegar Bend. It was interesting to note that Mizell, the lefthander brought in to face a lefthander, then permitted to remain to face the righthanders, also was allowed to stay in after the four-run homer because another lefthanded hitter was coming up.

Only after a pass to Sandy Amoros was Mizell replaced. Hutchinson, storming out, grabbed the ball from the pitcher and jawed heatedly at him. Hutch's disposition wasn't any sunnier at that point, apparently, because he justifiably had relieved veterans Musial and Dark after the Cards got their long lead.

Brooklyn won in the eleventh, which Snider led off with a double against Merritt. When Cimoli bunted for a sacrifice, Snider beat the pitcher's throw to third and continued on to score the winning run as the ball — and ball game — went right through Kasko's hands.

Manager Hutchinson stalked off to lock himself and his ball club in their dressing quarters, but Hutch locked the door after first place was gone. His job now will be to pick up the pieces and mend the spirit, his own as well as his players'.

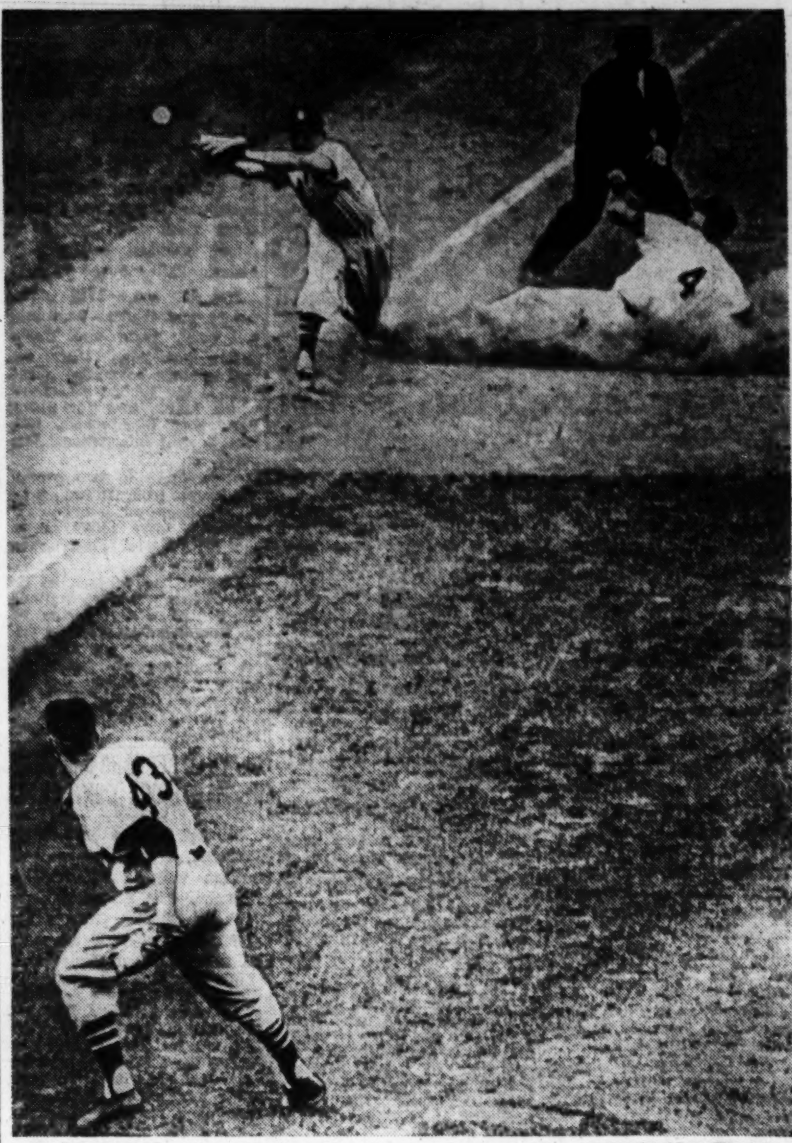
Killing Nine Birds With One Ball



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

This was the end of the line for the Cardinals yesterday afternoon at Ebbets Field. That white object flying free is a baseball, getting away from Cardinal Third Baseman EDDIE KASKO, in the eleventh inning. That man in the dirt is Brooklyn's DUKE SNIDER, and when he saw the ball escape Kasko, Snider did likewise. He got right up and ran home with the winning run. Cardinal No. 43 at the lower left is Pitcher LLOYD MERRITT. He had fielded Gino Cimoli's bunt and threw to third in an effort to get Snider, advancing from second. Snider had the throw beat, before Kasko's error was made, however. The umpire is LEE BALLANFANT.

Giants Definitely Out At New York; All Signs Point to San Francisco

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP)—The New York Giants are dead, officially.

By next year, the National League club will have shifted to San Francisco, or Minneapolis, or someplace.

Club president Horace Stoneham laid it on the line yesterday, announcing he will recommend to his board of directors that the Giants quit the Polo Grounds at the end of the season, and indicating there is very little chance of the club finding another ball yard in New York.

Stoneham also made it clear that the Giants already have league permission to transfer their franchise, even if the Brooklyn Dodgers choose to stay behind.

League permission for the Giants to switch to San Francisco and the Dodgers to move to Los Angeles—when the two clubs decided to do so—was thought to be a package deal, with one move hinging on the other.

"That is not true," said Stoneham. "They are two separate deals, one not contingent upon the other. We were given permission to move irrespective of what the Dodgers do . . . but that pertained only to our moving to San Francisco.

"Should the Giants desire to move to Minneapolis, for instance, we would have to seek league permission all over again."

Stoneham indicated San Francisco and Minneapolis are the prime possibilities for a new Giant home, but left the door open for any "satisfactory deal"—which he defined as a new and adequate ball park and a rental rate based on a percentage of the attendance.

Mayor Christopher of San Francisco is on his way to New York on other business, but with plans to meet with Stoneham to present a proposal.

Joe Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, said last night the American League club "wouldn't stand in the Giants' way if they wanted to draft the San Francisco territory." The Red Sox own the San Francisco franchise in the Pacific Coast League.

Another California mayor, John Purchio of Hayward, will fly here today to offer the Giants an 8½-million-dollar stadium in the community located about 30 miles from San Francisco.

Stoneham, regretting a move from New York, said the club "would be stupid to stay" here from a money viewpoint. "I don't think New York can support three clubs," he said, "and I'm not so sure it can support two. From what I've been given to understand, the City of New York is bankrupt."

The Giants' president also said it "would not be feasible" for the Giants to play at Yankee Stadium because of the reported $600,000 yearly rental requested by the American League club. And he agreed with New York city officials who have turned down suggestions that taxpayers' money be used to fuild a stadium for either the Giants or Dodgers.

"I can understand the city officials' way of thinking," he said. "They would like to have a ball club in New York, but they say they will not build a stadium for a ball club, and rightly so."

Stoneham said that increased television revenue guaranteed in a contract signed with a pay-as-you-see firm "was not the prime purpose for our decision to move.

"I think everybody must know by now that we simply cannot continue to play here. We cannot accommodate the fans even if they wanted to come. Our parking and transportation is becoming more acute each year.

"We cannot possibly survive under those conditions."

Tie in Golf Tourney.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, July 19 (UP)—G. W. Roberts of Columbus, Ohio, tied with Britain's T. A. Torrance for the Founder's Cup in the senior's societies' international golf tournament yesterday. Both had 74, while Maurice Smith of Kansas City and Col. Martin Lindgrove of Morristown, N.J., shot 76s and Egon Quittner of Rydal, Pa., had 78.

red bird notes

PITTSBURGH, July 19—Von McDaniel, beaten only once in five decisions, will face a second-division team for the first time when he pitches tonight's opener of a four-game series with the Pirates at Forbes Field.

Duke Snider's third-inning homer, his twenty-first of the season, was the Dodger slugger's sixth off St. Louis pitching. . . . Stan Musial's double, on which the man tallied the first Cardinal run when Del Ennis followed with a single in the fourth, was the 600th of his career. . . . Wally Moon tried and missed a diving catch on Junior Gilliam's two-run double in the fifth.

The first three Cardinal pinch-hitters delivered yesterday. Eddie Miksis opened the eighth with a safety and scored on Al Dark's one-out double. Both Joe Cunningham and Hobie Landrith came through in the ninth. Cunningham became only the seventh in National League history to hit safely twice in one inning as a pinch-batter. The most recent had been Sid Gordon, Giants, 1947.

Brooklyn, still the club to beat, won six out of seven on this home stand against Western contenders. . . . The Dodgers now have a 9-7 record against the Cards this season, but the Cards still own a 5-4 edge at Ebbets Field. . . . "I sure was surprised to see (Wilmer) Mizell stay in to pitch to me," said Gil Hodges, whose parents, in Brooklyn from their Petersburg (Ind.) home to see him honored tonight, watched happily as the popular Dodger first baseman blasted his grand-slam homer. American Wins Title In German Golf Meet

COLOGNE, Germany, July 19 (AP)—Harold Ridgley of Havertown, Pa., won the international German amateur golf championship.

He beat Gene Eyler of Olean, N. Y., 6 and 5, after shooting a game which German experts said was the best ever played in the championship.

Both Ridgeley and Eyler are stationed with the United States Armed Forces in England and Ridgley recently was runnerup in the British amateur tourney.

Roberts Fined And Suspended For Umpire Row

PHILADELPHIA, July 19 (AP)—Robin Roberts, the Philadelphia Phillies great right-hander, who is suffering through his worst season in baseball, has taken his latest adversity philosophically.

"It could have been worse," said Roberts last night, sitting out the first day of a three-day suspension imposed by National League President Warren Giles.

"If they hadn't stopped me, I could have gotten into a lot worse trouble."

The "they" mentioned was Phils Manager Mayo Smith and several teammates, who collared the husky pitcher before he could commit mayhem on Umpire Jocko Conlan in the midst of a rhubarb here Wednesday night.

It came on a controversial play at second base which killed a Phillies' first inning threat against the Milwaukee Braves. It was settled 18 minutes later with Roberts ejected from the game.

Roberts received a telegram from Giles yesterday advising him of the suspension and that he would be fined $50. The telegram said:

"Recognize tension under which you were playing. But any suspension less than this for your actions cannot be justified."

It was only the second time in his nine major league seasons that Roberts has had to be disciplined because of his actions on the field.

Roberts conceded he was wrong in calling Conlan a name and added:

"I guess I was taking my spite for having a bad season out on the umpire."

Roberts has lost six straight games and is 6-12 on the season.

World Mile Mark Lowered To 3:57.2 by Ibbotson

LONDON, July 19 (AP)—Derek Ibbotson of Britain tonight ran a world record breaking 3 minute 57.2 second mile to defeat a great international field before a roaring crowd of 35,000.

Four men in the race bettered four minutes. The listed world mark is 3:58 established by John Landy of Australia at Turku, Finland on June 21, 1954.

Stanislav Jungwirth of Czechoslovakia, was third in 3:59.1.

Ken Wood of Britain was fourth in 3:59.3.

In an invitation 110 meter hurdles, Elias Gilbert of Winston-Salem, N.C., equalled the British all-comers mark of :13.9, easily defeating Eamonn Kinsella of Ireland and two English hurdlers.

Dave Sime, of Duke, ran a wind assisted :09.5 in the 100-yard dash, winning the first match event of the evening. He bettered the British all-comers mark which was 9.6.

Swede Under 4 Minutes.

STOCKHOLM, July 19 (AP)—Dan Waern of Sweden ran the mile in 3:59.3 tonight to become Scandinavia's first sub 4-minute miler.

The 24-year-old Swede was only third place in an international field of runners when the bell rung for the last lap but put on a magnificent finish that left all opponents far behind.

Skin Junior Seeks Fifth Cahokia Win

Cahokia Downs will close its 60-day-and-night race program tonight with a $1500 handicap over the five-furlong route as the feature. The race, seventh on the program, will be for three-year-olds and up.

George Schatz's Skin Junior, which has won four races at the meeting, will carry top weight of 121 pounds and conceded from nine to 18 pounds to its rivals. Egyptian Queen, which ran third in the second division of the St. Louis Derby last Saturday, gets in at 103 pounds. Others in the race are Deep Sun, Birch and Roman Flash, the Mrs. E. B. Shipp entry; Marcy Anne and Sabrun.

The meeting will come to a close with the longest race in the history of night racing in the district. It will be over the two miles and five-sixteenths route. Broadway Jack will be after his fourth win.

A crowd of 8476 sent $345,087 through the mutuel windows on last night's program, with the final race wagering totaling $42,353, tops for the night. . . . Jake Colclasure had two winners, Ghent ($3.40) and King Gallant $7.80) to run his total for the meet to 47. . . . Jimmy Vinson gained his forty-fourth win with Careful Devil ($7.00). . . . The double on Swing Len and Careful Devil paid $30.20 for $2.

Hoot Song Triumphs In $57,000 Trot Race

YONKERS, N.Y., July 19 (UP)—Hoot Song, owned by the Two Gaits Farm of Indianapolis, Ind., and driven by Ralph Baldwin, closed with a rush to capture last night's third running of the $57,812 Yonkers Trot before 14,425 fans at Yonkers Raceway.

Reserved off the early pace, the winner finished fast through the stretch to gain a hard verdict over the front-running Silver Way. The heavily-favored Time Me was third in the seven-horse field.

Hoot Song was timed in 2:16-1-5 for the mile and a sixteenth and returned $46.50, 15.60 and 4.90 across the board.

Rice Helps Lift Braves to Top

Drives in 3 of Runs In 4-2 Win

NEW YORK, July 19 (UP)—The irate Milwaukee fans who hanged Fred Haney in effigy the other day can cut him down now. The suddenly steamed-up Braves, winners in six of their nine games since the All-Star break, are a full game ahead of the National League pack today.

Only Monday night some of the Milwaukee burghers were fit to be tied after the Brooklyn Dodgers massacred the Braves, 20-4. That's when they strung up the little Milwaukee manager in effigy.

All was forgiven—temporarily, anyway—when the Braves defeated the Phillies, 4-2, last night for a sweep of the three-game series. The Braves were without slugger Hank Aaron but ex-Cardinal Del Rice drove in three runs with a homer and a single to take up the slack as Aaron rested an injured ankle and joined Joe Adcock, Del Crandall, Felix Mantilla and Billy Bruton on the Braves' injured list.

Bob Buhl, who had lost four in a row, went 8⅔ innings to beat the Phils a third time for a 10-6 season record. Don McMahon, young righthander who hasn't given up a run yet in 14 relief innings this season, fanned Harry Anderson for the final out after Buhl walked two in the ninth. Curt Simmons was the losing pitcher.

Second Baseman Red Schoendienst started three of four Milwaukee doubleplays. He played the last two innings in center field in the make-shift Braves' lineup—the first time he has played the outfield since 1947 with St. Louis.

Brooklyn remained 1½ games off the pace by beating St. Louis, 10-9, in an 11-inning contest, while Cincinnati nipped the Giants, 2-1, and Pittsburgh defeated Chicago, 6-5.

Gus Bell provided Cincinnati with enough runs to win when he hit a two-run homer off Stu Miller in the third inning. Johnny Klippstein held the Giants scoreless until Bobby Thomson opened the ninth with a homer. When Ed Bressoud followed with a single, Raul Sanchez relieved Klippstein and got the final three outs.

The Pirates won their game from the Cubs with a four-run rally in the ninth. Bill Mazeroski's infield single with the bases loaded scored Dick Groat with the winning run. Ernie Banks and Chuck Tanner each hit inside-the-park homers for the Cubs. Reliever Luis Arroyo was the winning pitcher.

The Yankees opened up a five-game lead in the American League, their biggest margin of the year, with a 3-2 victory over Detroit, as Baltimore rallied for five runs in the ninth to lick the second-place White Sox, 6-2. Boston beat Kansas City, 3-1, and Washington blanked Cleveland, 4-0.

Southpaw Billy Hoeft of the Tigers was working on a 2-0 lead when he ran afoul of a three-run rally by the Yanks in the eighth. With two out, Jerry Coleman singled and Mickey Mantle walked. Yogi Berra then singled for one run and Hank Bauer doubled for two more. Al Cicotte, the third of four Yankee pitchers, gained the victory.

Billy Goodman's pinch single with the bases loaded, good for two runs, was the big blow in Baltimore's ninth-inning assault against lefty Jack Harshman of the White Sox. Oriole relief ace George Zuverink gave up one hit in the last two innings after taking over for starter Billy O'Dell to post his ninth triumph. Walt Dropo homered for Chicago.

Two errors by Kansas City Third Baseman Hector Lopez enabled the Red Sox to score two unearned runs in their victory over the A's.

Calhoun 13-5 Choice to Win From Ballarin

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Rory Calhoun, a sturdy middleweight, who has had trouble with two guys named Joe—Giardello and Giambra—hope sto get back on the win path tonight in a 10-round match with Germinal Ballarin, the Frenchman with the flowing mustache. (The bout will be telecast by KSD-TV).

Calhoun, ranked fourth among the challengers to Ray Robinson's title in the latest National Boxing Association rankings, had won 23 straight before he lost to Spider Webb in Chicago, last August. He reeled off four more before losing to Giardello on a split decision, May 17 at Cleveland. In his last fight he was held to a draw by Giambra, June 21 at Syracuse.

As a result of his fine 27-2-1 record for 30 pro fights, the White Plains, N. Y., boxer is a 13 to 5 favorite. In his only United States start, Ballarin won a unanimous decision over back-pedalling Bob Provizzi of Freeland, Pa., July 1 at St. Nicholas Arena in New York.

STOCK TRADE IS CAUTIOUS; STUDY 4% MONEY RATE

NEW YORK, July 19 (UP)—Stocks made their best showing of the day in the last hour of trading today, paring losses in many issues and pushing others into high ground.

Chemicals and aircrafts spaker the late rally. Du Pont jumped almost 2 in the chemicals after being down most of the day, and United Aircraft rose sarply to rule up 2.

Other major groups followed the leaders. The buying developed after profit-taking and caution had combined to send the market irregularly lower. Activity picked up on the improvement.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was .09 of a point higher at 515.73 at the close. The 20 rails rose .20 to 151.84 while the 15 utilities fell 27 to 70.67.

(Standard & Poor's average of 500 stocks was .05 of a point higher at 48.58 at the close. The 425 industrials rose .07 to 52.63, the 25 rails lost .10 at 31.40 and the 50 utilities dropped .08 to 32.84.)

The rails got into the act just before the close, with Baltimore & Ohio and Louisville & Nashville setting the pace. Each rose around 1. American Telephone sharply pared its earlier loss of more than 1.

Hesitation was apparent, brokers said, as Wall Street looked over the United States Treasury's new refinancing offer which is at the highest interest rates in more than 24 years. The boost confirmed further the tight money-high interest rate situation which has acted as a depressing influence on the stock market. Aside from this, there were encouraging items in the rise of personal income in June to a record and the increase in rail freight traffic above year ago levels.

The Associated Press reported that the news that Russia had cold-shouldered a British plan designed to speed East-West negotiations for a partial disarmament treaty spurred the aircrafts into sale rally.

Of 1130 issues traded, losses outnumbered gains by 484 to 374. There were 28 new lows for the year and 16 new highs.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed unchanged at $186.80 with the industrials up 50 cents, the rails unchanged and the utilities down 30 cents.

SEE READY TAKE OF U.S. 4 PCT. ISSUE

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP)—Corporations and United States Government bonds eased in light trading late today.

Among the corporates, rails and industrials gave ground. Utilities and investment quality issues turned mixed.

Convertibles generally were mixed.

Intermediate Government issues while long range issues declined 4-32 to 8-32.

Indications were that the Treasury's new refunding offer for obligations maturing in August and October would be accepted with alacrity by investors, some dealers said. After the close of the market yesterday, the Treasury announced a package of three new short-term securities, "sweetened" with the highest interest rates in 24 years, in exchange for nearly 24 billion dollars of maturing debt.

The record interest rate and the rare three-way choice offered investors was recognition of the tight money market and a determined effort by Washington to mop up investment capital. The three new issues are a 3⅝ per cent four-month certificate, a 4 per cent one-year certificate and a 4 per cent four-year note that may be cashed in after two years at the holder's option.

Dealers today said the "2 by 4" note appeared to be arousing eager investor interest.

In the municipal field, St. Louis County, Mo., sold $6,798,000 public improvement bonds to a group led by Northern Trust Co. on a bid of 100.064 for 4s, 3s and 3¼s, setting net interest cost at 3.2819 per cent. The bonds were repriced to yield from 2.30 to 3.30 per cent.

Umpires Fined: Called Foul Home Run, Caused Near Riot

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19—(UP)—Eddie Mulligan, president of the California League, today disproved the theory that umpires are never wrong by fining two of his arbiters for a bad call.

Mulligan said Hank Shimada and Dick McKinney called "an obvious foul ball a home run" in a game between Salinas and Modesto at Salinas last night.

The "home run" was a grand slam and broke up a 11-inning game, causing a near riot.

Harry Minor of Salinas hit the blow with the bases full and the score 5-5 in the bottom of the eleventh.

"However, everyone in the ball park knew that the ball was: one, a foul, and, two, that it landed inside the park after hitting the top of the fence," Mulligan said.

The league president, who did not announce the amount of the fines, said it was "unfortunate" but the rules of baseball prohibited him from reversing the umpires' call.

"All I can do is fine the two for an obvious error," Mulligan said.

To compound the comedy of errors, Minor only got a single and one R.B.I. out of his "home run" because he failed to touch all bases.

$200,000 Loss By A's Likely, Johnson Says

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—The House Anti-Trust subcommittee winds up its baseball hearings today, apparently still divided as to whether baseball should be placed under the anti-trust laws, or other sports exempted.

Any showdown within the subcommittee on this issue, however, is probably weeks away. After a few days' breather, the group will begin hearing testimony next week on the problems of professional football.

The subcommittee called as witnesses today Ross C. Horning, a former minor league player, and Fresco Thompson, Brooklyn Dodgers' vice president in charge of the farm system. Both were certain to be asked to comment on earlier testimony that present baseball practices are driving many minor league clubs to the wall, and that the disputed reserve clause weighs especially heavily on the minor league player.

Arnold Johnson, president of the Kansas City Athletics, told the subcommittee yesterday that his sale of Yankee Stadium was a "clean transaction." The sale was ordered by the American League after he bought the Athletics franchise.

The Kansas City club, Johnson added, isn't "anybody's farm club—we aren't anybody's country cousin." He said the only interest he now has in the Yankees is seeing his Athletics beat them every time the clubs meet.

Matthew M. Fox, president of Skiatron TV, Inc., told the subcommittee San Francisco, Los Angeles, large areas of New York outside Manhattan—and many another city—could be wired for his pay television system in time for opening of next baseball season. He said the whole San Francisco Bay area could be wired for less than $6,000,000 and Los Angeles county for less than $12,000,000.

Fox has been negotiating with the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants, which are contemplating moves to Los Angeles and San Francisco respectively, for broadcast rights. He said no pay TV broadcast of games in New York is likely next year because of existing contracts.

Rosewall Beats Hoad in First 'Pro' Meeting

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., July 19 (AP)—Lew Hoad, the highest priced professional tennis player in history, went down to his first defeat in the play-for-pay-ranks yesterday.

Little Ken Rosewall, who used to be Hoad's partner on Australia's Davis Cup team, tamed big Lew, 6-3, 9-7, 4-6, 6-3, in their first meeting as pros in Jack Kramer's Tournament of Champions.

Big Pancho Gonzales, the king of the troupe, projected himself into the role of strong favorite for the $2500 top prize money by whipping Frank Sedgman, 5-7, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Kramer was hoping that Hoad, his prize fledgling when he signed for $125,000 for two years, and the veteran Gonzales would go into their final day's match with both showing spotless records.

If Hoad beats Tony Trabert, Saturday, and Gonzales licks Pancho Segura, he would have a 3-1 mark going into the final day.. Gonzales would have 4-0.

Rosewall now has won his last four matches from Hoad. The pint - sized powerhouse turned back Hoad in the United States final last fall, then crushed him twice in Australia.

In the doubles, Sedgman and Tony Trabert defeated Dinny Pails and Pancho Segura, 6-2, 6-3.

Second-Place Gravois Plays Thurmers No. 2

The league-leading Thurmers No. 1 team (7-0), who will be playing in the A.S.A. tourney tomorrow, broke even in a four-game series at Indianapolis. Pitcher Ralph Baker, helping himself with a home run and four other hits in eight times at bat, beat the Joyces, 9-1, and Kingnans, 10-2.

Ed Niehoff hurled a four-hitter but lost to Joyces, 3-1, and Bill Nelson bowed to the same team, 4-3, giving up three runs in the last inning after the Thurmers went ahead with two runs in the first half of the frame. Catcher Tom Kubat had five hits in 10 times up for Thurmers, including a home run.

DERAMUS PREDICTS BIG KATY EARNINGS

WASHINGTON, July 19 — Sharp reductions in operating costs and a return to normal business conditions should enable the Missouri-Kansas-Texas (Katy) Railroad in the near future to earn more than $14,000,000 a year before fixed and contingent charges and before taxes, William N. Deramus III, new president of the line, asserted yesterday.

Testifying before the Interstate Commerce Commission at a hearing on the Katy's preferred stock modification plan, he pointed out that a seven-year drouth was broken this spring, which will have the effect of encouraging producers of agricultural and livestock products and eventually stimulating all business in the railroad's territory.

"It is my belief," he said, "with the reductions in expenses that are being made, and with a normal level of gross earnings, which I feel will be in the range of $75,000,000 to $80,000,000 a year, the property should earn in the near future from $14,000,000 to $16,000,000 a year before fixed and contingent charges and before taxes."

The company proposes to call in 667,005 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock on which a dividend arrearage of more than $106,000,000 has accumulated. This would be done by exchanging for each share a $100 5½ per cent debenture maturing in 75 years, a certificate constituting a $100 claim on future income, plus one share of common stock.

Pierre R. Bretey, a securities analyst, predicted that the proposed package of new securities would have an immediate market value of about $77. After gaining 4½ points yesterday on the strength of Deramus's earnings forecast, Katy preferred stock lost part of the gain this morning, selling at $57.50 a share.

Deramus, who has made drastic cuts and shifted personnel in St. Louis and Parsons, Kan., became president last Jan. 8. His contract of employment gives him an option to buy 30,000 shares of the common stock at $12 a share. The stock closed yesterday at 9⅞.

Red China

forested areas that only five per cent of the country is wooded and lumber is scarce and so valuable that a special minister has been placed in charge of all timber cut in China.

He is Lo Chung Chi and I talked with him in his home, the only occasion so far on which I have been invited to a Chinese home, except for the frequent visits to workers homes made at the insistence of enthusiastic young factory directors.

Unfortunately, the interview devolved into a lengthy and interesting discussion of Communism and what has happened to China since the end of the revolution in 1949. This switch came about because Lo was a professor of political science and modern history at Peking University and his Ph.D. at Columbia University in the United States.

How, I asked, is it that China has so little forest resources when more than 5000 kinds of trees and other woody plants grow here—more than any other country in the world?

There is valuable timber, admittedly in short supply, for every purpose in China. Some trees that still grow here have no parallel in any other country. Among these are the 3000-year-old Giant of Arisan, a type of red cedar, and the Metasequoia, an early predecessor of the huge California Redwood and now extinct outside of China.

This, according to Lo, is a legacy of the past when, he said, timber was felled without any attempt at replacements. Generations of peasants, driven from their farms for a variety of reasons, burned the trees off hillsides to reclaim new fields.

On top of this, in this area, it is claimed the Japanese during their 14 years' occupation, cut down more than 131,000,000 cubic yards of timber without replanting one tree. The Kuomintang, the present regime's predecessor as China's government, is accused of having felled a tremendous quantity of timber in Szechuan province and then left the logs to rot for lack of transport.

That explains why Lo, virtual dictator of timber resources almost counts each piece individually. Before he can cut a tree he must get permission of the ministry of forestry and then only on the basis of an estimate of needs which is prepared at the beginning of each year.

The needs of the entire country, including local lumberyards in cities and towns and the peasants who use wood for fuel, must be projected a year ahead and wherever possible, cement, steel and bamboo (of which there is plenty in China) is substituted by government direction.

"At the beginning of each year," Lo said, "we must know how many buildings are going to be constructed (of all types), how many railroad ties will be needed. We even must know the number of props required by our mines."

An over-all plan for the protection, effective management and scientific use of forest resources began to take shape in 1950.

The first step was a propaganda campaign to emphasize the need for preserving and protecting our forests.

Through local government bodies, fire prevention and firefighting organizations were set up and equipment for them was provided. Villages were linked by warning systems and volunteer patrols formed to watch for fires during the dangerous seasons. The common practice of setting fire to scrub or weeds when reclaiming land was prohibited wherever it might endanger forests.

According to a recent report of the Ministry of Forestry, in Northeast China alone, more than 2000 miles of fire-lanes were cleared around the edges of forests and along railway lines where sparks from passing trains caused about 30 per cent of China's forest fires.

This area is reported to have more than 200 forest watchtowers and its firefighting network has telephone lines stretching for 620 miles.

To protect natural new growth, many hilly areas have been made into preserves. Access to them for firewood gathering or grazing is strictly regulated.

Government regulations limit the proportion of trees which may be cut down in felling areas, Under a new system introduced in 1955 the timber stands are marked out into strips and only alternate ones may be felled.

Large-scale reforestation projects are under way not only to provide materials for construction and industry, but to help control the natural calamities which plague this country.

Big shelter belts, known as China's Great Wall of Trees, are being planted. The program is designed to protect nearly 52,000,000 acres of land, including cultivated areas and sandy wastes. Between 1950 and 1955 more than 12,500,000 acres were reforested and in the spring of 1956, 9,000,000 acres of trees, an area as large as Belgium, were set out.

A shelter belt now being planted, stretching from eastern Inner Mongolia into these northeast provinces, will be the biggest in Asia when it is completed in 1967. Nearly 700 miles long and 180 miles wide, it is designed to transform 42,000,000 acres of wind-blown steppes into fertile field and pasture.

Other belts are located along the North China coast in the provinces of Shantung, Hopei and Kiangsu and in the northeast to protect cultivated land from gales that blow in from the sea.

In Southern China, with its warm climate and abundant rainfall, the aim of the large-scale tree planting now being carried on is to develop useful timber and supplies of raw materials such as tung oil, resins, camphor, rubber, lacquer, cork and tannin.

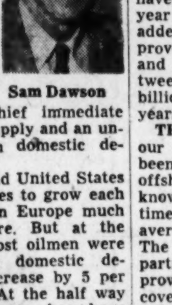
U.S. Economy Today

115 BILLION NEEDED FOR NEW OIL SOURCES

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP).

THE OIL INDUSTRY is looking for 115 billion dollars. That is what oilmen estimate it will cost to find and develop enough new oil resources to supply the incheasing demands of the economy of the non-Communist world in the next 10 years.



Sam Dawson

The industry expects some of the increased oil supply to come from exploration and discoveries, and some from continuing research into improving the recovery of oil from known sources. At present oilmen count as obtainable reserves only 40 per cent of the oil in known fields.

This long-range planning is going on despite today's chief immediate problem: Oversupply and an unexpected lag in domestic demand.

Both world and United States demand continues to grow each year—in western Europe much faster than here. But at the start of 1957 most oilmen were predicting that domestic demand would increase by 5 per cent this year. At the half way point the increase has been only 1.4 per cent.

OILMEN ARE MOST SURprised by the failure of demand for gasoline to spurt as usual with the end of school and the start of the vacation rush. On the contrary, gasoline stocks have been climbing, and in widely scattered spots in the nation there are flourishing gas price wars. Domestic demand for crude oil—from which come some 2000 other end products besides gasoline—is currently running between eight and nine million barrels a day. Economists at the Chase Manhattan Bank who keep a sharp eye on the oil industry now estimate that by 1967 domestic demand will have risen to more than 14,250,000 barrels a day, and demand in the rest of the non-Communist world will be almost as high.

THE BANK'S ECONOMISTS expect the United States sources will be supplying 11,000,000 barrels a day and foreign sources 17,000,000 a day. It will cost, industry men estimate, 115 billion dollars to finance that big expansion. American oilmen are confident they will be able to produce the vast new amount of oil they foresee the world demanding. The upcoming American Petroleum Institute's quarterly review will point out that for years oilmen have been finding more oil each year than we consumed. They added 17 billion barrels of proven reserves between 1925 and 1935, and 21 billion between 1935 and 1945, and 31 billion barrels in the next 10 years.

THE EXPLORATION OFF our shores in recent years has been strikingly productive. Each offshore well has added to known reserves almost nine times as much oil or gas as the average well drilled on shore. The United States Interior Department, citing increasing improvements in discovery and recovery, estimates "a total of 300 billion barrels as the ultimate reserves of the United States and of the adjoining continental shelves." The A.P.I. study of the problem of producing 28,000,000 barrels a day 10 years hence predicts that most of the 115 billion dollars needed will be raised within the oil industry itself.

THE QUARTERLY NOTES that since 1951 the oil companies have raised 85 per cent of their expenditures on new capital goods from cash income. The companies paid out one fifth of their earnings in dividends and put four fifths of their income back into the business. The bank economists believe that American oil companies will spend 73½ billion dollars on new capital goods in the next 10 years and foreign oil companies about 41½ billion—with about 15 per cent of that coming from outside capital markets.

SOYBEANS SHARPLY UP ON CROP COMMENT

CHICAGO, July 19 (AP)—Further reports of poor crop prospects caused buying and short covering which caused soybean futures to spurt upward more than five cents a bushel at times today on the Board of Trade.

Wheat climbed more than a cent despite hedging pressure, with buying attributed to family flour business. The market also was influenced somewhat by the rise in beans.

Corn advanced more than a cent also on poor crop reports from midwestern areas. Oats held mostly steady to higher with corn.

THREATENED DAM

Aerial view of Terrace Reservoir dam in southern Colorado which was threatened with collapse yesterday as water trickled from crater formed when part of dam face slipped. Earth-fill dam weakened under pressure of six billion gallons of water and as the earth continued to crumble residents of San Luis valley below it were evacuated. Tons of dirt dropped on the upstream side of the dam and the opening of sluice gates appeared to have ended the threat today. Water gushing into valley at lower right is from sluice gate.

APPEAL FOR ACTION

Actress Ilona Massey, Hungarian-born but now a United States citizen, delivers impassioned speech to crowd which staged anti-Russian demonstration in New York last night. Standing shoeless on platform on hood of an automobile, Miss Massey told the demonstrators they should be ashamed of their inaction while Hungarian youths are being deported to Siberia.

SECRET SERVICE BARS SIX-FOOT DOLLAR BILL

WASHINGTON, July 19 (UP)—Uncle Sam does not approve of people whipping up dollar bills on their own even in the form of a six-foot rug.

The Secret Service yesterday made a nearby suburban dry cleaner remove from his window an Iranian rug that looked like an outdated one dollar bill.

Dry cleaner Alex George first put the three-by-six-foot wooly buck on display in his Arlington (Va.) store. The Secret Service told him to remove it or face unpleasantness for possession of a facsimile of United States currency. The Secret Service wanted to know who owned the rug. George refused to disclose the owner's name. He said the relationship between a dry cleaner and his clients is sacred.

After talking with his lawyers he removed the rug—to a window in his Silver Spring (Md.) store. The Secret Service turned up in Maryland, too. George promised to remove the rug from his window if the Secret Service would stop asking the name of the rug's owner.

"Ninotchka" to Some Gay Music

"SILK STOCKINGS," the stage adaptation for Greta Garbo's comedy hit, "Ninotchka," with songs by Cole Porter, comes to the screen at LOEW'S STATE THEATER as a gay, clever and amusing musical.

The original play, a satire on the Communist mind in which a stern Russian female commisar finally succumbed to the joy of living in Paris, was a good base for this concoction. The original musical book by George S. Kaufman, Leueen McGrath and Abe Burrows, which brought in an American picture producer as the commisar's vis-a-vis had a witty quality which is retained in the screen play. The songs by Porter — a couple of new ones have been added—aren't his best, but most of them are lively and catchy—"Fated to be Mated," "Satin and Silk," "Paris Loves Lovers," and "All of You" are some intriguing ones.

It's a good vehicle for Fred Astaire, who takes in glib and debonair stride the role of the producer. Cyd Charisse shows she can act as Ninotchka, who melts under the persuasiveness of Paris. But her best acting is done in the fluidity of lovely motion in the dance where she casts aside her starchy commisar's uniform to don some filmy lingerie. The dances are all zingy, with the exception of one, the "Ritz Rock and Roll," which is much too trite to be worthy of Astaire. The comic trio of commisars, doing their duty to the party in the night clubs of Paris is divertingly represented by Peter Lorre, Jules Munshin and Joseph Buloff. Janis Paige is an uninhibited American movie star, noted more for her swimming than her brains.

Sea Drama

Director-Screenwriter Richard Sale has posed an interesting moral dilemma in "ABANDON SHIP!" a grim and harrowing drama at the MISSOURI. As a mate in command of a small boat with 26 survivors aboard from the explosion and sinking of a luxury liner, Tyrone Power realizes that unless the load is lightened, all will drown. The boat is only 18 feet long and designed to hold 12. Even with a half dozen of the survivors hanging on to the boat in the water in shifts, its gunwales are shipping water occasionally in a calm sea. A storm is coming up. No SOS was sent from the exploding craft, so no rescue can be expected. Nearest land is Africa, 1500 miles away. To row there will require weeks and there is only enough food and water aboard for the crowd for three days. A mate (Lloyd Nolan), dying in agony from injuries, tells him he must rid the boat of the "deadwood" and hurls himself into the sea.

Power must decide whether to save the lives of some by casting off others who are of no use in rowing. He makes the terrible decision. In spite of the passengers protests of horror, he, at pistol point, orders cast into the sea, with life preservers, an injured woman and her sick husband, an elderly woman former opera singer, and others of the weak and useless, cutting some away from the sides as they cling to ropes. One hysterical man who is upsetting the boat, and another who mutinies and throws a knife into Power's chest, are shot and killed. The rest make it through a howling storm by frenzied rowing. Power, sick from the knife wound, applies his own inflexible law to himself and throws himself into the sea. He is hauled back and a liner looms out of the fog to rescue them. After the storm the survivors had agreed Power made the right decision, but as inquiries and trials loom near, they turn against him, with the exception of a nurse (Mai Zetterling) who is in love with him.

The idea was suggested by an article written by Sale about a true incident, although it has here been modernized and fictionalized. In 1841, the American cargo ship William Brown foundered in the Atlantic after hitting an iceberg. Forty-one immigrant passengers and crewmen weighed down a longboat built for only 16. The captain, making off in a jollyboat with only six other passengers, refused to take any passengers from the overloaded boat and told the mate in charge there was "only one way to lighten a boat." On the orders of the mate, a seaman, Alexander William Holmes (Power is called Alec Holmes in the movie) tossed overboard 17 male immigrants; two immigrant sisters voluntarily threw themselves into the sea. After the others were rescued, Holmes, left to take the blame by the captain and mate, was tried for murder and sentenced to six months hard labor.

Sale leaves the moral solution up to the spectators. Regardless of this neat sidestepping of the issue, the picture is powerful and disturbing drama, and well acted by its many characters.

Jerry Shovels It On

Having parted from Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis has produced his own first film as a single, "THE DELICATE DELINQUENT," at the FOX. Jerry plays Sidney Pythias, a janitor in an East Side tenement, who acts half-witted though he insists he isn't, is bullied by the tenants, and is too shy to speak to a girl who likes him. He is accidentally involved in a juvenile gang fight and a cop named Mike Damon (Darren McGavin) decides to befriend him and make something of him. So Jerry decides he too wants to become a cop. Although Jerry does get a few laughs as the police academy clumsy rookie, it isn't very funny most of the way, and depends mostly on pathos, heaped on with a shovel. This is a pretty weak effort.

On the opening day, the indefatigable Jerry, on a tour of 21 cities to bolster the film, appeared four times on the Fox stage, along with a quartet and hoofer. A mob of howling kids jammed the theater to greet him at the first show—I hadn't suspected Lewis's enormous popularity with the younger set—and the comedian could do no wrong. He sang, did imitations of Elvis Presley and Jolson, hoofed and made wisecracks, a couple of them amusing even to grownups.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: When my employer closed his business and I was looking for a new job, one of the salesmen who called on us regularly told me of a job and was instrumental in helping me to get it. It is a very fine position. Is there anything I could do, or even possibly should do, to show my appreciation? This man is not a personal friend and is married and, therefore, I would not like to do anything that could be misunderstood by his wife.

Answer: In my opinion, doing nothing further than thanking him as sincerely as you are able is all you can do at present. You can, however, hope for an opportunity that will enable you to do him (or his family) a kindness in return.

DEAR MRS. POST: When spending a weekend, or longer, in a friend's house, does a guest have the privilege of turning on the television set whenever she wants to look at certain programs, or must she ask permission of the host, or hostess, before doing so?

Answer: If your host or hostess is in the house you should ask if they object before you turn on the television, but if you are alone you may do as you choose.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it polite for a man to leave his place at table in a restaurant and go across the room to talk with friends. He left the woman with him sitting there by herself.

Answer: No, he was extremely rude.

Gag Man

Ralph Ritchey's Physical Disability No Laughing Matter But He Is Turning Out Ideas for Humorous Cartoons

By John Keasler

RALPH RITCHEY fought to save his sense of humor and now feels his sense of humor has saved him.

It was a tough and rugged battle but under conditions which are no laughing matter Ritchey is fighting his way toward becoming a professional jokester, a gag writer.

Already he has had some success.

He calls laughter his miracle medicine and, grinning, said: "I had to laugh — or else give up in despair."

So he decided not to give up. He had to relearn to walk, and learn again how to talk, and learn to write lefthanded after his right arm was disabled, but he didn't give up. He writes jokes instead.

Ritchey had always been an active man, a band director in Illinois schools and, during World War II, as band director in the Eighty-first Infantry, ranging as far afield as the Philippine Islands.

After that war he returned as band director at East Alton-Wood River High School, then, in 1946, turned to teaching literature.

Things rocked along smoothly for him — he pursued his twin loves, music and literature. A graduate of Northwestern University, he held a bachelor's degree in music education and a master's degree in music.

He had always been interested in writing and writers, had always planned to do some writing himself sometime, but had confined the yen to a few articles on music in a top music magazine.

Then, in 1949, destiny stepped in and dealt him disaster, in the form of a brain tumor. After an operation he was bedfast for many, many weeks. It was then he had to relearn to walk and talk. He persevered and managed to do these things, although it took a long time.

"The words were right there in my mouth, but I couldn't form them," he said, recalling that period. "It was disconcerting, to say the least."

Finally he got on his feet and back to teaching, for two years. In 1953 he was struck again.

* * *

AFTER a long convalescence he learned to get around on an aluminum crutch, which he now uses. He is deaf in his right ear. He was left with what was a severe speech impediment but which by now he has almost entirely overcome. He no longer plays the violin or the French horn for his right arm has no co-ordination.

His physical handicap remains severe. His mental attitude, he recalls, was even worse. He had been an active man of many interests and found himself unable to work at his profession of teaching. Or at anything else, so far as he could see.

"I could have given way to depression," he told us recently, seated in his attractive home in Rosewood Heights, near East Alton. "I guess maybe I almost did."

Instead, he assayed his situation. Instead of giving it up as hopeless, he took a positive view. He would write gags for cartoonists.

"How did you arrive at this conclusion?"

Process of elimination, he explained. Writing seemed to him to be the logical occupation in his condition. But not a novel, not even short stories. Why not?

"Impossible physically," he said. "I had to learn first to use my left hand instead of my right, then learn to type one-handed and left-handed. It was a laborious process, but speeding up, a little slowly."

Cartoonist gags usually are just three or four lines on a card, explaining the situation and giving the caption. This he felt he could do. So he went ahead and did it.

Like most beginners in any form of writing, he hit that old blank wall. Rejection after rejection. He kept at it, working an hour or two a day—more than that was too tiring.

Now, after a couple of years, he has known the thrill of seeing his work in print; has high hopes for the future, although quite frankly admitting ever reaching prosperity through gag-writing is a far-fetched proposition.

* * *

THIS caption of his, for instance, appeared under a cartoon in Modern Medicine magazine. A man in a tricornered hat and his wife in a weird bit of headgear were standing in a psychiatrist's office. Psychiatrist asks puzzledly:

"Which one is Napoleon?"

In another, a startled bar patron shouts "Bartender!" as a genie floats up out of a bourbon bottle.

A gag writer's idea doesn't have to have a caption with it. Ritchey's suggestion of two little boys battling, one dressed in Davey Crockett gear and the other in Spaceman's uniform, is, for some reason, funny on the face of it.

In another, a circus family high on a tightwire are balanced with the little boy at the top of a pyramid. The disgruntled father, riding the tightrope bicycle, growls: "He says he's got to go WHERE?"

Ritchey works in a small study. His hundreds of gags are kept in small metal file boxes. Although he hasn't sold in volume yet, he is already up to medium markets like Laugh magazine and some men's magazines. And, even more hopefully, topnotch cartoonists like John Billingsley and Martha Blanchard are right now "holding" some of his gags.

Ralph has about a hundred gags "out" right now. He follows the usual gagwriting procedure. He studies published cartoonists. When he finds one whose style he likes he mails a batch of gags to that cartoonist, care of the magazine he appears in. The cartoonist may take one, several or none of the suggestions.

If a cartoonist uses a gag-writer's suggestion the writer gets usually 25 although sometimes 35 per cent of the pay. Cartoons sell for as low as $2 to small trade journals on up to $300 for slick magazine multi-panel "spreads" with a $65 one-panel slick sale considered just dandy and a $25 medium-market sale nothing to turn one's nose up at.

Richey right now works with cartoonists in many states and as far away as London, England. He is still a relative beginner but doing excellently by anybody's standards, for the gag business is one to which many are called, most rejected.

* * *

HE GETS his ideas from everywhere, quite often merely looking at prosaic photographs in magazines and imagining captions or switches. The following idea might have come from a drive across a Mississippi river bridge.

Man is drowning in river. Motorist is diving to rescue. Cop is putting parking ticket on motorist's car.

Some day Ritchey would like to take a stab at other aspects of writing; perhaps the shorter humor articles, or maybe even short stories. Meantime, partly just for practicing his left-handed dexterity, he has taught himself cartooning.

He has submitted no cartoons yet, but plans to. He, through necessity, draws a sparse, clean-lined picture with minimum of background fill-in, which is quite effective.

He is realistic in his approach to the jokester trade.

"There's no jackpot at the end of the rainbow," he said. "But, for me, this business has been a very effective antidote. It's been a lifesaver."

So, at age 47, physically handicapped, his violin playing already just a memory and with no more parades to lead, Ritchey looks toward a new profession—the creation of laughter.

1. You are South and hold these cards:

♣A85

The bidding has gone:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1♦

2. You are South and hold these cards:

♠K42

♦J6
♣5

The bidding has gone:

North	East	South	West
1♦	Pass	1♥	Pass
3N.T.	Pass	?

What call do you make?

* * *

♠6
♦9753
♣Q10763

The bidding has gone:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	?

What call do you make?

Answers.

1. South bids two hearts. Having passed originally, this cue bid in East's suit is the best way to show a good hand and thus assure a rebid by North.

2. South jumps to five hearts, inviting North to bid a slam. A bid of four hearts would merely state a preference for hearts over no-trump.

3. South passes. In a part-score situation a player will respond on the slightest excuse in an effort to gain a game, but to bid with this weak hand is going a little too far.

FOUR St. Louis area teen-agers, whose common bond is an intense interest in public affairs and peace, are among 11 young Missourians soon to see leaders from throughout the world at work in the United Nations.

Chosen on the basis of examinations and personal interviews, the four will leave Monday to join other teen-agers on a three-week tour of Canada and the eastern states, spending one week in a concentrated observation and study of the United Nations. The project is sponsored by the Odd Fellows and Rebekah Lodges.

Winners from the St. Louis area are Marcia Hill, Normandy High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hill, 7280 Winchester avenue, Normandy; Mary Jean Huff, Mehlville High School, daughter of Mrs. Arthur E. Huff, 338 Geneva street, Lemay, and the late Capt. Arthur E. Huff; Barbara Prange, Hazelwood High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Prange, Bellefontaine road, and David Jameson, Maplewood-Richmond Heights High School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon K. Jameson, 7608 Flora street, Maplewood.

JOHN J. KESSLER, 3000 Nordic drive, Bel-Nor is jurisdictional chairman for the Missouri Pilgrimage Committee.

This is the eighth year of the national project, designed to enable students to study the U.N. in action. They will visit delegation headquarters for conferences with leaders of member governments as well as general sessions. They also will visit International House and educational institutions in the New York area.

The Missouri delegates will travel with teen-agers from Iowa and Wisconsin in one of 14 bus tours planned as a part of the national project. The tours, arranged over a period of seven weeks, are staggered so that 100 teen-agers will meet in New York each week.

Winners were chosen after elimination contests in their respective schools and a general area-wide test in which they were questioned on the history, purposes and policies of the United Nations.

* * *

IN ADDITION, however, students were judged on character, leadership, participation in church and community affairs, scholarship, public speaking and interest in governmental affairs.

"I feel that the project can be of definite value to the community as well as the nation," explained Kessler. "Every youngster in the eligible classes has the chance of benefiting in future years by studying the U.N. and becoming acquainted with its operation even though they do not qualify for an award. The problems that will confront them as adults will be much broader in scope and be on a global basis rather than community or national. The more preparation they get now, the better able they will be able to cope with them."

"We need this kind of background to vote intelligently," said David.

"We must learn about it," said Marcia. "This may be our last chance for world peace."

'Social Perils'

Off-Limits Island For Tourist Trade

By Art Buchwald

PALERMO.

AMONG the many islands off the coast of Sicily, there is one the tourist office doesn't talk about unless you make specific inquiries. It is called Ustica and is a three-hour boat ride from Palermo.

ART BUCHWALD

Ustica could very well be the Capri of Sicily except for one embarrassing thing. The Italian Government uses the island to keep in confinement 212 suspected criminals.

Called confinos, they are guarded by 198 carabinieri and are sent to Ustica because they have been considered by the police as "social perils." This term as explained to us means that the confinos are suspected of crimes, but there has never been enough proof to send them to jail. So instead they are sent to Ustica for from one to five years on a sort of forced vacation. Besides the confinos, and their families if they wish to bring them, and the carabinieri, there are about 1500 villagers living on the island. The mayor is a woman, Baroness Nortbartolo, the largest landowner on Ustica. She doesn't like the confinos, and neither do some of the wealthier people, who feel they are scaring away the tourist trade.

A CONFINO'S LIFE on Ustica is not an uncomfortable one, though it can be boring. They are not locked up, but must be in their homes by 8 p.m. At one time they were locked up in the evening, but now they are awakened three times a night by the police to check if they are there. After a month of this the confinos told the police chief they preferred to be locked up to being woke up. But this request, as with any other requests, was not given much attention by the authorities.

Among the things the confinos may not do on the island are go to the movies, play cards, talk to strangers, gather in groups of more than three or drink in bars. They may sun-bathe, sleep, throw a ball back and forth and kill flies.

IF A CONFINO has outside support he may live where he wants to and eat where he wants to. But if he has no money he is given 500 lire (85 cents) a day for food and sleeps in a Government-built dormitory. Except for the town, the rest of the island is off-limits to confinos.

Some of the confinos refer to Ustica as the "University," and it is here where they do their post-graduate work in crime. There are several confinos, who are in trouble with the Mafia in Sicily and with their fellow criminals back home, who have refused to leave the island when their time is up.

Confinos rarely attempt to escape from Ustica, because if they get caught, then they will have committed a crime and will be sent to prison. Most of them have visited Italian prisons on previous occasions and prefer Ustica to anything they've seen so far.

★ ★ ★

THE VILLAGERS, farmers and fishermen have mixed feelings about the confinos. The income from the renting of rooms and the buying of food has helped them, but some of the fishermen claimed they weren't too happy to leave the island during the fishing season. Confinos have been known to fall in love with some of the daughters on the island and have even married them.

Not only do the confinos present a problem to the male villagers, but the good-looking carabinieri officers, who don't have to be in at 8 o'clock at night, have also won the hearts of some of Ustica's feminine population. The island, which has no volcano, is constantly erupting in passions of the various peoples who find themselves living so close together.

THE IDEA OF CONFINO, which Mussolini instituted as a method of exiling his political opponents under the fascist regime, has been declared unconstitutional by the Italian Supreme Court, but this doesn't seem to bother anyone, except possibly the confinos.

Most criminals in Italy and Sicily have heard of Ustica, and a police inspector in Palermo told us it was a very powerful club to hold over their heads. If they are reluctant to give information about a crime, not necessarily their own, the threat of being sent to Ustica can make many of them talk.

What happens to the confinos after they leave Ustica?

"Most of them," said the inspector, "eventually wind up in jail. And once they do they remember their days on Ustica as the happiest they spent in their lives."

Surprise Party

By Christopher Billopp

IF a surprise party is to be a success, the persons for whom it is given must be taken unaware. In order that they may not be otherwise engaged and therefore available when needed certain trusted persons will have to be let in on the surprise and charged with seeing that the guests of honor get there. Then when the persons for whom the party is given propose some other activity at the hour selected for the party those in charge of them must discourage it and intimate that it will be well to leave the time open. No doubt at that point other persons who have been invited to the party, not being aware of the surprise element, will remark to the persons for whom it is given that they will see them there.

The person for whom the party is given, having eyes and ears and being relatively intelligent, will grow suspicious. They will say: "What's going on? Is this a surprise party?"

There is not much the persons in charge of those for whom the party is given can say to that. They will beg those for whom the party is given not to let on that they know anything about it. The guests of honor, being good actors, from then on will give every indication of being dense and altogether ignorant of what is going on. No matter how many times persons invited to the party thoughtlessly let the cat out of the bag, they will quickly change the subject.

So the surprise party will come off and the persons for whom it is given will show realistic surprise and declare they never had an inkling of what was going to happen. As for the persons in whose care the persons for whom the party was given were placed, they will be congratulated and praised for the very skillful way they kept the secret.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

IN a Skid Row saloon, a character sat at a battered piano, and lazily thumped out old songs for patrons who, incidentally, never listened. Atop the piano was a schooner of beer. A tourist from a rubberneck wagon watched the performance for a while, then remarked, "This is a terrible life for a big fellow like you. Isn't there something else you can do?"

"There is," agreed the pianist. "I play the violin, too, but there's no percentage in that. The schooner of beer always falls off it."

Just a Fool for Shakespeare

Katharine Hepburn Finds Little Pay, Loads of Fun at Festival

MISS HEPBURN . . . SHE LOOKS LIKE A PERSON WHO CONSTANTLY SAYS YES TO LIFE.

By Don Ross

New York Herald Tribune News Service.

STRATFORD, Conn.

THE American Shakespeare Festival Theater is paying Katharine Hepburn $350 a week to appear now as Portia in "The Merchant of Venice," and as Beatrice in "Much Ado About Nothing" next month.

This is not the sort of wage Miss Hepburn has become accustomed to in her movie career, but she's willing to do it for this piddling sum—the maximum salary here—because she is a fool for Shakespeare.

A visitor who spent a couple of hours with Miss Hepburn this week has concluded that even $350 is too much. She is having such a lovely time living here in a converted little bait house at the edge of the Housatonic river that, at the very least, she should turn back half of that.

She sleeps in a screened-in porch where, early in the morning, she hears the birds call from a marsh across the river, and underneath her the water laps gently at the pilings. She has a red outboard motorboat in which she buzzes around the river and out to the point where it opens into Long Island sound. (Recently, when the wind gauge at a nearby yacht club was registering 70 miles an hour in gusts she was out in her boat getting drenched by the waves and reveling in it.)

Sure, she's got a couple of roles to do. But to a woman like Miss Hepburn, who has got twice the vitality of anything in skirts, or even pants, this is nothing. She'll subdue the roles just as she subdues everything else that challenges her.

When a visitor arrived at the little house—the little old woman who formerly lived in it sold bait to the local fishermen—Miss Hepburn was coming back in her boat from a swimming expedition. With her was the festival stage manager, Bernard Gersten. Characteristically, she was doing the steering.

She brought the nose of the boat expertly between two piles on her dock and commanded, "Hop in. I'll take you for a spin." The visitor looked dubious and hesitated. The little boat was bobbing around and Gersten, who was holding out his hand, looked like a landlubber. The water looked deep.

* * *

CRISPLY, Miss Hepburn told Gersten to sit down. She Came forward authoritatively and with perfect balance, and held out a firm hand to the visitor, who obediently hopped in.

"I give people a sense of security even if I do irritate them," said Miss Hepburn, laughing and showing the pearliest teeth in the state of Connecticut.

With her upswept brown hair, her freckles, her smile, her tanned lean face and figure, and the air of health and sunniness that envelops her, she looked like a person who constantly says yes to life. And this, mind you, after 47 years. Incidentally, she looks 30.

Out on the water Miss Hepburn seemed to be most interested in showing off the view of the great teakwood pile of the theatre, with its snapping flags. The theater is about 75 yards from her house.

On a side table in her house was the Everyman's Library edition of William Hazlitt's "Characters of Shakespeare's Plays." On page 322 Mr. Hazlitt (1778-1830), an English essayist and critic, said: "Portia is not a very great favorite with us, neither are we in love with her maid, Nerissa. Portia has a certain degree of affectation and pedantry about her which is unusual in Shakespeare's women but which was perhaps a proper qualification for the office of 'civil doctor,' which she undertakes and executes so admirably. The speech about Mercy is very well, but there are a thousand finer ones in Shakespeare."

What did Miss Hepburn have to say about Hazlitt's heresy? the visitor asked.

"Oh, boo," said Miss Hepburn. "It's just silly. Portia wasn't pedantic. She was just terribly romantic. The play is a combination of extreme realism and a fairy tale. It is also a pretty complete commentary on racial prejudice."

* * *

WHOSE interpretation of Shakespeare did she think the best? "I read a lot of various sundry and so forth, and then I made up my own mind," she said. She was asked if she told the director of "The Merchant" (Jack Landau) how she thought things should be done.

She grinned. "Are you insinuating that I try to boss the director?" she asked. "Well, my father used to tell me that whenever there's a pause, in the conversation and nobody comes up with anything, then is a pretty good time to put in an idea of your own, and it really works rather well, I've found.

"But if you want to find out how Mr. Landau feels I suggest you ask him. But, really, I've gotten along very well with most of the directors I've worked with." (Her father is Dr. Thomas N. Helpburn, a Hartford surgeon who will come down to see his daughter do Portia.)

This is not, of course, the first business that Katharine Hepburn has had with William Shakespeare. In 1950 she appeared on Broadway and on tour as Rosalind in "As You Like It." It was a success.

A couple of years ago she toured with London's Old Vic for eight months in Australia. She did Portia, Isabella in "Measure for Measure," and Katharine in "The Taming of the Shrew." This, too, was a success.

She is a good friend of Lawrence Langner, founder of the American Shakespeare Festival Theater. In 1955, the festival's first year, she was invited by Langner to be a member of the company, but she was so busy doing movies she couldn't accept.

Some movie actors are apologetic about Hollywood acting. They tell you that stage acting, as done on Broadway, is the real thing and that Hollywood is kid stuff.

"Bunk," Miss Hepburn said, when asked if she felt that way. "It's true the theater is a lot harder than movies," she said. "The curtain goes up at 8:30 willy-nilly, whether you have a cold, no voice, no mood, nothing. On the stage, if they see you when you're lousy, that's too bad. In the movies, there's always the opportunity to do the scene over again.

"But movie acting can be absolutely as good as the stage variety," she said. "It depends on who is doing it and the material they have to work with."

She was asked what movie acting she thought was as good as the Broadway stuff. She named "Captains Courageous," in which Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore appeared. "I must have seen it 20 times," she said.

"Then there are moments of Bogart in 'The African Queen,' Bogy with that little face of his, and 'The Treasure of Sierra Madre' with Walter Huston and 'The Glass Menagerie,' with Laurette Taylor."

* * *

MISS Hepburn showed the visitor around the fish house. It has sisal wall-to-wall carpeting, as befitted an upper bracket ex-fish house. It has a lovely bedroom with a fine bed which Miss Hepburn doesn't sleep in.

She prefers the porch where she lies on a mattress on the floor. Well not exactly on the floor. Underneath the mattress is a hard four-inch-thick fiber mat similar to the ones the Japanese have on their floors, and underneath that is the unyielding planking of the porch.

It was time for Miss Hepburn to go to the theater for a rehearsal of "Much Ado." She swung onto her bicycle, holding her book and notes in one hand.

The visitor walked alongside. "Can I hold your book?" he asked, feeling rather foolish as he said it.

Advice on Teen-Ager's Problems

By Elinor Williams

"Dear Elinor: Is it all right to invite a boy to a dance when I've never had a chance to talk to him? He's in one of my classes."

Answer: He'd think it was odd if a girl he's never talked to invited him to a dance. Try to chat with him before and after class, so you'll have a chance to get acquainted before you pop the question.

* * *

Question: "I've been offered a job waiting on tables and I would like it very much. But when I waited on tables about a month ago, for the first time, I was so shy that I made mistakes in change. I don't know how to make change without getting upset. Can you help me?"

Answer: Perhaps it would be better to take a job just waiting on tables without handling money, at first. As you get more used to the work and being among people, you'll gain more confidence and your shyness will disappear.

* * *

THEN, if you like, you could try a job that includes handing money and making change.

Secrets of Charm

Fragrant Touch

DON'T WEAR FRAGRANCE ONLY ON SPECIAL OCCASIONS.

DON'T restrict fragrance just to special occasions. Keep in mind that men will often remember the fragrance of your perfume more vividly than they remember the dress you wore. Just a whiff of it and the memory of you comes back to him. You can learn something important from this. When you're selecting the perfume for you . . . the best way to judge it is try it out on a man. If he likes it, it's a big success!

Don't feel that when you use perfume you are being extravagant. You are just being what we call "extravagantly feminine" and what charming woman shouldn't be guilty of that? The only extravagance occurs when you hoard a fragrance just to make a pretty ornament for your dressing table. Unfortunately, perfume evaporates once the seal of the bottle has been broken—reason enough to make you hurry and use it. If you want to prevent evaporation, blow on the stopper and quickly replace in the bottle each time you use the perfume.

* * *

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE fragrance to make a woman feel truly feminine. So learn to wear it in the most alluring manner. Apply it directly to your skin so that a cloud of fragrance "floats" with you as you move.

To last, it must go on your skin—not on your clothes. Put on about 15 minutes before leaving the house . . . otherwise the lovely fragrance will vanish quickly in the open air.

Place perfume at the pulse spots—throat, crook of the elbows, wrists and behind the knees—if you want to be enveloped in a fragrant mist. And always carry a purse-size vial of the same perfume with you so you can add a little during the evening.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Dear Martha:

I AM an 18-year-old girl with a problem. I am very fond of a fellow who is 21. I have never gone out with him but would like to very much. I invited him to a school affair about two months ago and he told me he would let me know but he never said a word. He never gave me an explanation at all. This affair was very important to me since it was my senior year. My friends have told me to forget him but I can't. He lives very close to me and I see him almost every day so that it is almost impossible to forget him. He is very friendly and sometimes seems interested in me but it never works out. I am very confused and depressed. VICKIE.

You don't have to "forget" him, Vickie, to realize he may not be for you. The fact that he was so discourteous as not to acknowledge your invitation should be enough to take him off the "wanted" list, at least until he gives you some definite evidence that he is interested—such as asking you for a date.

Dear Martha:

I AM 16. I went with a boy for seven or eight weeks. At first we dated once or twice a week, never less frequently than every two weeks. Since he has no telephone I never knew when he was coming to take me out. Now it has been four weeks since I saw him last. I hear from my friends that he has been taking a girl home from work after she gets off in the evening. Martha, on all our dates we had loads of fun and he said he liked me a lot. Tell me what I can do to get him back. I have no idea what I did to make him stop coming to my home. MISERABLE.

Probably nothing you could have done would have had any bearing on the situation because I'm afraid it falls into the category of "just one of those things" that one can't explain. Undoubtedly, he did like you, or he wouldn't have come around so often. But people change their minds and their affections and usually someone gets hurt in the process. You remember, don't you, how you liked some boy a great deal for a few weeks—then suddenly discovered that you weren't thinking about him all the time, that you didn't care quite so much? So don't try to get him back if he prefers this other girl. Instead, try to accept it and decide to find another beau. Perhaps the next time, you'll be the one to lose interest first. I know it's hard to take, but don't let him or anyone else know that you feel hurt.

* * *

IN ANSWER TO Desperate: I'm sorry, but I'm afraid I can't help you if you still like him so much. Any boy who would date you, then tell everyone he "never did like you" and even call you names isn't worth your time.

The Little Woman

By Clarissa Start

A RECENT European visitor in our home told us of a delicious fruit soup his mother makes as an appetizer. It combines gooseberries, cherries (the pie variety) and strawberries. The fruit is stewed together, sweetened, and a small amount of gelatine added for thickening. Then it is chilled and served with a spoonful of whipped cream on top. This may not sound like an appetizer but it sounds mighty appetizing.

CLARISSA START

If only I didn't feel the way I do about gooseberries. The way I've felt ever since that unfortunate episode.

My problem as a cook is that I'm not content to learn to prepare simple substantial plain popular dishes. I always want to do something fancy. Not necessarily the marshmellow mousse variety because husbands have their limits, but something with a different touch. Poppy seeds on the noodles, or chocolate chips, graham crackers, and nuts on the devilsfood. Something to make the girls ask questions.

* * *

AS A NOTED FOOD WRITER observed in a book on regional cookery, every cook likes to have "something special." She suggested a Northwest specialty, a jelly which some call heavenly hash, some tutti fruit delight. It is made on the same principles as a pousse cafe.

To begin with—and copy this at your own risk—you sterilize half a dozen jelly glasses to be filled gradually as the jelly making season goes on.

You start with rhubarb jelly, a layer of it in each jar. Then you cover the sterilized glasses with sterilized lids and store them in a cool dry place. I selected the basement; it was always cool and we had just plunked out $450 to have it made dry.

Next the writer suggested that you add a layer of gooseberry jelly, then strawberries, then apricots (aren't you drooling?), then red raspberries, boysenberries, peaches, pears, purple plums and quinces. When the jars are filled, they are set aside for a special occasion. When serving, you dip in a spoon carefully so as not to disturb the layers and place the shimmering delight in a shallow jelly dish.

* * *

SOMEONE LATER SUGGESTED to me that you could assemble this after all your jellies were made but I followed directions implicitly. First the rhubarb, then the gooseberries. Stemming a quart of gooseberries with those stickly ends is quite a trick but was managed within an hour I started the jelly and the phone rang. When I returned, the mixture looked suspeciously tan. A quick sir revealed the awful truth. Burned.

It was Sunday but undaunted, I drove out the highway until I found a roadside stand with gooseberries. Back home, another hour de-cactusing, and then carefully supervised cooking. The delicate green layer of jelly was most attractive.

Next came the strawberries, then the apricots. We were waiting for red raspberries when I passed by the glasses one day. How odd, I thought, that the reflection from the gooseberries makes the whole glass look green. I took them to the light. It was green through and through. Mold.

Yes, I know it wasn't the fault of the gooseberries. But on occasions like that, you have to blame something.

Advice on Protecting Your Child From Sunburn

By Angelo Patri

A BOOK done in a leather binding can be a beautiful thing; since it is a book a leather covering is fitting. But a boy or girl? Why not use moderation? A little common sense? Overdoing a good thing isn't smart.

The skin is an important part of the body. It breathes. It protects. It exudes waste. To damage it is to mistreat the entire body. There is no excuse for what some boys and girls are doing in this tanning business.

An adolescent youth who lives in the city was in the country for a week during which time he worked endlessly under the hot sun burning his skin brown. He lay naked in the sun hour after hour until his skin was scarlet. At night he could not sleep because of the burn and had to be bathed with cooling lotions. Did that check his ambition to be brown as a nut? Not at all. He burned himself daily, a martyr to some cause unknown to sensible people.

* * *

SUNSHINE is good for all living creatures. But too much of it can be dangerous; and young people, anxious to be in style with a tanned skin, ought, at least, to know the limitations of the process. Skin that has been covered for months is sensitive to the burning rays of the sun, and it should be exposed to them but briefly until it has been seasoned a little. A gradual approach to the nut-brown shade is healthier and saner.

The very young children must be protected against sun burning. Their skin is very sensitive and easily burned. When a little one is to be given a sun bath, his body should have a light covering for the first few times; and the bath should be brief, just a few minutes. As his skin becomes seasoned to the sun beams, the time can be lengthened a little. But he should never be left in the sun too long. A sunburn can be very painful and it certainly does the skin no good.

* * *

THERE is the effect of bright sunlight on children's eyes to be considered. Those little ones who are going to play on the sandy shore in bright sunshine should wear sun glasses, preferably those prescribed by their own eye specialist. Any old sun glass does not suit all children, and this is one of the vacation needs that mothers must watch lest the wrong sort of glasses be used to the detriment of the child's eyes.

And shade the eyes of the child asleep in his pram. Tip the top so that the sun does not strike fully on his face. He will rest better.

The summer sun is a good friend if cautiously welcomed. Taken too much for granted it can be dangerous.

Deep Dish Pie

Sliced fresh pears sweetened with sugar, spiced with ginger, scented with lemon rind and sprinkled with a bit of flour make a delectable fruit bottom for a deep dish pie. Use your flakiest pastry for the topping.

Moss on Shingles

You can kill moss growing on wood shingles by waiting for a spell of dry weather and then spraying the roof with a 10 per cent solution of zinc chloride.

Comment on Question of Cut in Taxes

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK

IT WAS interesting to note that the President said he was against tax cuts until 1958. This may be well and good, but it probably would be more sensible for him to set certain goals for himself without trying to set dates. For, as we know, the question of tax cuts is tied closely to the matter of inflation.

In this connection, a newspaper article the other day recalled that the Secretary of the Treasury in 1954 was anxious to increase capital investments and, as an aid to business, suggested certain tax cuts. In his testimony now Secretary Humphrey acknowledges that these cuts may have been the reason, or a contributing factor, in our present inflation.

The Secretary undoubtedly was warned of this possibility in 1954, because I remember hearing a number of persons interested in preventing inflation speak of it at the time.

* * *

I THINK it is encouraging that the President is not only anxious to prevent tax cuts as an aid to big business—for big business hardly needs aiding at the present time—but that he recognizes the need to help small business.

I wash he had seen fit to back Senator Fulbright's proposal to increase surtaxes on corporate incomes of $25,000 and over and decrease them on lesser corporate incomes. This would not have meant a loss of revenue, for there probably would have been an increase from the surtax on corporate incomes above $25,000.

* * *

THE FIRST STEP in the consideration of the civil rights bill by the Senate has been taken and the big question now is whether the compromises on the bill's provisions will be so great that there really will be no use in discussing it.

If that happens, there will be great disappointment in many areas of the country and the feeling that little has been gained, except, perhaps, in the education of the public through the broad discussion that has been going on.

No one will deny that Senator Lyndon B. Johnson's task of finding some kind of compromise is a difficult one. If anyone can hold the northern and southern Democrats together on this issue, it is Senator Johnson, for he has become a past master in the art of compromise.

Tuna Rates High For Fish Loaf

By Edith M. Barber

THE clever cook plans her warm weather meals ahead, and does as much of the preparation as she can early in the day—especially when the temperature is soaring. A fish or meat loaf can be mixed and baked in the morning, the earlier the better. It can be chilled and served cold, or reheated for a short time in the oven if you like.

Tuna is perhaps more used than any other fish for a loaf. There are several reasons for this. The canned tuna is delicate in flavor and rather reminiscent of chicken. The texture is good, and we like to have an ingredient we can keep on hand in the pantry without refrigeration.

I was amused recently to have heard a 10-year-old say that he didn't like fish but he just loved tuna. Of course, a meat loaf is also popular with young and old. It may not rate just as high with the teenagers as their favorite hamburgers, but it will not be scorned.

As you certainly have found out for yourself, there are many kinds of meat loaves. Generally, a combination of two or more ground meats is preferred and, very often, soft bread crumbs will be added. This practice not only stretches the meat but improves the texture and makes the loaf easier to slice. The choice of seasonings will also have much to do with the success of a recipe, whether it is to be served hot or cold.

Summer Tuna Loaf.

Ingredients: one-fourth cup milk, three-fourths cup soft bread crumbs, two egg yolks, three cans (6½-ounce) chunk-style tuna, drained, two tablespoons melted butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, one-half teaspoon onion juice, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one tablespoons finely chopped parsley, two egg whites.

Heat milk to boiling point. Add bread crumbs and mix well. Beat egg yolks and add with remaining ingredients to milk-crumb mixture. Mix well. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into tuna mixture. Press into greased 8½ by 4½ by 2½-inch pan, or shape into loaf and place on greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes. Chill thoroughly. Yield: eight servings.

Meat Loaf.

One pound ground beef, one-half pound ground pork, two eggs, three-fourths cup soft bread crumbs, one cup milk or tomato juice, one-fourth cup minced onion, two teaspoons salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-half teaspoon poultry seasoning.

Mix all ingredients thoroughly and pack lightly into loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for one hour. Serve with tomato or mushroof sauce. Yield: six to eight servings.

Smoked Fish Salad Appetizer

Ingredients: Four cups romaine torn into bite-size pieces, two medium-sized tomatoes, one-half to two-thirds cup flaked or diced smoked fish, olive oil, vinegar, salt, pepper.

Method: Turn greens into large salad bowl. Peel tomatoes; slice and dice, discarding seeds. Add to greens with smoked fish. Cover and refrigerate if not using at once. At serving time, toss with dressing of olive oil, wine vinegar, salt and pepper. Makes four to six servings.

Note: Dip tomatoes into boiling water before peeling. Or rinse tomatoes and then impale on fork; twirl over gas flame until skin blisters and chars in spots; remove skin with small knife.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

IF you saw a man walking along easily with a log on his shoulders, and if the log had a diameter of one foot and a length of seven feet, you might exclaim, "What a strong man he must be!"

Such a sight may be observed, at times, in a Latin-American country inside the Torrid Zone. A man may carry even a 10-foot or a 12-foot log on one of his shoulders without too much effort.

* * *

REMEMBER that I have spoken of "logs." You may ask, "What kind of log?" That is a good question!

The logs carried in that manner come from the trunks of balsa trees. A balsa log seven feet long weighs only about 35 pounds. A 10-foot balsa log, one foot in diameter, weighs about the same as the (49-pound) sack of flour which used to be common in city groceries, as well as in village stores.

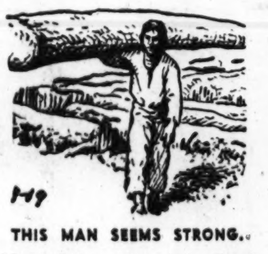
* * *

IN BOLIVIA it has been the custom for hundreds of years to make boats from balsa wood.



THIS MAN SEEMS STRONG.

Many balsa boats are fitted with sails.

During the present century balsa wood has come into widespread use outside of Latin America. It is popular for model airplanes. Sometimes it is employed in making inside parts of large airplanes. Another use is as a shock absorber. It is used for packing many pianos.

Several other trees have lightweight wood. One of these is the alligator-apple of the Florida Everglades. Another is the North American corkwood, chiefly confined to swamps of Texas, Florida and southeastern Missouri.

Crepe Fabrics

The revival of crepe fabrics is a highlight of the summer and advance fall collections. Black crepe predominates although some white crepe dresses are featured for late day wear. The pleated crepe skirt is also noteworthy in white and black. Sheer materials are featured by the majority of designers, who are using synthetics and silks blended together.

Savory Flavor

Television Notes and Gossip

ETHEL VANCE

ETHEL VANCE, who with Bill Frawley will be back as Ethel and Fred Mertz in the "I Love Lucy" shows in the fall, had thought of quitting the series. But she agreed to return under the new arrangement whereby the program will consist of only five one-hour shows for the whole season. She says that filming half-hour weekly shows was getting too strenuous. Miss Vance hopes now to have some time for dramatic appearances. In real life, she is the wife of actor-writer Phil Ober. They live on a four-acre "ranch" between Gallup and Albuquerque, N. M.

* * *

The entire cast of the "Lassie" series will be replaced, but slowly, one at a time. Only Lassie will remain.

* * *

There are now 21 educational television stations on the air, two more than a year ago. The stations average 31 hours of programming a week, compared to 25 hours a year ago.

* * *

"What's My Line" wants Ernie Kovacs as the first permanent panelist in Fred Allen's old chair. Stubby Kaye will fill in Sunday night.

* * *

Peggy Lee has signed with Frank Sinatra for three of his forthcoming ABC-TV shows, including the first one. Sinatra also is trying to get Kim Novak as a guest on his opener.

* * *

Natalie Wood's 10-year-old sister Lane is in competition with Evelyn Rudie for the starring role in a TV series to be titled "Turquoise."

* * *

Broadcasting - Telecasting magazine says that New York will originate about twice as many network shows as Hollywood next season. There will be 124 hours of origination each week from New York, about 64 hours from Hollywood.

* * *

Bob Hope will have Marie McDonald on his first fall television show, which is being filmed in Morocco.

* * *

* * *

Ernie Kovacs will be master of ceremonies on Ed Sullivan's show Sunday night while Sullivan vacations. Dan Dailey will have the job the following Sunday.
